Puerto Rico Background

Lunatic Boss Of Assassins Back in Jail

New York's Puerto Rican colony spawned last week's Washington gunfire in Congress and the 1950 attack on President Truman. Is it something in this slum area which breeds such hostility? Loyal Puerto Ricans say no, that it's the fanatic hold a wild-eyed old man has over a small but devoted band of followers. Here is the story behind the big Washington story.

BY SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—Back in the late 20s, a bushy-haired Puerto Rican with eyes of fire and the look of a messiah was acting out a fantastic charade.

It was real only in his tormented mind. In his mind, Puerto Rico had become an independent republic and he, its president. The seat of his "government" was Aguas Buenas, south of San Juan, and every morning it was the "president's" custom to call in his secretray and say:

"Please ask the foreign minister to come in with the morning mail."

In those days, Pedro Albizu Campos was a national joke in Puerto Rico. But nobody has laughed lately.

In 1950, two of his followers in the Nationalist party tried to assassinate the president of the United States. Last week four Nationalists tried to shoot up the Congress of the United States and wounded five Representatives.

The full story of Campos and his Nationalist party reads like a psychiatrist's case history of a paranoid, someone who suffers from delusions of persecution.

Searching for an insight into the Nationalists, you work the trail back. You start in New York. Both assassination attempts—against President Truman in 1950 and Congress last week — were launched from here.

Better Than Home

New York has about 450,000 Puerto Ricans, roughly twice the population of the capital city of San Juan. They have been coming here for years, but the heaviest migration (more than 260,000) has occurred since the end of the Second World War.

Most of those who remain live in dirty, crowded slums.

You hear complaints: Puerto Ricans in New York can't get a decent place to live; they are discriminated against; they get the worst jobs; they are supposed to be "cheap labor."

But bad as Puerto Rican living conditions may be here, they are far better than in Puerto Rico. They say they don't want to go back.

In trying to trace the fuse of the bitterness which exploded at Blair House and Congress, one must look back in time and young men and women.

space to the tormented mind of a young man.

Pedro Albizu Campos, dark-skinned son of a wealthy merchant, was a graduate of Harvard by the time the First World War came along. He was drafted and assigned to an all-Negro outfit.

Here the madness emerged. Burning with fury over what he called a terrible humiliation, Campos vowed vengeance.

Back in Puerto Rico, Campos began organizing the Nationalist party, screeching for independence and always preaching race hatred and violence.

"He gathered around him a tiny group of young radical hotheads," said a Puerto Rican. "They were literally lunatics."

At his peak, according to estimates here, Campos gathered around him about 2,000 young men and women.

Bloody Outbreaks

In 1936, Campos incurred the wrath of the University of Puerto Rico students by calling them "effeminates" and "little women" because they refused to follow him. The students staged a mass meeting to denounce him. A car full of nationalist muscle men tried to break it up.

Police ordered the car to head for the police station. The Nationalists opened fire. Two police and three Nationalists were killed.

In the next two weeks police stations were shot up and post offices bombed. In all, the outbreaks took 13 lives.

Campos and Julio Pinto Gandia (now reputed to be the leader of the Nationalist wing in New York) were arrested with other party leaders and sentenced to six years for insurrection.

In 1948, Campos returned to Puerto Rico, still singing his hymn of hate, and in October, 1950, led his fanatics in another bloody revolt.

About 30 people were killed as Campo's wild-eyed followers tried to fulfill his oft-repeated boast, "If I told them to shoot every man on the police force, they'd do it next day."

Two days after the island outbreaks, two Puerto Ricans tried to shoot their way into Blair House and kill President Truman. One guard and one terrorist were killed.

Back in Puerto Rico, Campos was arrested again and sentenced to terms totaling 56 years. In 1951, he was suffering from so many hallucinations he was removed to a prison hospital. Last September, Campos was pardoned by Governor Luis Munoz Marin in a "humanitarian" gesture in behalf of an obviously unbalanced man.

Until Saturday, the 62-year-old Nationalist leader was a free man, sitting in his house in Puerto Rico swathing his legs in wet towels and muttering that "the American government is bombarding my legs with atomic rays."

But Saturday morning Puerto Rican police blasted their way into his home with tear gas and hauled him off to the hospital as he gasped, "I am asphyxiated." Thirty-five of his closest associates were also arrested in an island-wide roundup and only two remain at large.

"When you try to argue this one point with the Nationalists," says a man who has tried, "they say: 'It must be true. If Don Pedro says the American government is attacking him with atomic rays, then that's exactly what's happening.'"

Little Bit of Olde Texas?

Two groups of the Chamber of Commerce are at each other's throats as a result of Empress Pete No. 1 blowing in on the Causeway, as suggested by Mrs. Lydia Arsens, Victoria MLA. While the industrial group of the chamber sits back and beams, the tourist trade group weeps salt tears for the city's little bit of Olde England atmosphere. A second well has drilled down to Viking sands just north of the ivied Union Club, and high hopes are held for a wildcat rig in the croquet pitch of Government House.—(Colonist Skulduggery.)

FBI Takes Drug King, Huge Haul

Dope Worth $2,000,000

NEW YORK (UP)—Federal agents Saturday disclosed the arrest of a man described as the nation's biggest narcotics pedlar and the seizure of more than $2,000,000 worth of heroin and opium in two dingy apartments.

Saul Gelb, a 57-year-old Austrian immigrant with a criminal record dating back 40 years, was captured Friday night carrying more than three pounds of pure heroin. A few minutes later agents picked up Mrs. Joan Kaufmann, an unemployed cosmetician who police said had been working with Gleb.

MORE HEROIN FOUND

Gelb was arrested outside a squalid, cold-water flat which agents said he had been using to process pure heroin and opium into salable quantities for addicts. Inside the flat, agents found 4½ more pounds of pure heroin, 40 pounds of processed opium ready for smoking and 15 pounds of crude opium.

James C. Ryan, district supervisor of the federal narcotics bureau, said Gleb was the most important narcotics violator in the country. Ryan said police and federal agents had been tailing Gelb continuously since March, 1952.

He was called "the apparent successor" to the late Waxey Gordon, whose real name was Irving F. Wexler, and who died in Alcatraz prison on June 24, 1952, at the age of 63.

WOMAN ARRESTED

Mrs. Kaufmann, a slender grey-haired woman, was arrested in another apartment, also apparently used as a "factory," police said. Agents found a quantity of opium being processed on her kitchen stove. Further search disclosed opium smoking equipment, 1,100 ounces of opium ready for smoking concealed in a compartment under a bedroom floorboard and 3½ pounds of pure heroin.

Mark Falls To Mystere

PARIS (UP)—A test pilot Friday claimed to have crashed through the sound barrier in level flight in a new French Mystere jet fighter.

Col. Constantine Rozanoff said the Mystere 4-B thus become the first produced in Western Europe for NATO to crash the barrier without the help of gravity.

Theft Suspect Jailed

Arrested while waiting for a taxi, Raymond Steven Fogg, 25, of Government Street, was charged with the theft of $400 from a Saanich home yesterday afternoon.

All of the money was recovered.

William Cowan, of 4875 West Saanich Road, from whom the money was stolen, was attending a funeral at the time of the theft.

Constable Robin Stewart, of the Saanich Police Department, who made the arrest, said Fogg was behind bars less than 20 minutes after the call from Mr. Cowan had been received.

He reported the money had been stolen from a cigarette tin which was in the drawer of a bedroom bureau.

CASH FOUND

The constable said that $160 was taken from Fogg, and another $240 was found on the veranda where the arrest was made.

A neighbor of Mr. Cowan's, who saw a man acting suspiciously before the robbery, aided police by volunteering a description.

Fogg will appear in Saanich Police court, Monday, at 9.30 a.m.

Body of Woman Found on Rock

VANCOUVER (CP) — The body of a woman was found stretched over a rock at the edge of a lake in a residential district here Saturday.

Police identified her as Mrs. Vera Doris Station of suburban South Burnaby. Her husband is believed to be employed by a city packing firm.

Police began an immediate investigation into the death but at a late hour Saturday said that cause still was not known. The body was found by two eight-year-old boys playing in Trout Lake Park.

The woman's feet dangled in a few inches of water, her hair reached close to the water on the other side of the rock.

Detectives said there were no marks of violence visible on the body, nor any identification in the clothing.

They said the woman had been dead about eight hours when found, placing death early Saturday morning.

The woman—thought to be in her early twenties—was wearing a maroon coat, grey slacks, blue gloves, a mauve blouse, rubber-soled oxfords and no stockings.

She was about five feet three inches tall.

"It was almost as if she had been standing with her back to the rock and fell over backwards," an officer added.

"We were riding through the park," David said, "when I saw the coat.

"I said 'Oh, look at the coat on the rock' and we went over and saw the woman. We didn't go near her. We went right home."

Used Cars: 95 Cents

DETROIT (UP)—Used car prices hit rock bottom at Ernie Grisson's lot Saturday when two middle-aged vehicles went for 95 cents each.

One car was a 1946 Chevrolet and the other a '47 Kaiser.

"They weren't treasures or anything," Grisson said, "but they both ran."

Grissom advertised the 95-cent price on television. He said the move paid off when an estimated 1,000 eager buyers crowded into his lot to take advantage of the bargain. They wrote their names on slips of paper and dropped them into a box. One winner was selected in the morning and the other in the afternoon.

Salesmen said they had "big crowds" all day and reported sales on other cars were above normal.

Education Week

Schools Set For Review

As a feature of Education Week, The Colonist is presenting a series of articles prepared by key members of Greater Victoria's school board staff.

By JOHN GOUGH
Municipal Inspector of Schools

This is the beginning of Education Week, a time when Canadians from coast to coast are being urged to take a closer look at their schools. At the moment, many parents and employers appear to be satisfied with the product of the schools; others are more critical. Education Week seeks to give the public a better understanding of what the schools are trying to do and how they actually operate. It proclaims that "Education is everybody's business" and suggests that the general public should co-operate with educators in providing the best training for every child.

Many local schools will be open to the public during Education Week. Parents of certain schools will receive invitations through their children when they may visit classrooms. Those who take advantage of this will have an opportunity to observe a school in action. Will they find the children well behaved? Will they see emphasis placed on reading, writing and arithmetic? Yes, they will. And at the same time they may see that many teachers are working with over-large classes.

PROUD OF PROGRAM

British Columbia, in common with the other provinces, has cause to be proud of the fact that it now carries on a program of public education unequaled in the history of this vast Dominion. Today, a high school education is available for many who, in former years, would not have gone beyond the elementary school level. This has come about, to some extent, by public demand. It is also in keeping with our democratic way of life which requires that every child be offered the same educational opportunity — the opportunity to learn as much as his ability and effort will permit. The use of examinations that would exclude students of below-average ability, in order that the intellectual ones only may be taught, would lead to the class system in vogue generations ago.

British Columbia's school system is but a century old. Yet it is highly respected across Canada. Great advances have been made in providing for the needs of the youth from six to 18 years by classroom instruction and by correspondence courses.

Further progress will come as educators and the public find solutions for at least three major problems that beset the schools. First, there is the increasing pupil enrollment; this generally means large classes where a scarcity of classrooms prevails. Second, the country is faced with a shortage of adequately trained teachers, the number reaching 7,000 across Canada at this moment. Third, costs of school construction are high. Authorities say that these conditions will become much more serious before they start to improve.

Canada's Pacific province is beginning to feel the effect of the higher birth rate experienced across the Dominion during the last 25 years. From 1930 to 1940, babies arrived at the rate of 25 an hour. In 1952, the stork began to land 45 times an hour. By 1960, it is expected that one Canadian child will be born each minute. In addition to these Canadian-born citizens, immigrant children under 18 years are entering Canada at the rate of about 4,000 every month. No wonder Canada's school population is expanding by 100,000 annually.

To look after the growing numbers of children entering schools in Canada, 2,500 classrooms must be built each year. Many of these are needed in British Columbia where the population increased twice as fast as the average for all Canada from 1941 to 1951. For some years to come, certainly until 1960, the schools of this province must be ready to accommodate an extra 12,500 pupils annually. This means an additional expenditure of about $5,000,000 a year.

DROP UNLIKELY

The cost of education has risen like the cost of most articles and services. There appears to be little hope of it dropping in view of the factors mentioned already. Where criticism of schools exists, it can often be attributed to concern over who shall pay, more than a real dissatisfaction with what the schools are doing. Fortunately, both federal and provincial authorities are searching for more satisfactory ways of financing education. The cost of training Canada's youth to take their places in the complex world is high—but it is not a hundredth part of the cost of sending them out ignorant.

Expert Claims It's Coming

Split-Second Accuracy Ahead for Weathermen

Blue skies will be the order today as Victoria and nearly all other parts of the province are given a foretaste of spring.

This is the local forecast and probably will be correct.

But imagine picking up your morning paper, reading and believing "Rain will start at 4.32 p.m. and end at 10.46 p.m."

This will be possible "certainly within 10 years, possibly within five," according to Capt. Howard T. Orville, chairman of the U.S. advisory committee on weather control, speaking on a radio program Saturday.

Orville said development of a national "electronic network" will take the guesswork out of weather forecasting.

Until then, however, one can't very well do without the services of the weathermen up at Gonzales Heights.

They said yesterday that sunny skies would follow an overnight frost today. The mercury would range from a low of 32 degrees to a high of 48 this afternoon. Monday's outlook, however, is cloudy.

Coffee Vanishes; Stevedores Held

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Four longshoremen are under arrest, charged with the 1954 version of an old crime—the bootlegging of coffee.

San Francisco police and the FBI said the arrests were "just the beginning" of a crackdown on a wide-spread coffee-bootlegging ring on the San Francisco and Oakland waterfronts.

Police Inspector John Curtain said the ring has been stealing thousands of dollars worth of high-grade green coffee beans from ships docking here.

The stolen beans were smuggled off the piers, roasted and presumably sold, he said.

Curtain said the longshoremen tore open 152-pound sacks of the green coffee, pretending the sacks were ripped in handling, and hid quantities of the beans in their shirts, pockets and lunch pails.

In some instances, he said, entire sacks were taken. Police are still trying to find out how these sacks got past pier guards.

Black Bears Injure 43

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty-three persons were injured, none seriously, by bears at Yellowstone National Park last year, when the park had 1,326,858 visitors, the U.S. national park service reported Saturday.

Elderly Man Hit by Car At Crossing

Struck by a car while crossing Douglas Street at Topaz Avenue, Hookham Singh, 74, of 807 Manchester Road, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday night with a broken leg and possible rib fractures.

Police identified the driver of the car as Mrs. Diliget Gill, of Lake Cowichan.

Bonn Checks Bug Poison

FRANKFURT (AP) — Bonn government authorities moved Saturday to check a wave of West German bug poison suicides after 24 persons had taken their lives in the past few days with insecticide.

'Old Lady' of 1870 Sold

Famed Alaska Gold Ship, Victoria Out of Service

SEATTLE (AP)—The Alaska Steamship Co's steamer Victoria, an old lady of 84 who saw more excitement around the world than any one man, has been sold.

The high cost of operating the "Vic" in the Alaska service was given as the reason for her sale to the Dulien Steel Products Co. The ship's small hatches also prevented her use in modern-day carrying of big new unitized containers.

The Victoria, oldest ship in the American merchant marine, has been inactive since 1952 when she was employed for the last time to help handle peak season traffic to Alaska.

BUILT IN 1870

Built in 1870 in Scotland as a combination sail-steam ship for the Cunard Line, the Victoria gained her greatest fame as the Alaska "gold ship."

For many years she was the first steamer to reach Nome after the ice breakup in the Bering Sea. She often was the last to leave for the "outside."

In the old days of the Nome trade it was a common occurrence for the Victoria to handle as much as $2,000,000 a trip in gold from the Seward Peninsula gold fields. Bricks were shipped in canvas bags valued at $25,000 each. It was said that at times there was not enough room to stow the gold and it was carried in the purser's office on the floor.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

The Victoria's future is uncertain, but Louis Dulien, president of the Dulien Co., said "at present there are no plans for scrapping her."

"The Victoria may wind up in a historical movie," he said, "or she may become a floating museum."

View Blocked, Police Booed

Queen Stops Car For Immigrants

GEELONG, Australia (CP)—Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh made a hit here yesterday with immigrants recently arrived from Europe.

The new arrivals, many of whom had been waiting all night to see the Royal couple, booed and jeered mounted police obstructing their view as the Queen's car arrived.

Surprised by the booing, Queen Elizabeth ordered her car stopped and instructed the police to move away. Then she and the Duke waved to the cheering crowd.

The royal party arrived here after visiting Warburton, where the Queen strolled through Dowling Forest, once the haunt of Captain Midnight, notorious bandit of the Australian gold rush days.

Back in the 1840s, when the Ballarat gold diggings were booming, Captain Midnight made the forest his lair, swooping out by night to rob miners and meet his lady friends.

Legend has it that he was later befriended by a priest, changed his name and became a banker in New South Wales.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THERE has been some bickering lately about Canada's national animal.

Novelist Mazo de la Roche is against the beaver, "that . . . buck-toothed mud-slinger whose sole ambition is toil." She favors the elk—apparently on the grounds that it has more dignity, and doesn't go around parading its hard work and thrift in such [illegible]

"Okay, Mazo," wrote Gordon Sinclair in New Liberty magazine, "but the Sinclair salutation goes to that most self-reliant of all Canadian creatures—the cocky and carefree starling. He asks no favors from man, woman or beast; he has tremendous durability and manages to multiply despite murderous intentions on the part of millions of people equipped with scientific gimmicks of unbelievable power."

* * *

As far as the beaver is concerned, I tend to agree with my wife, who says it does not exist. She has lived in Canada for some nine years, and she has never seen a beaver. I have lived here much longer than that, and I have never seen a beaver.

"You know, the beaver is a mythical animal," my wife sometimes remarks, and I nod my assent. It is one of the few beliefs we hold in common.

* * *

I am ever ready to fall back to another line of defense, the way the lawyers do, in case the first line breaks.

I do not concede that the beaver exists. However, if it does exist, I don't like it. Mazo de la Roche is right. The beaver is the Babbitt of the animal world.

"When I started in business, I didn't have two sticks to rub together," you can imagine the beaver saying. "And now look at me. I own a dam, and I have a pile of chips stashed away in the bank. The river bank, that is. From start to finish, I'm a self-made rodent."

* * *

That's my case against the beaver as a national animal. First, it doesn't exist. Second, it is far too pleased with itself.

And then we have the starling. It exists. I have seen it. True enough, the starling is brave, and asks no favors. It multiplies. Are these the qualities that count? If so, I nominate the rat. It has all the points which Sinclair admires so much in the starling.

In addition, it has sharp teeth. Can the starling make that claim? And it goes about its work far more quietly. You may argue that the rat wouldn't look well on the national coat of arms. All right. Appearance isn't everything, is it?

Some people may denounce both the rat and the starling, because they are immigrants. They are wasting their breath. I'll have no species prejudice around here.

* * *

There is no strict reason why the national creature should be a bird or animal. I suggest that we give some thought to naming a national insect.

What should it be? The grasshopper? The ant? The earwig, the flea and the carpet beetle do not deserve consideration, I suppose. Lumber is a major industry. Maybe we should give a chance to that busy woodworker, the termite.

The best choice might be that original Canadian, the giant mosquito. Our coat of arms might be changed to a pair of mosquitoes, rampant, feasting on a camper, couchant.

* * *

There is only one fair, democratic way to settle this thing. Vote on it. We'll have a proper election campaign, with candidates standing on stumps to address open-air meetings.

And may the best animal, bird, or insect win.

Reserve Gunners End Training

Reserve Force gunners from the Saskatoon area have completed a week of integrated training with 129 Anti-Aircraft Battery here.

The reserve artillerymen, members of the 21st Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, worked alongside regular soldiers of the local unit during their stay here.

The integrated training will replace annual camps which, [illegible] have been held at Albert Head, during the summer months.

Lieut.-Col. J. A. Pringle is commanding officer of the Prairie unit. Co-ordinator of the local training was Capt. H. E. Senior of 129 Anti-Aircraft Battery.

LIKE ARMY LIFE

Two soldiers of 119 Battery, RCA, at Work Point, like army life well enough to sign up for another three years service.

Warrant Officer R. A. Williams and Bombardier J. C. Lachmund re-engaged for a further hitch in the army, last week.

* * *

The flow of arms from Canada to NATO countries is continuing. Two armies at opposite ends of Europe are receiving Canadian equipment this month.

Military supplies from Canada are on their way to the forces of both Denmark and Turkey, the defence department has announced.

Included in the shipment to Turkey is 122 jeeps and batteries, and several cases of vehicle kits, and spare parts.

About 33 tons of ammunition was included in the consignment for the Danish army.

SHARPSHOOTERS

Cadets of the 1OF Cadets Corps are becoming sharpshooters. They spent last week practicing "grouping."

Four rounds, fired by Cadet Ian Faulkeson on the indoor range, could almost be covered by a fifty-cent coin, according to Lieut. C. A. Burley, chief instructor of the cadet group.

Other marksmen close behind Cadet Faulkes were Cadets Lum Wally, Michael Currier, Gary Bosence, and Ken Evans.

Speak Your Mind on Victoria

New Controversy Starts with Bang

BY THE JUDGE

Next week's question as to whether Victoria should be advertised as a little bit of olde England looks like a controversial one.

Quite a number of contestants have beaten the gun and sent in letters already.

Well, we've reached the end of the week again and it's time to announce the weekly $25 prize winner. It was a tough task but the Judge has come [illegible] from Exasperella, printed in Tuesday's Colonist, was the best of the week.

There's only one fly in the ointment. Exasperella omitted to send in her full name. So send in your name, lady, and the money will be forwarded to you.

Today's winning letter follows:

Dear Judge:

In these atomic, troublesome times a husband carries his share of the burden of providing for his family. Modern science has brought many labor and time-saving appliances into the home and a wife has no right to add overtime to a man's working day.

In many cases the housewife of today is getting spoiled, mentally and physically soft, and a neurotic due to shirking her duties as a homemaker.

MOTHER OF SIX,
Victoria.

(Wow! That's telling 'em, mom. But wait till the Judge's wife sees that. All that washing up . . .)

Dear Judge:

After reading your column all week I'm beginning to believe I'm a—prize sucker. My husband spent his impressionable years in close contact with the Japanese hence he trained me in accordance with their customs.

When he comes home at night I wash and dry his feet before I serve his dinner. He doesn't pay me Oriental wages though—he keeps the works. Occasionally I sing the praises of my neighbor who helps his wife. He always has the same sarcastic retort: "How would you like to be married to Mr. Milk Toast?"

IMA FLUNKEY,
Victoria.

(The original Japanese houseboy, eh?)

Dear Judge:

I don't think a husband should be expected to help with the housework any more than the wife should be expected to go out and milk the cow. If he earns a good living for her what more does she want?

TILLY,
Cobble Hill.

(The Judge doesn't know how to milk a cow but he sure knows how to milk a piggy bank—after the lady of the house has taken all his wages.)

Dear Judge:

. . . I am in favor of the husband learning every phase of household duties and child care and likewise the wife learning to use a hammer, fix minor electrical and plumbing fixtures and also the car so that in case of an emergency either can calmly take over and carry on.

TWO SIDES,
Victoria.

(Listen, Two Sides, a woman could never learn to fix anything. You concentrate on the housekeeping — the men will do the rest.)

Dear Judge:

Let hubby do the housework?

He would worse than the proverbial bull in a china shop. Besides, what respect could one have for a man who dons a dinky little apron and frets around wiping Junior's nose, rinsing out diapers, etc. It would be like seeing a rooster trying to hatch eggs.

MOTHER OF THREE, ALL MALES,
Saanichton.

(That's just what I've been saying all week. You are welcome in the Judge's house anytime.)

Dear Judge:

Years ago I was young and foolish and let my husband help with the dishes. The next thing I knew he was telling me how to do the dishes. Then I let him help with a few house hold chores and he was telling me how to do those chores. Things went on in the same order and still I did not see where this was leading until too late.

Now the situation has become so extreme that he has slipped from under my thumb. I no longer pick out his ties but he picks out my hats and it all started way back when I let him do the dishes. So take a warning girls. Be mistress of the kitchen and you will be mistress of your home.

THE WEAKER SEX,
Victoria.

(It sounds like wedded bliss to me. I only wish I had thought of that.)

Mrs. Murdock Wins Twice

Mrs. Roy Murdock won both of the first two races in the women's frostbite series yesterday at Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

Three more races will be sailed at Cadboro Bay today. Results yesterday were:

First race: 1, Mrs. Murdock; 2, Mrs. Ned Ashe; 3, Mrs. Ken MacLaren; 4, Mrs. Jack Korning.

Second race: 1, Mrs. Murdock; 2, Mrs. Korning; 3, Mrs. MacLaren; 4, Mrs. Ashe.

Garden Notes

Speed Essential In Moving Dogwood

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Transplanting Young Dogwoods—H.L.B., Langford. While nursery-grown dogwoods may be transplanted either in the spring or early fall, young trees from the wild should only be moved during March and April. This applies also, of course, to self-sown trees on your property.

Dogwoods suffer severely when they are out of the ground for any length of time, so it would pay you to prepare the planting holes before you lift the young trees, so they may be rushed to their new home as quickly as possible. They appreciate a little bone meal and peat moss mixed with the fill-in soil.

Tomatoes in Vermiculite—V. H. S., Prospect Lake: When plants are started in vermiculite and fed with a nutrient solution, the roots don't have to range so far afield to find food, and in consequence there are fewer feeding hairs on the root branches than if they were grown in soil. They develop extra hairs very quickly after transplanting, though, and this can be speeded up by mixing vermiculite dampened with nutrient solution with the fill-in soil.

Your seedlings should not have "dampened off" in vermiculite, as this material is sterile.

It is possible that the infection is seed-borne, and I suggest that you treat any remaining seed with Arasan or some similar seed disinfectant.

Wedgewood Iris Indoors.—R.C.M., Victoria. The Wedgewood iris is not an easy subject for growing indoors. In the first place, you must have top-size bulbs, as the smaller ones won't bloom under indoor conditions. They require a very cool room, 50 to 55 degrees, and plenty of sunlight, so I think your chances of getting them to flower under artificial light in your heated basement would be rather slim.

I'm afraid I don't know of any book on growing plants under artificial light, but the engineering division of the Canadian General Electric Co. has been doing a great deal of research on this, and it is possible that they have a pamphlet on the subject. Dr. Pirone of the N.Y. Botanical Gardens recommends a fluorescent tube known as a "3,500 Daylight White" for plant use.

Camellia Troubles.—H.K., Langford: I believe that the yellowing of the leaves on your camellias is caused by a too acid soil. It is commonly believed that the camellia requires an acid soil, like the azalea and rhododendron, but this is not true, and you were in error when you acidified the soil with sulphur last year.

Give each of your camellias 1½ cupfuls of hydrated lime, sprinkled over the root run as far as the branches extend and a little beyond, and scratch this into the soil. This is a one-shot treatment designed to counteract the effect of the sulphur, and should not become a regular practice.

Follow this up in two weeks time with a similar dosage of Vigoro, and water it in thoroughly. Make sure the bushes get plenty of water trough the summer, as a position close to a house wall is often abnormally dry. The camellia enjoys an overhead shower bath in the evening following a hot day.

Old Roses — R. J. J., Victoria. I am afraid I don't know of any Canadian nurseryman specializing in the very old varieties of roses. There is such a specialist in the U.S., however; Will Tillotson, Watsonville, Calif., who will probably have Cardinal de Richelieu and other old-fashioned roses. Mr. Tillotson's catalogue, "Roses of Yesterday," is priced at 35 cents. The department of agriculture in the Belmont Building will advise you on an import permit.

Now, through the use of the Audiometer, a Paravox hearing-aid can be made up by Photoscription to suit the requirements of the hard-of-hearing person as ascertained by Audiometric Tests.

You are invited to take advantage of this Photoscription Service, there is no extra charge for it. Just call at the Victoria Hearing-Aid Co., 326 Yarrow Building, 625 Fort Street, any day except Saturday afternoon or Sunday. McCarthy Line Called Gamble Of Republicans

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said Saturday night the Republican party "divided against itself, half McCarthy and half Eisenhower" has deliberately embarked on a campaign of "slander, dissension and deception" in an effort to remain in power.

Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic nominee, declared in a speech prepared for the southeastern Democratic conference, that President Eisenhower has soft-pedaled criticism of Sen. Joseph McCarthy because he has been persuaded "that McCarthyism is the best Republican formula for political success."

Stevenson said the chief objectives of the Wisconsin senator and those who support him include "not only the intimidation and silencing of all independent institutions and opinion in our society, but the capture of one of our great instruments of political action—the Republican party."

"The end result, in short, is a malign and fatal totalitarianism," he declared.

Stevenson's speech was delivered at a Democratic harmony gathering in a state the former Illinois governor lost to Eisenhower in 1952.

Stevenson charged Eisenhower with personal responsibility for the "McCarthyism" which he blamed primarily for "the bitter harvest of the seeds of slander, defamation and disunion planted in the soil of

Citing the controversy between Eisenhower and McCarthy over the latter's charges that the army had "coddled" Communists, Stevenson said:

"Had the Eisenhower administration chosen to act in defense of itself and of the nation which it must govern, it would have had the grateful and dedicated support of all but a tiny and deluded minority of our people."

Death Threat Carried Out By Mau Mau

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—John H. Candler, British district officer under "sentence of death" from Mau Mau terrorists, was ambushed and killed Friday night.

Candler, wounded, ordered his four tribal policemen to leave him. They refused, fighting back until fire from the hidden terrorists killed him.

There was no sign yesterday of a response by the anti-white movement to British surrender overtures. Other developments included the execution of six men here for unlawful possession of firearms, administering the Mau Mau oath or consorting with terrorists.

Lie Detector Confronts Boy Friends

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A pretty 17-year-old high school girl, with a bent for science, has built a simple lie detector that is keeping her boy friends on the straight and narrow.

Red-haired Jane Welborn, senior at Central High School, says the machine uses three of the five principles found in most professional lie detectors.

Hers incorporates the testing of respiration, heart beat and pulse rate, which gives an indication of the sbpject's physical response to questions. The professional machines also check blood pressure and brain waves.

Jane explains that to do this she would have to "amplify the electric current on the gadget to such a degree that it could cause electrocution."

No sense in losing any boy friends, she says.

Pope Could Abdicate If Illness Prevents Work

ROME (Reuters)—The Pope, kept alive by injections of nourishment during his six-week illness, now has begun to eat semi-solid foods again.

But despite the pontiff's progress toward recovery from a serious stomach ailment, his doctors believe he will never be strong enough to resume the heavy burden of work he has carried for 15 years.

The belief has given rise to rumors that the Pope, who celebrated his 78th birthday last Tuesday, may resign or name a cardinal secretary of state to help him in his work.

STILL UNDECIDED

A high authority said the Pope has not yet decided what he would do. But the pontiff often told visitors in the past: "The Pope cannot afford to be sick—he has too much to do."

To help him make up his mind, the Pope was reported to have instructed his doctors to inform him fully about the progress of his illness.

Making great improvement in the last two weeks, the Pope now takes such foods as warm milk, coffee, puddings, rice, orange juice and egg yolk.

His gains are attributed mainly to the "cellular therapy" treatment given him by Dr. Paul Niehans, a 74-year-old specialist.

It is generally expected in the Vatican that if the Pope is confronted with a long convalescence he will take special measures.

Most drastic of these would be abdication, for which he himself made special provision in an apostolic constitution he published in 1945.

No Pope has resigned in the last 500 years.

Election of Assembly Planned by Egyptians

CAIRO (UP)—Egypt's military government announced plans Saturday for election of a constituent assembly which will meet this summer to approve a new constitution and pave the way for setting up a parliamentary regime in Egypt.

A communique issued by the ruling revolutionary council said martial law would be lifted prior to the constituent elections and announced censorship was being abolished effective Saturday.

The announcement said elections for the constituent assembly would be timed so that it can convene July 23.

It said the assembly, in addition to drawing up a new constitution, would carry out the parliamentary functions until general elections are held for a parliament.

Col. Gamel Abdel Nasser, who succeeded Gen. Mohammed Naguib as premier and head of the council last week, told reporters his revolutionary council will remain in power until a new parliament is elected.

Abdel Nasser said Egyptian government authorities would meet Monday to define the powers of the president and premier, Naguib, after being ousted from all his posts in the reshuffle last week, returned as president.

Queen Lovely Duke Agrees

ROCHESTER, Australia (CP)—The Duke of Edinburgh sauntered up to an elderly woman in the royal crowd here Friday afternoon and asked her:

"How long have you been waiting?"

"Since 10.45 this morning," she told him.

"Was it worth it?" the Duke asked.

"Of course," the woman replied. "Isn't the Queen lovely?"

"Of course she is," the Duke said with a broad grin, as he sauntered away, unrecognized.

Canada Grows Uneasy On U.S. Defense Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—There is uneasiness in Canada's capital concerning United States defense policy.

This uneasiness springs mainly from the recent "retaliate instantly" speech of John Foster Dulles, U.S. secretary of state.

Canadian officials say they are still trying to figure out exactly what Mr. Dulles meant. They added that this should not be surprising because the Americans themselves are apparently still trying to figure it out, too.

CHIEF QUESTIONS

The chief questions in Ottawa are: Would the U.S. be prepared to "go it alone" under certain circumstances of aggression? And before the U.S. took any action, would Canada and other U.S. allies be consulted?

Canada was not consulted before Mr. Dulles made his New York speech January 12, in which he said:

"The way to deter aggression is for the free community to be willing and able to respond vigorously at places and with means of its own choosing. . . .

"The basic decision of President Eisenhower and his advisers was to depend primarily upon a great capacity to retaliate, instantly, by means and at places of our choosing."

INCLUDE CANADA

The "free community" presumably would include Canada and other members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But, officials here asked, would they be consulted, or how could they, if the U.S. decided to "retaliate instantly?"

For instance, if the Chinese sent troops to help the Communists in Indo-China and the U.S. decided to retaliate instantly with an attack on Russia, other NATO countries might be unwilling to go along with such a decision.

Certainly Canada would want to be consulted about any action that would result in a major war.

NO MAJOR CHANGE

In discussing the so-called "new look" of U.S. defense policy, officials here do not see any major change.

During the regime of President Truman, the U.S. followed a policy of containment of Communism or periphery defense. In the Ottawa view, this policy has not been abandoned, but there is a shift in emphasis to creation of a strategic reserve in the U.S. which could be moved quickly to any theatre as well as a buildup of the strategic bombing force as a deterrent to war.

Boy Recovered, Kidnapper Shot

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia (AP)—Nicolas Saade, four-year-old son of a wealthy retired industrialist, was returned unharmed to his parents at midnight Friday after being in the hands of a kidnapper for 12 hours. The kidnapper was slain by police.

Police captured Alfonso Echeona as he sought to collect a 200,000 peso ($80,000) ransom and forced him to tell them where he was hiding the youngster. A short time later police said they had to kill Echeona when he attempted to escape.

A CHILD'S FAITH

To a youngster, it seems that mother and dad are able to do almost anything. They can repair a broken toy, heal a cut finger, or brush away fear. A child's faith is one of the treasured rewards of parenthood. The feeling of relief and security inspired by the presence of the family physician as he ministers to a loved one is much the same. The physician's mere presence in time of emergency instills confidence, removes fear. The family physician is indeed a servant of mankind.

Geography and Thought

PHILOSOPHERS and historians have long known that environment colors thought, that the northerner in his hills and the tropical islander on his beaches will regard the world from different viewpoints. From the equator to the poles this influence has been at work on mankind as long as the human family has existed. Similarly for every 1,000 miles one could mark off around the globe in its lateral girth a sharp differentiation in human concepts is to be found. Canada by test has eastern, middle and western viewpoints, to take in only its broadest gradations. The same distance, some 4,200 miles, might span a score of countries in Europe, each with its human differences.

It has remained for the middle decades of the Twentieth Century to scramble many of these regional and often parochial distinctions in thought into inchoate confusion through the rapid breaking down of time and distance in instantaneous communications. The world may still take a day for the light of the sun to traverse, but human report flows instantly. Fact, circumstance and incident in one section of the globe are reported simultaneously in nearly every other quarter, at least wherever freedom reigns. This great mass of intelligence changes constantly throughout the day, like a prodigious river whose stream is always at the flood. It is small wonder that some mental indigestion results. Men are not accustomed to thinking in concert or simultaneously, where thinking at all.

In the long run, from this inchoate, confused mass of jumbled report and opinion may come some day a better understanding of the human family and all of its aspirations. The mere geographical bias of thought will be apt to soften, if not to disappear. Society will find again that principles are the indestructible building blocks of life, and that no good or useful edifice can be erected without them. Human tolerances may broaden, and vast areas of human ignorance melt under the influence of the better light of day. Uncomfortable as the process is human society is commencing in some fashion to discover itself, and to a degree that probably could not have been said of any earlier age. There is room for hope and encouragement in that.

Useful When It Suits

THERE is a curious silence lately about Canada's cost-of-living index, or consumer price index as it was renamed a few years ago. Could that be because the trend it shows is not as favorable as it used to be towards those who were wont to quote it as their chief argument during union wage negotiations? Nowadays the cost-of-living index is hardly ever mentioned. In looking for a reason for this departure from the earlier pattern of bargaining, one finds that in the last four months the only movement of the index has been downward.

At the beginning of this year the index stood only 15.7 points above the 100-mark level of 1949. That was the year in which a fresh reference point was established for compiling these statistical comparisons, after a period in which the index had soared steadily upward following the end of the war. It used to be the practice for union bargaining committees on entering the negotiation conferences to confront the employers' representatives with the latest figures from the Dominion statistical office. Latterly those indices have ceased to help them; yet in many parts of the province right now there are negotiations in progress for wage scale increases which in some instances even exceed in percentage the total rise in the index during the whole of the last five years.

Surely if the index had any significance when it was going up it should continue to mean something when it stops climbing or starts to descend. If not, then the premise on which earlier arguments for wage increases were based was largely false.

'Achtung—the Spitfire'

AN item of information from the Air Ministry in London will arouse nostalgia in many a former Canadian fighter pilot. It is to the effect that the famous Spitfire has been retired. This once renowned aircraft has bowed to the jet age and the last operational squadron employing the "Spit," as airmen of a decade ago fondly termed it, has been re-equipped with Meteor jets. The Spitfire has now become a museum piece.

But what a piece! Great Britain has a peculiar genius for naming her ships and airplanes and the word Spitfire epitomized the air force spirit in those tremendous summer days of 1940. The plane literally spat fire. Backed by the also aptly named Hurricane it met the vastly larger Luftwaffe nose on and blew it out of English skies. The world today still owes a debt of gratitude to the Spitfire squadrons and to "The Few" who saved the cause of freedom in that finest hour.

History will record the Spitfire as a microcosm of an era. It will recall the magnetic appeal of the "Buy a Spitfire" campaign which won instant and wide response throughout the free world. Keep the Spits flying was the urgent cry, and it did not fall on deaf ears. As the war went on new and better types of Spitfires took to the air so that throughout the long struggle this famous plane kept its place in the van of aerial combat. It served its age as have few instruments in any realm of human endeavor. The word Spitfire is emblazoned forever in the memories of the British peoples.

CANDY CIGARETTES

Sir: Why does Mrs. Lydia Arsens stop where she does? She says candy cigarettes teach children to smoke; why not prohibit the sale of toy cars and trucks, these could teach kindergarten children to become reckless drivers in after years. Small girls throw dolls around; they will grow up to be careless baby sitters. Stop using baby's feeding bottles. They, if you don't, will become patrons of the liquor stores. Yes, let her keep on and maybe she could help in time with the library board difficulties.

Well, I have seen Mrs. Arsens and I have seen Mortimore. Give me Mortimore.

SALES TAX GRANTS

Sir: Now that the school board budget is again before the councils of the district, I think it opportune to bring to the attention of the public the distinctly unfair situation with respect to educational finance.

Some years ago, the municipalities of the province approached the government for assistance towards the costs of education and social services, suggesting that a 2 per cent sales tax be imposed, the proceeds to be turned over to them to meet these costs. The outcome was that the government instituted the 3 per cent tax, relieved the local councils of certain social service costs and turned over to them one-third of the tax revenue for education purposes. However, the municipalities have been putting this money into their general account instead of crediting it to the school boards.

Two or three years later the UBCM again approached the provincial cabinet for revision of education grants, and I was a member of the delegation, representing the B.C. School Trustees' Association. The premier of that day told the delegation in no uncertain terms that, as far as his government was concerned, the sales tax revenue they were receiving was intended for education and that they had better apply it where it belonged before asking for more money.

The unfair feature of the situation is that the present division of the total mill rate does not show a true picture concerning school costs. For instance, the city of Victoria published details of its tax levy for 1953 as follows: General purpose, 17.9636 mills; debt, 11.4610; schools, 26.6754, or a total of 56 mills.

The sales tax revenue received by the city in 1953 amounted to $651,546, the equivalent of just over 12 mills, so that if this money was properly applied, the general levy would be approximately 30 mills and that for schools about 15. A similar situation applies to other municipalities. The present practice is contrary to accepted financial arrangements between provincial and local governments.

CIRCUS WITHOUT ANIMALS

Sir: Mr. Thompson in his letter of February 28 says that circuses are for the pleasure and benefit of children, and asks what would be given for entertainment in their place if circuses were stopped.

I wonder what children do for amusement when no circuses are on tour, and also why animals should have to spend their lives in cages in which they can barely move, ceaselessly traveling and performing unnatural tricks which they have been trained to do by cruelty and carry out through fear, for the pleasure of children.

There is no objection whatever to circuses which feature only human performers, such as aerialists, acrobats, clowns, etc., and these are always enthusiastically received by circusgoers.

Mr. Thompson indicates that the whips are used for protection and not for punishing the animals. Perhaps he has never seen the animals being whipped, prodded, and having blank cartridges fired in their faces to make them perform.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings"

By TOM TAYLOR

HAPPILY my readers are tolerant folk. They never complain when I lift sentences out of their letters and print them in this space. They don't aver, for instance, that I'm misquoting them, such being the resort of the weak and my readers being strong.

I have to watch my step, though, for they can hit hard.

Last Sunday, seemingly, I said something about all gentlemen being cigarette smokers, which prompts a View Royal friend to suggest I stop patting myself on the back and let others do the praising. An excellent idea, so long as others don't forget.

He forgives my slip, however, with the hope: "Perhaps your mind will be clearer in a couple of weeks when you get to mowing lawns again."

A couple of weeks! Why man, I mowed all of 400 square feet yesterday morning.

Book titles can be enlightening. Sir John Hunt's account of the taming of Chomo Lungma is published in England as "The Ascent of Everest" whereas in the United States the word "Ascent" gives way to "Conquest". Both terms are factually correct but as you see they reflect differing outlooks.

* * *

I'm inclined to think society is growing unfair. On our sports page the other morning I read a reference to Jehosie Heard, one-time Victoria baseballer now trying out with the big-league Baltimore club. He stands five feet eight inches straight up, just as I do, but in Baltimore they talk of him as "the little guy". Isn't there room any more, with a proper measure of respect too, for the male who isn't an overgrown bean pole?

* * *

Oppressed with such thought I stumbled on the following lines by a poet of some repute—I'll leave you to guess who.

O why the deuce should I repine,
And be an ill foreboder?
I'm twenty-three and five-feet-nine—
I'll go and be a sodger!

But alack I am no longer 23 and I never just reached the five-foot-nine mark. Ahh anyway I don't think the army would have me.

Talking about Indians, which we are not but which for a moment we might well do, the idea of a cigar-store-Indian type village set in the heart of the city accords ill with the real Indian villages on the city's outskirts. Stories of houses that breed disease and of mothers who can't feed their hungry children do not jibe happily with synthetic wigwams and other extravagances designed to make tourists' eyes pop. If the half-million-odd dollars talked about were spent on making the real Indian villages really habitable then tourists might really see something worthwhile. The exhibit would be authentic too and not just another false front.

Listen to this:

"In the course of history no people has ever been made a present of freedom, and if freedom did cost nothing no people would ever keep it. Freedom has a high price, and men must struggle ever to preserve it."

Someone like Churchill might have said those words, but alas it was Adolf Hitler, which only goes to illustrate the use to which evil men may put good words. Freedom to some individuals means only freedom to take freedom away from others.

A former RAF wing commander who knew Lawrence of Arabia sends me this pleasing note from Gordon Head:

"How anyone could so write of T. E. Lawrence as you say the novelist (Richard Aldington) has done is beyond my understanding. I had the privilege of looking after him surgically when we were both in residence at the RAF college at Cranwell. He was in headquarters as Shaw, and believe me he was loved by all officers and men. That Lawrence would deliberately make up a lot of lies and put them in 'Seven Pillars of Wisdom' was utterly foreign to his make-up, and I feel grateful to you for so splendidly standing up for his name and character."

The Commonwealth Games

By ROY MOOR, from London

The writer, a former British quarter-mile track champion, is athletic correspondent of the London News Chronicle.

THE outstanding attraction at the Commonwealth and Empire Games to be held in Vancouver from July 30 to Aug. 7 this year will be the mile run, especially if the four-minute mile has not been recorded by that time, for listed among Australia's entries will surely be John Landy, who three times has beaten 4 minutes 3 seconds for the distance, fastest, 4 minutes 2 seconds. In England's party will be Roger Bannister, who also has clocked 4 minutes 2 seconds.

The famous Gordon Pirie, however, will not take part in this race. He is due to meet, late in August, the great Emil Zatopek of Czechoslovakia in the European 10,000 metres championship at Berne, Switzerland. Pirie realizes only too well that he will have to break the world record if he is to beat Zatopek. And an appearance in Vancouver might well weaken his chances in that testing tussle with Zatopek.

But my choice, in any event, for the Empire mile title is Bannister. This summer will find him faster and more determined than ever to beat those elusive four-minute figures.

* * *

Another English track star will most certainly be the red-headed Chris Chataway, the runner who unluckily stumbled and fell when leading Zatopek and the rest of the field into the finishing straight of the 5,000 metres at the Helsinki Olympics two years ago. He has now left Oxford University and is in business with a London firm of brewers. He is putting in a lot of hard training with a view to being first past the post in the three miles at Vancouver.

Another English runner with big plans for victory at Vancouver is Jim Peters. This 34-year-old London optician, who has run the world's fastest marathon, considers he is getting even faster. His ambition is to win the Empire marathon and then fly to Berne and win the European marathon title. Peters realizes that there is little time for recovery between the two events, so, to tune up his body for the tremendous tasks that lie ahead, he plans to run 5,000 training miles before leaving for Canada.

Like Australia, England will be particularly strong in the women's track and field athletics, and her most outstanding representative should be whippet-like Ann Pashley, a young Norwich student who twice equalled the British women's 100 yards record last season. She, too, is finding more speed and must be rated the fleetest-footed threat to Australia's Olympic champion, Marjorie Jackson.

If anybody is to beat New Zealand's Olympic gold medalist Yvette Williams in the long jump, it could be Jean Desforges, Britain's best all-round woman athlete. She is quite capable of setting up a new world record for the event. This is likely to be her last season in athletics and nothing would give her more satisfaction than to finish her track career with an Empire championship.

* * *

Vancouver will be staging the fifth Empire Games. The first were held in 1930, two years after the Amsterdam Olympic Games, at which the athletes of the British Empire not only greatly distinguished themselves but also constituted a formidable and compact challenge to foreign opposition.

Appropriately enough, the first of the Empire Games were held in Canada and included in a remarkably fine team of Canadian men and women that had competed in Amsterdam was that outstanding discovery, Percy Williams, one of the few men to win both the 100 metres and the 200 metres against full world opposition.

The second Empire Games (1934) took place in London, and featured New Zealander Jack Lovelock's great victory over the then-rising England star Sidney Wooderson, in the mile championship. The third (1938) were held in Sydney, Australia, and the fourth four years ago in Auckland, New Zealand.

As in the Olympics, track and field athletics are the No. 1 sport. At Vancouver, there will also be the pick of the Empire's athletics competing for swimming, cycling, boxing, weightlifting, wrestling, lawn bowls, fencing and rowing honors.

* * *

Already a record entry has been received for the Vancouver Games. Twenty-three of the 26 nations affiliated to the British Empire Games Federation have announced their intention to send teams. The previous best entry was in 1950 when 13 countries took part at Auckland.

The full list of entries for the Games with the probable size of their teams in brackets is:

Canada (224), England (90), Gold Coast (6), Northern Rhodesia (19), Scotland (24), New Zealand (40), Nigeria (15), South Africa (54), Northern Ireland (12), Southern Rhodesia (4), Australia (60), Hong Kong (3), Pakistan (6), Wales (20), Jamaica (24), Trinidad (10), Kenya (12), Malaya (10), Fiji (6), Uganda (6), Bermuda (8), Barbados (2), and British Guiana (4).

Discussions are now taking place with an aim to staging a track and field match between the pick of the British Empire and the United States at Ohio at the conclusion of the Vancouver Games.

The Duke's Visit

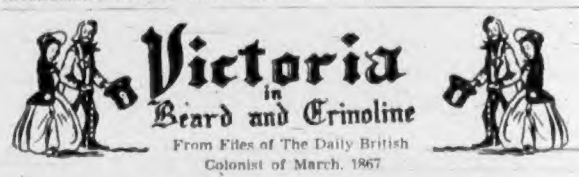
(From The Ottawa Journal)

THE Winnipeg Tribune, discussing the proposed visit to Canada of the Duke of Edinburgh this summer, thinks "it would be the part of decency and courtesy to give him a little time out of the goldfish bowl," with "the top brass of officialdom standing well back, say a couple of hundred miles back."

The Journal agrees, seconds the motion heartily.

When the Duke of Eindburgh travels with the Queen he must expect the full red-carpet treatment. But if he does us the honor of visiting Canada unofficially he should be able to travel pretty much as any private gentleman. He should not in those circumstances have to move about with a trainload of reporters, should not have to expect a photographer behind every post, should be free of the formality of addresses of welcome and station-platform receptions, free of guards of honor and so on.

Canadians would like the Duke of Edinburgh to come here often, to feel at home in this country. They would like him to learn to think of Canada as a place where he could leave behind him the blaze of publicity which ordinarily surrounds his activities. That requires some forbearance, perhaps, on the part of admiring Canadians, dazzled by the spectacle of royalty at close range, but decency and courtesy, to use the Winnipeg newspaper's phrase, demand it.



From Files of The Daily British Colonist of March, 1867

By G. E. MORTIMORE

THERE was no talk in colonial days of raising legislators' pay. They didn't receive any pay.

This fact was mentioned incidentally in a speech by the Hon. Dr. Helmcken, an Island member of the Legislative Council which met at New Westminster, the capital of the united colony.

Dr. Helmcken spoke in reply to a speech by a Mainland member, Hon. Mr. Robson, who accused Island members of needlessly fomenting discontent and spreading bad publicity about British Columbia's credit. Mr. Robson called them "demagogues."

"The members for the Island constituencies did not come here to be insulted and abused," Dr. Helmcken replied hotly. "They stood here fully equal . . . to any member of this Assembly, receiving no money for their services and free to express their honest views and convictions."

"Demagogues! The insulting epithet could apply only to the hon. member himself.

". . . Instead of the mainland being oppressed by union with Vancouver Island the boot was on the other leg; it was the people of the Island who were the greatest sufferers by it, and he regretted that he ever saw a representative of the Island in this House."

Amor De Cosmos had some bitter words, too. The colony had a $17,000 overdraft at the bank. Some salaries were in arrears. Taxation was exorbitant—$100 a head compared with $10 a head in England, about $3.50 in Canada and $3 in Nova Scotia.

Money was being squandered on unnecessary officials. The collector's office should be moved to Victoria, where all the revenue was taken in. Hon. Mr. Smith and Hon. Mr. Walkem favored moving the assay office to Victoria, where there were two banks and all the gold was taken in. De Cosmos wanted to do away with the office altogether, because it was a losing proposition, he said.

Dr. Helmcken wanted two clerks struck off the treasury staff. "We don't require two clerks to look after a treasury with nothing in it," said Mr. Pemberton.

A great many of the economy measures were defeated, but the argument went on.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

BERNARD Berenson, the world-famous art critic, wrote a striking sentence. "Time," he said, "is the raw material of life."

He elaborated the idea a little, for the benefit of the intellectuals to whom he addressed himself, knowing they would catch it fully. But for the rest of us, he might have gone on to visualize time perhaps as a tape, like a ticker tape, tirelessly running through our fingers. And it is up to us to see that not an inch of it gets by without something inscribed on it. Either each moment of time's ticker tape has some message for us, or else we must put at least a fingerprint on it. It should not go by blank.

Berenson said it filled him with horror hear people speak of killing time, or to think of them killing time. Berenson, I suppose, never in his life cast an idle glance. From waking to bedtime, he savored with his eyes, his ears, his nose, his attention, everything that existed around him. When you read his books, you can understand his intense appreciation of art because he also appreciated everything else in life, and knew the relation of art to those countless things which make up existence in all its forms.

Many poets and other imaginative writers have mentioned clocks as measuring off the passage of time, the ticking being a reminder that empty moments and featureless hours are sneaking past us. Now we have soundless electric clocks which do not do even that small service for us. We glance at an electric clock with no sense of the hour past or the hour to come. It is all Now.

The image of time as ticker tape is a useful one. We can start the day visualizing the blank tape already streaming out of the time machine. We must pick it up, let it feed through our fingers, remarking what is itemized on each minute of it, and, where blank spaces come, filling those spaces with something—even a finger mark. And at the day's end, we will see the great heap of tape piled in the waste basket, another day gone. How much of it was blank?

Garson Says RCMP Files For Emergency Use Only

Information contained in RCMP special branch files is for use primarily in times of war or national emergency and is not used to warn employers against hiring persons, Justice Minister Stuart Garson has stated.

three Victoria citizens following the firing of bookmobile director John Marshall, the minister said the library board "surely knows the source from which it secured the information . . in discharging Mr. Marshall."

The three Victoria men who wrote Mr. Garson are Rev. E. J. Staley, Rev. D. C. O'Connell, and former MLA for Saanich, Frank Snowsell.

They asked the minister for an investigation into reports that police information given the library board had resulted in the firing of Mr. Marshall.

"In the light of his statements, the situation is more serious than ever," said Mr. Snowsell yesterday after receiving the reply.

He said that two local businessmen had told him "it was common practice" for firms in Victoria to get information from the RCMP when hiring employees.

Mr. Garson said the federal government did not permit or condone the release of information from the RCMP's special branch files to private citizens.

USED FOR DEFENSE

"Information contained in . . the files is for use primarily in the defense of the country in the event of war or a national emergency," wrote Mr. Garson. "As a secondary purpose those files are used in order to see that government secrets and plans are protected.

"These files are not used in order to notify or warn school boards, library boards, private employers or the like against the employment of persons mentioned in those files.

ABUSES SEEN

"If such procedure were sanctioned or tolerated it would lead to all sorts of abuses—indeed to the very condition of which you complain . . . It might have a detrimental effect upon, it might in a word "smear" Mr. Marshall or any one else if I were to state or the RCMP were to state that his name appears in the files," the letter continued.

"I have therefore no intention of either admitting or denying the existence of any sort of a record of that type on Mr. Marshall," he concluded.

Mr. Snowsell said he would confer with the other two citizens who sent the original letter and would also send a copy of Mr. Garson's letter to M. J. Coldwell, leader of the CCF in the House of Commons.

Repeal of Old Liquor Law Gives Offender Clean Slate

PENTICTON (CP)—A legless resident convicted twice of selling liquor was saved from a jail term by the repeal of the old B.C. Liquor Act.

G. W. Sutherland, brought into court in a wheel chair, was given a suspended sentence and ordered to post $400 bond.

Evidence was that Sutherland sold to two persons who went to his home. His wife works to support their five small children.

He had a previous conviction of selling liquor, but under the old act.

Magistrate G. A. McLelland said that repeal of the act, in effect, "gave this man a new lease on life."

If the previous conviction had been noted, it would have meant a mandatory jail term.

Wing Kwai asked for the remand in order that he could make a scheduled appearance at a conference in Formosa called by Chinese Nationalist leader Chiang Kai-shek. Both Wing and Sue were remanded to May 14.

Haigh Proposes Mansion For Use of Pensioners

Junkman philanthropist Harry Haigh yesterday urged the people of Victoria to join him in a campaign to convert his Rockland mansion into a haven for pensioners.

He wants to move the folk from the Johnson Street cabins or some of them to Rockland Avenue when the cabins are demolished.

Mr. and Mrs. Haigh yesterday painted a word-picture of 35 poor pensioners living in individual rooms of his large house at the heart of the exclusive district where His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace and a number of other leading citizens have their homes.

ELECTRIC STOVE

Each room could have an electric stove, sink and small refrigerator. In the large hall a television set could be installed. The elderly tenants could watch it from armchairs.

They would pay a rent of $5 a month.

If the plan succeeds, other large homes could be converted to the same use, Mr. Haigh says.

Only one thing stands in the way—$25,000, or the lack of it.

"If everyone in town would kick in the price of a package of cigarettes, the thing could be done," Mr Haigh said yesterday.

He stated that he acquired the Rockland Avenue property with such a scheme in mind.

FIRST IDEA

"My first idea was to run it myself, but because of the interference of civic officials in my business, I haven't the capital now," he said.

So he seeks to turn the big house over to a citizens' committee. "I don't want to make any profit from the plan," he says.

"I have put $10,000 into the house, and there is $8,000 owing. You couldn't build anything like that place today for four times that amount."

Cost of making the 13 large rooms into 35, and adding extra equipment, including baths, would be some $7,000 he thinks.

Mr. Haigh says that several merchants have pledged money, goods and labor.

HAVE GARDENS

On Rockland Avenue the pensioners would have gardens to see and work in. They would be away from dangerous traffic.

Mrs. Haigh also had a word to say:

"In the city they're just huddled and pushed around like dogs, aren't they? Like mongrel dogs."

She said the $10 rent charged for Johnson Street cabins was "exploitation."

Another advantage of the Rockland site is that it is away from the liquor store. On Johnson Street this was an ever-present temptation, Mr. Haigh said.

He added that there would be no room at the Rockland Avenue place for determined drunks. Bed-ridden people could not be accommodated either.

LIGHT WORK

A caretaker could do light work there in exchange for free rent.

The radiant heating system would remove the fire-hazard danger which is present on Johnson Street.

Zoning? "The city council is only a small group. If we have 10,000 people behind this, what are they going do?"

Petition To Close Tuesday

Petitioners from the Greater Victoria Citizens Association will continue to circulate the petition, asking for a plebiscite on liquor outlets for Victoria, until Tuesday night, March 9, president Frank Hunter said yesterday.

The petition forms will be turned over to the government Wednesday morning. It had earlier been hoped that enough signatures would have been accumulated to end the petitioning Saturday.

Mr. Hunter said a meeting of canvass supervisors will be held today to determine the exact strength of the petition.

Rockies Trek Planned

TORONTO (CP)—Peter Bennett, 40, of nearby Oakville, said Friday he is organizing an expedition of seven men and a woman that will set out for Jasper, Alberta, March 28 to attempt a 200-mile journey over the highest ridge of the Rockies.

The expedition hopes to make the first crossing of the eight large icefields on the Alberta-British Columbia border.

The 1954 Canadian icefields ski expedition will test under rugged conditions at high altitudes, items of food, new diet theories, and lightweight equipment for the defense research medical laboratories.

The woman in the expedition is Peggy Austin of Ancaster, Ont., 35-year-old mother of two. As Peggy Johannsen, she was Canadian women's ski champion in 1937. Her husband, Peter Austin, a tobacco company director, also is on the team.

Cigarette on Trial — Doctor's Viewpoint

Filter Tips May Help Against Cancer

This is the third article in a thought-provoking series on the relationship of smoking to lung cancer. The Daily Colonist carries this column through the courtesy of the British Columbia Medical Association. Each contributor is an expert in the particular medical aspect discussed, but professional ethics dictate that he remain anonymous.

Cancer of the lung ranks well down the list in curability. X-radiation is of only limited value and, while the modern surgical attack is imaginative and radical, the melancholy fact is that rather less than 5 per cent of primary lung cancers are being cured today. There is no prospect of real improvement until a definitive cure for cancer is discovered. This may lie many years ahead, and in the meantime we had better not neglect a single promising avenue of prevention.

Our primary task, to judge from the evidence, is to get certain tars out of cigarette smoke. It might be simpler if we all stopped smoking, but there is not the slightest prospect that any appreciable segment of smokers will be shaken by the news about lung cancer. Dr. Frank Lahey, noted, not long before his recent death, that he had spent a good deal of his long life warning patients with peptic ulcer to stop smoking. "And," he added, "in all that time, I can think of a dozen or so who took my advice."

WON'T STOP

The man who will endure the gnawing misery of a duodenal ulcer rather than give up his beloved cigarette is not likely to be intimidated by mere statistics. Heart specialists tell the same story; the veteran smoker goes on smoking in the face of a flat warning that he is risking a second, this time perhaps a fatal, heart attack.

We can take it, then, that the problem is not likely to be solved by a general flight from the smoking habit. In one way or another we must manage to stop tobacco tars from reaching the respiratory tracts of the 80 per cent who smoke. There are, broadly speaking, two ways in which this may be possible.

The first method involves treatment of the tobacco itself to remove the tars. Tobacco so treated must inevitably be reduced to powder and could hardly be expected to smell or taste much like the tobacco we know today. This is not necessarily to say that cigarettes made from treated tobacco could not be sold. Coffee has been fractionated to remove caffeine and the company that vends the resulting powder has been doing very well for a long time.

FILTERS INCREASE

The second method is filtration of the smoke. Filter-tipped cigarettes have been on the market for a long time, but for some reason have not managed to approach the non-filtered brands in popularity, even though the tobacco used may be precisely the same. Presumably the veteran smoker misses the bite of his accustomed brand. It is, of course, this bite that may have been doing him harm. However, filter-tipped brands are now selling briskly in the United States and sales of filter-equipped holders have skyrocketed in the past few months.

In the long run the solution rests in the lap of current and future research. Much of the research now going on and there is a good deal of it — is aimed at evolution of a filter that will arrest all but the irreducible minimum of tar and other toxic combustion products from cigarette smoke. Modern technology ought to be up to the job; after all, the filter used by Drs. Graham and Wynder removed enough tar to produce cancer when applied to the skin of mice. If as much as 90 per cent of tar can be filtered out, the moderate smoker should run little greater risk of lung cancer than his non-smoking brother. Non-smokers do, after all, develop cancer of the lung.

The matter has been thought serious enough to be brought up twice in the British House of Commons. It has not yet, to our knowledge, given rise to debate in the Canadian Commons or in the United States Congress.

It is likely, though, to be on the agenda in each capital any day now. Tuberculosis is considered serious enough to warrant an extensive and costly separate health service in each country—and lung cancer as causing a great deal more illness and many more fatalities each year than tuberculosis.

No modern government could view with anything but horror a proposal to bar the cigarette from public sale. Experience with prohibition of liquor has not been calculated to raise much optimism that it could be done at all. The cigarette, too, is one of the financial mainstays of all governments in the western world today. The face of our society would literally be changed if we all stopped smoking tomorrow.

CRITICS HEARD

However, no government can for long endure the position of permitting or abetting the sale of a product known to be a menace to the public health. A chorus of criticism has already begun to rise from both the medical and the lay press on both sides of the Atlantic. The New England Medical Journal, an old and respected publication, recently inquired in a sharp editorial as to why no legislative action had been taken in the matter. The Journal pointed out that a food contaminant, known to be equally dangerous, would bring prompt prosecution to those who offered it for sale.

While we wait for treatment of tobacco or filtration of its smoke to diminish the menace, there are a few things we can do for ourselves. It is probable that no smoker ought to exceed 10 cigarettes a day. That seems to be about the danger level. It has been predicted that all cigarettes will be equipped with filters within the year; we might speed the process by changing to filter-tipped brands now.

And our young people, who have not yet learned to smoke, or who smoke only intermittently, should be told, through every possible medium, that the smoking habit involves a very serious risk to health as matters now stand.

Winnipeg Coach

Favored Entry Runs Out of Money As By Zeus Takes $100,000 Race

BY ALEX KAHN

ARCADIA, Calif. (UP)—By Zeus, film star Jane Greer's horse, raced to a surprise four-length victory Saturday in the $119,200 San Juan Capistrano Handicap at Santa Anita, world's richest race over a grass course.

The son of Count Fleet raced the mile and a half in 2:26, a new American record for the distance although the Santa Anita course is downhill for the first half mile.

REJECTED SECOND

Behind By Zeus but not any where near catching the winner came Rejected, winner of last week's Santa Anita Handicap. Although owned by different interests, By Zeus and Rejected raced as an entry, both being trained by W. J. (Buddy) Hirsch. Lucrative was third and Nearque II was fourth in the field of 16 starters.

The Hirsch-trained entry paid $6.70 to win and $8.00 to place with $3.50 for show. Lucrative paid the fat price of $20.40 to show.

The heavily-favored Alberto Ranches entry of Thirteen of Diamonds, Indian Hemp and [illegible] of the money and Thirteen of Diamonds finished dead last in the race.

By Zeus had never raced on the grass course and his only previous stakes victory was over a muddy course in the San Fernando Stakes. But the son of Count Fleet demonstrated his liking for the grass by closing like wind on the backstretch of the infield course and then pulling away under a great ride by Jockey Ray York.

TWO SECONDS

It was York's second victory at the meeting in a $100,000 race. He won the Derby here with Determine. It was trainer Hirsch's second $100,000 victory on consecutive week ends. His Rejected scored in last Saturday's big handicap and then finished second today.

The world's record as well as the American record for a mile and a half on grass was 2:28 1-5, a mark from which By Zeus ran nearly three seconds.

Santa Anita claims no records for marks set on the grass course because of its downhill start and there are no official world's marks, according to the Daily Racing Form, the turf's authority on such matters. But the Racing Form said that any mark set at Santa Anita would be listed by it as an American record which also would stand for a world mark even though none are kept for the grass.

The largest crowd of the season, 61,109 racing fans, turned out for today's final program of the 50-day Santa Anita meeting. The crowd installed the Alberta Ranches' entry as the favorite and made the Hirsch-trained entry second choice at slightly more than two to one. But it expected Rejected to be the big horse, not By Zeus.

RIGHT DECISION

As a matter of fact both Hirsch and Miss Greer, who is Mrs. Ed Lasker in private life, were undecided about starting By Zeus in the race until today even though he had been entered. The colt ran seventh in last week's race after having been second in the $100,000 Santa Anita Maturity.

But the decision to run him was worth $73,100 to Miss Greer and added to his previous earnings of $67,600. It boosted him over the $100,000 mark in winnings in two seasons.

Landy Coasts To Easy Win

MELBOURNE, Australia (AAP)—Australian champion Miller John Landy just "coasted" to win his interclub series—mile final at Olympic Park Saturday in 4:07.9 minutes.

This was a follow-up to his time of 4:05.9 at a twilight meeting last Thursday.

Landy, who obviously was not chasing the world record time, led throughout to win by 200 yards.

Nanaimo Hockey League Continues Playoff Action

Island Rads of Nanaimo will be seeking their second successive victory over league-winning Ladysmith on Nanaimo Civic Arena ice at 6 p.m. today when the teams clash in the second game of their best-of-three Vancouver Island Suburban Hockey League semi-final playoff.

In the other semi-final game scheduled today, second-place Port Alberni will meet Lake Cowichan Bruins, who finished in the regular schedule in fourth position. The teams battled to a 4-4 tie in their opening game last Sunday while Rads edged the league champions, 5-4.

Third games in the semi-finals are scheduled for next Sunday with the winners due to commence their series for the play-off championship and possession of the Colonist Cup on March 21.

WON SCORING TITLE

Al Babchuk of Ladysmith, who picked up 56 points on 23 goals and the league high of 33 assists, won the league scoring championship. Another Ladysmith sniper, J. Wingert, captured goal-scoring honors as he fired home 34 goals and added 13 assists to take second place in the scoring race.

Port Alberni's D. Rispin and D. Bertrand of Ladysmith finished in a tie for third place, each with 36 points. Al Wais of Port Alberni was fourth with 31 points, defenseman R. Ketchineski of Rads finished fifth with 29 points.

Haas Retains Stroke Lead; Douglas Next

HOUSTON (AP)—A 12-foot putt on the 17th green enabled Freddie Haas to hold off a challenge from Dave Douglas and retain his one stroke lead in the $30,000 Houston Open Saturday.

Haas scored his second straight 71 to go with his opening round 68 to enter Sunday's final 18 holes with a seven-under-par 209.

Douglas, a native Texan now playing out of Grossinger, N.Y., took birdies on the two final holes for a 69 and a 210 total.

Ted Kroll, New Hartford, N.Y., turned in the day's best round to tie for third place at 211. He had a four-under 68 for the 7,200-yard Memorial Park course.

Grouped with Kroll were Ed Oliver, Palm Springs, Calif.; Shelley Mayfield, Cheyenne, Mass., and Cary Middlecoff, the defending champion from Memphis, Tenn.

Albion Boosts Hopes of Double; League Lead Now at Three Points

LONDON (Reuters)—West Bromwich Albion, the favorite to win both the English Soccer League's Division I championship and the prized FA Cup, was held to a 2-2 tie Saturday by lowly Sheffield United, but increased its lead to three points.

Second-place Wolverhampton Wanderers lost valuable ground, dropping a 1-0 decision to Manchester while Huddersfield moved to within four points of the runner-up position by trimming Liverpool, 3-1.

Middlesbrough, a likely candidate for relegation, could only gain a 3-3 draw at home against Chelsea despite the expenditure of more than £10,000 sterling ($28,000) on new players last week.

PLAYS 500TH GAME

Sam Barram, 40-year-old Charlton goalkeeper, celebrated his 500th club appearance with a brilliant display that helped his team to a 3-1 home victory over Portsmouth. Barram has been a regular first team Charlton player for nearly 20 years and his 500 appearances for one club is a unique British soccer record.

In Division II, Leicester and Everton failed to break their first-place deadlock, scoring identical 2-0 victories over Bury and Swansea respectively. Blackburn Rovers remained two points behind the co-leaders by edging Fulham, 3-2.

Port Vale downed Tranmere, 3-1, to reach 50 points at the head of Division III (Northern) highest point total in the four English divisions. In the Southern section, Brighton dropped a 1-0 decision to Newport but still leads the league by one point. Second place Ipswich lost to Aldershot, 3-0.

Hearts lead in the Scottish League "A" Division was narrowed to five points after the team was defeated 4-2 by Raith Rovers.

Coach Andrews Gives Instructions

A tense Victoria High School Totem bench watches Coach Porky Andrews lay out strategy to first-string team during second-quarter time out in last night's Vancouver Island high school basketball championship final at Victoria High School gym. At this point, Esquimalt High Dockers were pressing but Totems took to floor to pull away and bring Victoria High its first Island championship and Colonist Cup in four-year history of tourney. Crowded around Andrews are, left to right, Buddy Rutherford, Tom English, Waldo Skillings, Ed Pederson and Chummy Crabbe (52). On bench are, left to right, Ed Kowalyk, Den Perry, Gary Fletcher, Ken McCullough, Bill Abbott, Art Chiko and Bob Tomlinson.

Vic High Captures Colonist Cup By Defeating Esquimalt, 39-30

BY IAN GLENDAY

Victoria High Totems, a team rich in bench strength and strong in spirit, last night brought the city institution its first Vancouver Island high school basketball championship in the four-year history of the two-day tournament.

Breaking away for an early lead and never looking back, although seeing their lead reduced to seven points twice in the final two quarters, Porky Andrews' well-drilled Totems trimmed Bill Reid's Dockers, 39-30, in a tight defensive battle before a packed house of frenzied students at Victoria High School gym.

Esquimalt had proven the "giant-killers" of the tourney, knocking off defending champion Alberni High School, 43-42 Friday night in what was probably the best game of the 12 games played from a fan's view point. It was Alberni's first defeat in 11 tournament starts and knocked them out of the running in their bid for their fourth successive Colonist Cup emblematic of Island high school basketball supremacy.

TEAM BALANCE

Victoria High, which had come out second best to Alberni in each of the three previous finals, showed a better balanced team this year and, although the Dockers put up a strong tussle, they couldn't catch the Totems at any one point.

H. L. Smith, Victoria High School principal, presented co-captains Ed Pederson and Chummy Crabbe with the Colonist Cup at the completion of the tournament amid wild cheering from student supporters. Andrew was mobbed by his jubilant players and was obviously pleased at making up for the failures of the past three years.

Sparked by the outstanding floor play of little Chummy Crabbe and Ed Pederson, lanky centre, Totems gained their victory mainly on the strength of a brilliant first period.

It was 18-9 for Victoria High [illegible] after the winners had built up a 17-5 lead. Totems held a 26-16 bulge at the half.

GRITTY DISPLAY

Esquimalt, which certainly wasn't disgraced by the defeat and won the plaudits of the spectators with a gritty display, held Totems on even terms in the third session and outscored the winners by two points in the final frame but couldn't make up the early deficit.

Crabbe, smallest player on the floor, made up for his lack of size with some slick ball-handling, rebound grabbing and leadership on the floor as well as pacing both teams with 16 points. Pederson was a tower of strength under both hoops, potting 10 points.

Gary Gilbert turned in an outstanding game for the losers at guard and Chuck Bennett, a steady performer throughout the series, topped the losers with 11 points.

ALBERNI THIRD

Alberni took third place and clinched a trip to the B.C. championships at Vancouver, March 17-20, along with the two top teams by trimming a hustling Courtenay team, 57-45, to drop the losers into fifth place.

Mount View earned fourth place by nipping Oak Bay High, 30-28, in a thriller, scoring four of the five points in a defensive final quarter. Oak Bay's defeat gave them a sixth-place finish.

In the battle for seventh and eighth positions, Cowichan High of Duncan trounced Lake Cowichan, 53-39.

Esquimalt set the only record in the tournament, counting 43 times from the foul strip to break the old mark of 35 set by Alberni last year.

Lineups follow:

Cowichan: Bill Auchinachi 28, John Stewart, Tom Little 8, Hugh Williams 4, Jim McDonald 16, Hahlan Rawe, Lanie Evans 2, Robert Bresse-Potts 3, Walter Jung 2. Total—53.

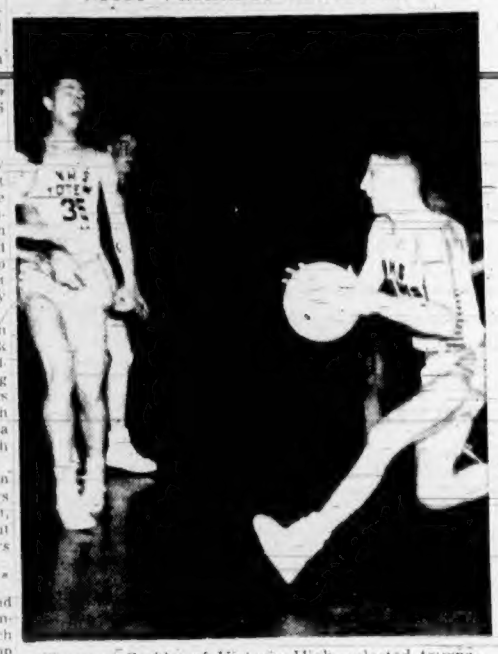
Most Valuable in Action



Chummy Crabbe of Victoria High, selected tournament's most valuable player and named to berth on first all-star team, gets a break from close-checking Esquimalt quintet in tense final for Colonist Cup at Victoria High gym last night. Waldo Skillings (35) is being watched closely by unidentified Esquimalt player, while Joe Patterson of Dockers moves up from behind. Other players in picture are Tom English of Totems (24) and Ed Pederson (extreme right).

BY IAN MACDONALD

Seattle Bombers and Victoria Cougars are natural successors to Tweedledum and Tweedledee. When they're good they're good, but when they're bad, man oh man!

Last night in Victoria Bombers were very good. Victoria? Well, they were decisively whomped, 4-2.

A listless performance saw Cougars remain in fifth place in the league standings, fall behind Edmonton. Three points for Fielder has 79 points and Brown fourth spot, and as good as kiss good-by any chance of coming in third.

Their six-game winning streak on home ice came to an end, and it was their second loss in eight starts. The game was originally a Seattle scheduling. It was later set for Nanaimo, but wound up here.

Cougars kept high-flying Seattle snipers Guyle Fielder and Wayne Brown pointless as the league scoring leaders failed two nights in a row to connect.

Additional Sport Pages 7, 9 and 10

Their six-game winning streak on home ice came to an end, and upon holding down these two it was unfortunate the other Bomber forwards picked up eight points, and the defense two. The visitors iced only 12 men, but they outplayed Cougars in every phase of the game, although outshot 30-21.

FILION LEADS

Chief trigger-man for Bombers was lanky centreman Rudy Filion, who picked up two neat goals and an assist.

Cougars started out fast but it didn't last too long, Seattle's Marcel Pelletier handled a lot of rubber in the opening minutes. He didn't look too good on Cougars' opening goal, but barred the door from then until late in the third period.

Alex Kuzma took a pass at 3:20 in the first to slide the disc between Pelletier's legs. Ross Lowe and Sam Bettio assisted.

PENALTY BACKFIRES

When Mark Marquess got thumbed for hooking, Victoria turned on the steam and it looked bad for the visitors. But it was Filion who intercepted a pass back to the blue line to give Evans no chance with a corner drive at 12:51. Less than four minutes later he put Seattle in front from a Marquess-Vic Lofvendahl play.

Joe Bell notched a brace in the second session within the opening eight minutes. One he backhanded into the nets past the helpless Claude Evans with the Cougars' defense hopelessly lost.

Bettio got Victoria's lone counter at 16:17 in the final frame with a long screened shot, Dorohoy getting the assist.

Billy Reay set an enthusiastic example his forwards couldn't copy. Sam Lavitt and Walt Cline were sound on defense. Though held scoreless, Fielder and Brown were always dangerous, while second-stringers Filion and Marquess notched the lion's share of points.

Eilers Knot Series—Nip Athletics, 59-58

ALBERNI (CP)—Vancouver Eilers deadlocked the best-of-seven basketball playoff for the British Columbia senior "A" men's championship at one game each as they came back at Alberni Athletic Hall Saturday night to edge Alberni Athletics in a 59-58 thriller.

Rallying after their surprise 72-53 defeat at the hands of the A's Friday night, the determined Vancouverites looked like a new ball club as they baffled Alberni with a tenacious zone defense and worked their big pivotman, Bob Pickel.

PICKEL GETS 38

Pickel, held to 11 points Friday, recovered his scoring touch as he broke loose for 38 points, all from close range as his mates fed him passes at every opportunity.

The visitors wasted little time forging into a commanding lead and probably won the game with their driving first-quarter as they moved ahead, 17-8. Eilers' margin was sliced to 33-26 at the half and it was 48-42 for the Vancouver club going into the final quarter.

The capacity crowd all but shook the roof loose as Alberni's fighting rally finally tied the count at 55-55. Pickel dropped in a field goal and Eilers led, 57-55. Veteran Harry Kermode had a chance to knot the score again but counted only one of two free throws before Normie Watt tossed in Eilers' final basket to make Elmer Speidel's last Alberni basket one point short of forcing overtime.

Eilers held control of the ball in the final seconds as they assured their thrilling victory.

Pickel was a standout with his 38 points while Alberni's best was again coach Speidel, who tallied 16 points although missing a greater percentage of shots than usual. Harry Kermode also turned in a fine performance for the A's, netting 13 points.

The series will continue at Vancouver Friday and Saturday with the fifth game also scheduled on the mainland the following Monday.

Lineups follow:

Alberni: Brown 11, Speidel 16, Samarzich 9, Reinham 8, Kermode 13, Williamson, Gray, Veitch, Mowell, Grindale. Total—58.

Eilers: Mitchell 4, Watt 6, Pickel 38, Munro 6, Moore 3, Hingsmarch, Wetherspoon, Bell 2, Forsythe, Chapman, Manning, Matthews. Total—59.

Crabbe Voted Trophy In High School Meet

Edwin "Chummy" Crabbe, pint-sized guard of Victoria High Totems, newly-crowned Vancouver Island high school basketball champions, was named the outstanding player of the two-day tourney by a panel of five judges at Victoria High School gym last night.

The hustling, two-way player, who seems to do everything well despite his smallish stature, becomes the fourth holder of the Times Trophy and was a unanimous choice for the award.

Crabbe was one of three Victoria High players who were selected to the first-string all-star team. Buddy Rutherford, who played steadily and sometimes brilliantly, was chosen to a forward berth and lanky centre Ed Pederson, playing despite a badly-bruised leg, was named centre.

Rounding out the first team were Garry Gilbert, Esquimalt's brilliant playmaker at a guard position, and Dave Price of Alberni, who played in the bucket during the tournament.

CHUMMY CRABBE

Two Alberni players, two from Courtenay High School and one from Esquimalt were selected to the second team. Mike Lowry of Esquimalt was named to the centre berth and Skip Montgomery, one of the hardest-working players in the tourney, and Ray Gaillous of Alberni were selected as forwards.

Guards were Wayne Bryan of Courtenay and Gerry Knowles of Alberni.

Selection committee was composed of Laurie Wallace, Bob Whyte, Chuck Chapman, Denny Boyd (Times) and Ian Glenday (Colonist).

PARKSVILLE CLUB MEETS

PARKSVILLE — The annual meeting of the Parksville Fish and Game Association will be held at the Parksville Community Hall Tuesday night at 8 p.m.

Included on the agenda will be the election of officers for this year.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

Victoria Shamrocks won't have either Freddie Fulla or Spud Morelli this season. Both had been rumored as extremely interested in lining up with the city's Inter-City Lacrosse League entry but it's said they have decided to remain with Nanaimo Native Sons, who could be the team to beat this year . . . Before Friday night's game at Vancouver, in which he was held pointless, Seattle's Guyle Fielder had picked up 42 points in his last 17 games for what must be some sort of a record. The splurge also may have assured him of all-star selection but Victoria's Ed Dorohoy deserves the first-string centre berth just as much. And Sam Lavitt is another Cougar who should get plenty of support when balloting time comes around . . . Whether or not he's not happy with his present surroundings, the fact remains that lackadaisical play has almost certainly cost defenseman Pete Durham of the New Westminster Royals an all-star WHL defense post. Durham was a star in the first half of the season but has done nothing worth mentioning since . . . Bobby Riggs, who once promoted professional tennis tours, is reportedly making so much money betting on his golfing ability in private matches that he turned down a chance to "get" Frank Sedgman, who hasn't been nearly as prominent as a pro as he was when he was Australia's Davis Cup star . . . Most faithful baseball fan in Victoria must be Bert Buller, who made two special trips to the office yesterday to try and get the score of the first exhibition game played by Philadelphia Athletics, who loom as a good eighth-place bet in the American League . . . Father Time appears to have caught up with quite a number of major league pitching veterans this year. Among those who won't be tossing them up any more are such as Walt Masterson, Satchell Paige, Max Lanier, Lou Brissie, Harry Brecheen and Johnny Sain. Of course, several may change their minds or turn up in the minors.

Tyees Shaping Up

Victoria Tyees are busy lining up their team and it appears as if they should be pretty well set by opening day. They expect to have no outfield troubles, appear to have any infield and catching problems well in hand, and are working on their pitching.

Manager Don Pries, who arrives to take over his new job Wednesday, will likely play first base, and Steve Mesner will be at third base. Either Ray Hamrick, formerly with Oakland or Ron Jackson, who played with Charleston in the class "A" South Atlantic League, looms as the second baseman.

Two other ex-Coast League veterans, Del Ballinger and Harry Eastwood, are being considered as possible catchers, and if need arises, the Tyees could probably also get Dain Clay, former Cincinnati and San Diego outfielder. That leaves some holes to be plugged but Pries has several players he feels can help the club, there is still any help Portland Beavers might be able to send, and there are several deals in the making.

* * *

Congratulations to Victoria's Kinsmen Club for the fine basketball show they sponsored last week and to city sports fans for turning out in such numbers. They must have ensured that the Kinsmen will continue to sponsor the city's senior men's team next season . . . Vancouver Lions didn't hurt themselves one bit when they signed Andy Hillhouse, rough, tough and big Texas end, who should turn out to be a key man . . . Vancouver's Fred Brown, who hit the back of his head on the ice in a tussle with Sam Bettio on February 23, is through for the season. Although it was a harmless-looking difference of opinion, Brown was seriously hurt . . . Cougars played host to a group of old-age pensioners Friday night and last night had pee-wee hockey players as their guests at Memorial Arena . . . The wrestlers are getting better and better, it seems. They put on such a realistic show Thursday night at Victoria Ballroom that Doug Fletcher, member of the commission which governs boxing and wrestling in the city, stopped a bout. Which should prove that a commission was needed after all . . . Overlooked at the time but still worth a mention is the fact that Victoria's mayor didn't bother to send any congratulatory message to the Cougar centre when Ed Dorohoy had his "night." But there were messages from the mayor of Medicine Hat and the MLA representing Eddie's old home town. I suppose the man in the cape was afraid it would be made public . . . Don Carter, veteran righthander once with Tacoma, has been signed by the Yakima Bears . . . Baseball interest was at such a low ebb in Norfolk of the class "B" Piedmont League, that season's tickets have been offered for sale at $10. This may or may not help this season but it's hardly likely to do more than stall things off. Cheapening your product to that extent only makes it harder to sell.

* * *

Royals and Flyers Keep League's Leaders in Tie

New Westminster Royals and Edmonton Flyers kept Vancouver Canucks and Calgary Stampeders tied for the Western Hockey League lead last night.

Canucks ran afoul of a New Westminster club which rebounded from an 8-1 trouncing at Victoria Friday to hand out a 6-3 defeat. And the Stamps found Edmonton goalie Glen Hall in brilliant form at Calgary as they went down 4-2.

Results left Canucks, with a game in hand, tied with Stamps at 77 points, boosted Flyers three points ahead of the fifth place Victoria Cougars and place Saskatoon Quakers, and moved Royals within four points of the Cougars and within three points of mathematically eliminating Seattle Bombers from playdowns.

Smallest crowd in some years to watch Royals and Canucks in their cross-town rivalry saw a speedy, hard-checking game. Blinky Boyce got two goals for the winners while Max McNab got a goal and two assists.

A crowd of 7,200 watched the Flyers win despite a wide edge in play as Hall came up with a terrific night in the Edmonton goal. The big fellow got in front of 39 shots, most of them dangerous, while Calgary goalie Bill Brennan had only 18 shots directed his way.

Two Rinks Reach Finals In Cowichan Club 'Spiel

Play was running behind schedule yesterday at Duncan in the annual Cowichan Curling Club bonspiel but two rinks had reached the finals in the two main events, four others were in the semi-finals and semi-finals had been reached in the secondary events.

HARPER UNDEFEATED

Duncan's Glen Harper, surprise of the bonspiel, wound up play as the only undefeated rink. He added three more victories to his total yesterday and has won seven straight. Harper was in the final of the Wright Trophy and the semi-finals of the Wadsworth and had qualified for the Grand Challenge, which is for rinks which reach the finals in the other four trophies.

Three rinks lost their first games yesterday. Victoria's Eric Bullock and Nanaimo's Bob Fuller took turns knocking each other from the undefeated ranks. Fuller ousted Bullock from the Wadsworth event with a 9-7 win but the Victoria rink came right back to score a 12-6 victory in the eights of the Wright Trophy. Vancouver's L. C. Cooper lost his first game, Glen Harper taking care of this one himself with an 11-5 win in the Wright competition.

LATE DRAW

Going into last night's late draw, Marshall and Bullock had reached the semi-final of the Wright Trophy and will play off to decide who meets Harper in the final. In the Wadsworth Trophy, Harper and Duncan's Tony Folk will play a semi-final to decide who will meet Duncan's Charlie Strouger in the final.

VICTORIANS WIN

In the Cushnaugh-Riverside event, secondary to the Wright Trophy, Bill Dunstan and Gordie Robertson of Victoria had reached the semi-finals along with Tony Scheppert of Duncan, Jack Coates of Parksville and Dr. K. Moysey of Victoria were in the eights.

Latest returns on the Cowichan Trophy, secondary to the Wadsworth, showed Scheppert, Russ Annett of Nanaimo, George Watson of Alberni and Barkley brothers of Duncan in the eights.

Already qualified for the Grand Challenge were Glen Harper, Marshall, Bullock, Walkey, Strouger, Folk, Fuller, Scheppert, Robertson, Dunstan and the winner of the Moysey-Coates game.

Nanaimo Juniors Island Champions

NANAIMO — Striking for three unanswered goals in the third period Nanaimo defeated Victoria, 4-2, at Nanaimo Civic Arena here tonight to win the two-game, total-goal series for the Vancouver Island junior hockey championship, 10-4.

The winners took a one-goal lead in the first period on Ron Faganello's goal, went behind, 2-1, as John Makowsky rapped in a pair of quick tallies in the second period, then won it with their last-period surge.

Nanaimo, 6-2 victor at Victoria in the opening game of the series, now meets Kerrisdale for the Coast championship with the winning team scheduled to play the Interior champions at Trail for the B.C. crown.

In the first game of the three-game program, Nanaimo bantams jumped into the lead in a two-game series for Island championship as they downed Victoria, 6-2.

Victoria midgets captured the Island championship in their division as they skated to a 7-1 triumph in a sudden-death contest.

Dale Dalzell, John Wilson and Garraway each scored twice for Victoria with Bob Large adding the winners' other tally.

At the TACKLE BOX

BY JIM TANG

Fair fishing appears to be in store for anglers this week end if the weather continues to remain good with encouraging reports for both tidal and non-tidal waters.

In Saanich Inlet, the area from McKenzie Bay to Hall's produced yesterday with no less than 12 fishermen limiting before 3 in the afternoon in one of the best days of the season.

Ernie Brachat, Ray Rickinson, D. Lam, Ed Fong, A. Jones, P. Buckley, D. Wallace, R. Montfield, Bill Wigmore, J. J. Puhach, E. Loughlan and Charlie Panting all had their limit of 10 blue backs in comparatively short order. Harold Ogden picked up a nine-pound steelhead on a bucktail fly.

Most of the blues were hooked on bucktails, with the blue and white and green and white the best colors. Several also scored heavily with Kam Lures, always a good bet at this time of the year. Most blues are being taken close to the surface with flies, of course, trolled without weight and few using more than two or four ounces for other lures.

Fishing in the Brentwood area has been fair during the past week but wasn't too good yesterday with boats averaging only one or two fish. A lot of fish were showing but they were scattered. Best area was from Whittaker's Point to McKenzie Bay and from the bay to the Stone House, which is getting away from Brentwood. Only a scattered few were reported taken on flies with Kam Lures and Tom Mack spoons proving the best bet. The run of winter springs which was around about a week ago appears to have disappeared.

* * *

Meanwhile, some excellent fishing has been enjoyed by a few in waters between the mouth of Bowker Creek and Mary Tod Island, just off Oak Bay Boathouse. Tom McKeachie caught a 17-pound winter spring a week ago yesterday, followed up with a 13½-pounder on Wednesday, and lost a bigger one. And he shared a Thursday catch of 17 and eight-pounders with Tom Harper. Bill Howard and Frank Bruce also connected Thursday, boating a 16½-pounder. All were taken on Rhys Davis' Strip-Teaser, used with a herring dodger right on the surface and trolled slowly. All were caught between 6 and 7 in the evening.

* * *

For the fresh-water angler who doesn't want to get too far away from home, the headwaters of the Cowichan River appear to be as good a bet as any for trout. Guide Art Hancock and Mrs. Hancock had little trouble getting a creelful Friday morning and a party guided by Hancock had 15 before 11.30 yesterday morning. The parmachene hackle fly and the small cherry bobber were getting results. Hancock reported that the river was dropping steadily and the water clearing and that conditions should be almost perfect within a day or two if there is no change in the weather. Cowichan steelheading is almost over although one of Hancock's party beached one yesterday.

Shawnigan and Dougan's Lakes have been yielding fish and Kemp is expected to become a steady producer with improved weather. Flies, small spoons, the small orange flatfish and spinner and worm are all recommended lures with a trolled orange-bodied fly perhaps the best of all.

Among successful anglers were Rod Smith, who took six trout on a dry fly in Shawnigan, and Johnny Wenger, who netted six out of Dougan's while using a No. 1 Stewart spoon.

Farther north, trout fishing hasn't been good in rivers in the Qualicum Beach area but the Little and Big Qualicum and Englishman's Rivers are still good for steelhead. One of the biggest fell to the lure of Jack Dougan, a 17-pounder. J. K. Simpson beached one in the Little Qualicum yesterday morning and lost another. He was using a gob fly, which has been proving a good lure.

Morning Catch on the Cowichan

Although water conditions in Vancouver Island's streams and rivers are still considered rather high for good trout fishing, guide Art Hancock and his wife teamed up at head of Cowichan River Friday morning and reeled in pictured beauties, biggest of which weighed close to three pounds. Trout were taken on Parmachene Hackle fly rolled along river bottom.

Civil Service Advances In Jackson Cup Soccer

BY IAN MACDONALD

Esquimalt bowed out of the Jackson Cup when they lost a closely contested 2-1 decision to Civil Service at Royal Athletic [illegible] afternoon.

A small crowd of about 300 watched the two top clubs in the Victoria and District Football Association play 90 minutes of hard, if not particularly inspired football.

The boot could have been on the other foot if Esquimalt had had a forward with enough know-how to put the ball in the net.

Service had the edge in territorial play in the first half, which finished with one goal each.

LACK FINISH

Esquimalt took the initiative after the whistle, but good foraging attacks by wingers Blevins and Stewart were nullified by inept finishing by the inside trio.

Blevins, perhaps the best player on the field, was further handicapped by the fact that his rearguard men kept feeding him the ball in the air, where the diminutive winger had no chance against the lanky Bamford, Service left-half.

A smart piece of opportunism gave Service the winner. Esquimalt defense was mostly caught upfield by a long clearance. McIntyre fastened onto the ball, passed to Constable, who teed it up for Allen to slide past the hapless 'keeper at the 70-minute mark.

FIRST GOALS

Esquimalt drew first blood within 15 minutes of the start, when Barnes headed home a two-way heading play from Ed Young. Seven minutes later Civil Service tied it up. Clarke gave it to the unmarked Constable in front of the net, and he had no trouble sliding it past Pedneault.

Play on both sides was on the wings, but the other forwards could not capitalize. At times, play was of the kick-and-rush variety, with positioning at a premium. Both sides made full use of their spares. Esquimalt in the last few minutes as they strove for the equalizer, and Service as they hung on to their slim lead.

Bamford, Clarke and Allen were best for the winners, while Blevins, Stewart and Unwin tried all the time for Esquimalt.

Line-ups:

Civil Service—McMillan, Ingham and Bamford; Clarke, Wilcock and R. Henmore; Thomson, Constable, McIntyre, Allen and Blair. Spares—Hendry, I. Helmore and Wilson.

Esquimalt—Pedneault, Unwin and Barnes; Waspin, Underwood and A. Young; Blevins, Webster, Barnes, E. Young and Stewart. Spares—Duncan, Aitkens, Sage, Hatcher and Allan. Referee—Ed Bell.

Maker Claims New Golf Ball Adds 10 Yards

NEW YORK (AP) — Now they're applying aerodynamic principles to make your golf ball drives fly farther.

One golf ball manufacturer has come out with a "diamond" cover marking, in place of the usual round or square dimples, and promises it will add at least 10 yards to any golfer's drives and that some will get a lot more distance.

This marking, said John Sproul, sales manager of golf balls for the United States Rubber Co., was developed by engineers "who applied the principles of aerodynamics to get greater lift and carry." The company's tests, he says, have shown that the new cover design makes the ball stay in the air almost a quarter of a second longer.

Rich Stakes To Long Shot

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — T. P. Morgan's Grover B. a 24-1 shot, took an early lead Saturday to stage an amazing upset in the $66,000 New Orleans Handicap at the Fairgrounds.

Grover B extended his lead to five lengths in the backstretch and hung on gamely to outlast Smoke Screen's late threat by two lengths. Capeador, half of the favored Brookemeade Stable entry, was third.

Grover B returned his scattered backers $51.40, $21.80 and $9. Smoke Screen paid $11.40 and $5.20, while Capeador, a nine-to-five favorite with stablemate First Aid, returned $3.80.

SUNDAY'S GAMES

Germany vs. Sunday
Canada vs. Russia

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Canada, unbeaten and untied, and Russia, tied once in six previous starts, meet today (Sunday) in the final game of the world hockey tournament with the title at stake.

A tie is all Toronto East York needs to win the 16th Canadian championship in 21 tournaments. But the capacity crowd of more than 17,000 fans expected to pack Stockholm's Olympic Stadium will be looking for a clear-cut decision to settle all arguments.

NEWCOMERS

The Russians, who took up ice hockey only eight years ago, are making their debut in world competition. Their tournament record is topped by a 5-2 victory over Czechoslovakia, the last country to and coaches have made no beat Canada for the championship in 1949.

A 1-1 tie against Sweden Friday has been the only interruption in Moscow Dynamos' winning streak. The Swedes went on to beat Czechoslovakia 4-2 today to assure themselves of no worse than a third-place finish. Their only defeat was an 8-0 drubbing at the hands of East York earlier in the eight-team round-robin series.

The Czechs, who also lost to Canada 3-2, finished their schedule in fourth place with four victories and three defeats.

East York, a senior 'B' club which suffered considerable criticism at home and abroad during its exhibition tour because of its comparatively low calibre, was bolstered shortly before the start of the tournament by four men with experience of senior 'A' classification or higher.

One of the newcomers, goalie Don Lockhart, was hailed as the greatest net minder ever to appear in Sweden as he compiled a record of five goals scored against him in six games.

HOSTILE PRESS

The Canadians also have faced a constant barrage of press denunciations for rough play, although rival players complaint of unfair tactics.

President W. B. (Baldy) George of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said today he is taking a detailed report of "an anti-Canadian, pro-Soviet propaganda campaign" in the Stockholm papers back to the CAHA, which will consider the advisability of continuing to send Canadian representatives to world hockey competitions.

Two of Rugby's Best On All-Black Line-Up

BY IAN GLENDAY

When New Zealand's famed All-Blacks make their fourth appearance in Victoria since 1913 Tuesday at Macdonald Park, city rugby fans will be able to see two of the greatest players of the present era—fullback Bob Scott and wing three-quarter R. A. Jarden.

The 32-year-old Scott, who is almost bald, is rated the greatest fullback in English rugby today and certainly the finest since the great Maori fullback of the 1924 All-Blacks, George Nepia.

Scott is equally adept at kicking a ball with his boots on or off and in the All-Blacks recent game against Scotland, challenged the Scottish kicker to a duel at the mid-field strip. Scott came out on top, converting two of three attempts from mid-field and all of them were kicked with his boots off.

Scott retired from representative football in 1951 but the All-Blacks persuaded him to return to the lineup this season, for which they have no doubt been quite thankful.

Scott, who has scored more than 600 points in first-class football since his career started early in the '30s, played a large part in the All-Blacks successful tour of the British Isles and France, scoring 54 points and being judged one of the best players to appear in Britain in years.

Jarden, a fleet winger who thrilled British crowds with his daring play and burning speed, paced the All-Blacks on their tour with 73 points.

The team from down under will arrive in Vancouver tonight at 7 p.m. and will play the first of three exhibition matches in British Columbia Tuesday at Macdonald Park against Victoria Crimson Tide at 4 p.m.

Nearing the end of a six-month, 36-game tour, All-Blacks will play University of British Columbia next Thursday and the Mainland All-Stars Saturday before closing out with two matches in San Francisco.

All-Blacks have suffered only four defeats in the 31 games they have played so far, losing to Cardiff 8-3, Wales 13-8, South West France 11-8 and France, 3-0. They drew twice, with Swansea and Ulster. Included in their victory string was a 5-0 victory over England, and a 14-3 triumph over Ireland and a 3-0 win against Scotland.

Meanwhile, plans for Tuesday's game appear to be all but completed and it will no doubt be a great day for the Victoria players who represented the city when the All-Blacks played here in 1913, 1924 and 1936.

Grandstand seats, all reserved, are available at the Central Ticket Bureau, 817 Fort Stret.

Vancouver XV Wallops Bays

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ex-Britannia defeated Victoria James Bay Athletic Association XV in an exhibition English rugby game at Douglas Park here Saturday 22-3, scoring two goals, one penalty goal, and three tries to a penalty goal.

Russ Henschel, Phil Hansen, Danny Oliver, Ray Steffich, and Jack Crawford scored tries for Ex-Britannia, Hansen converting two of them as well as kicking a penalty goal. Garry Pynn booted a penalty goal for James Bay's points.

Island Shot Awarded Silver Shield

R. Weldone Stacy of Sidney has been awarded a silver shield by the Dominion Rifle Association for marksmanship during the past two years.

Stacy compiled 5,980 of a possible 6,000 points during a two-year period while residing at Ocean Falls. Stacy shot 10 rounds at a time, saved his targets and turned them in to the Dominion Rifle Association when he had completed 6,000 rounds.

Any rifleman in Canada is eligible for the award providing he records a score of 4,900 out of 6,000 or better. A gold shield is awarded to any sniper who compiles a perfect score.

BY GRANTLAND RICE

You wouldn't think that the death of Battling Nelson and the mental collapse of Ad Wolgast ... had any influence on the fight game in general.

Probably not directly. But Mickey Walker told me an odd story along this line a few weeks ago.

"After Harry Greb and I had our double fight," says Mickey, "one in the ring and one out of the arena, we were called in by Tex Rickard. Tex had a hot proposition for us. 'I want to sign you up for a return bout,' Tex said. 'That's for $100,000 each.'

"Tex expected us to jump at that. But Greb says, 'just wait a minute, Tex. One hundred thousand dollars apiece is a lot of money. But why should I fight my pal Mickey? Why should he fight me? Why should we try to kill each other, which is what we'll do when we get in the ring together? I know I don't want to kill Mickey. And I know he doesn't want to murder me.'

"Then Greb turns to me. 'I know $100,000 is a lot of money, Mickey. But we can pick up $40,000 or maybe $50,000 fighting some of these bums now around. We can crowd in three or four of those fights; we can't lose.'

"Tex started to cut in. 'Wait a minute,' Greb said. 'Let's hear from Mickey.'

"What Harry says goes for me,' I said. I hadn't thought about it before. But I liked Greb and Greb, I knew, liked me. 'No, I won't fight Greb,' I added.

* * *

"Tex," said Mickey, "couldn't understand two guys turning down $200,000 for a fight. I don't blame Tex. I could hardly understand myself. I didn't want to knock out Harry Greb and I didn't want Harry Greb to kayo me. I didn't want to murder him. Yet if we fought it would be one way or another since we both were types that went all-out in every fight."

Back of all this palaver I think both Greb and Walker had in their minds the memory of another fight.

This was the Bat Nelson-Ad Wolgast bout that practically led to the destruction of both men. They went downhill in a hurry after it, mentally and physically.

In the fortieth round Nelson, practically unable to see, was groping in the dark for Wolgast.

Wolgast, with a beaten battered face, eyes peering between two bloody slits, had taken a terrific beating while winning.

It was the most violent human collision in any man's memory. After that battle neither was any good again — any good for anything. They were human derelicts lost upon a forgotten beach.

I think it was the memory of this fight that made Greb and Walker pull up in front of the $200,000 offer Rickard had dangled before their eyes. Either could pick up $100,000 easily in three fights with bums or push-overs.

Mickey called the turn. "I didn't want to be wrecked by Greb and I didn't want any part in wrecking Harry, my close friend. So that's why we never fought again."

I don't think they would have fought for any amount. Money didn't mean that much to either man.

Taxi XI Cops League Lead, Defeat Eagles

Black & White Taxi edged Eagles, 2-1, to take over first place in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Football Association's Division III yesterday afternoon. The Taximen now hold a two-point edge over Eagles.

In Division IV play, Gorgeway climbed into a first-place tie with Eagles by edging Esquimalt Meat Market, 1-0, on a goal by Barry Menzies.

Shepherd's Dairy forced a playoff for the Division V second-half championship by battling to a 1-1 draw with Combines. The single point moved Shepherds into a first-place deadlock with Eagles.

Bud Taylor scored for Shepherds and A. Poirer tallied with less than two minutes remaining to give Combines a tie.

In an exhibition Division V match, Eagles blanked Heaneys, 2-0.

Division III Clubs Make Soccer News

BY OLDTIMER

Much history is being made this season in Old Country soccer, possibly more than for many years past. And, before the closure is applied in May, many records will have gone into to books.

As is usually the case when the Football Association Cup is being contested, "giant-killers" have again come up with some remarkable performances.

Pride of place, this year, must go to two Division III teams: Leyton Orient of the Southern section and Port Vale, which belongs to the Northern section.

To reach the last eight in this year's Cup competition, Leyton Orient has accounted for, in succession, Kettering, Weymouth, Tranmere Rovers, Fulham and Doncaster Rovers.

But the men from Port Vale showed far more enterprise in knocking out Darlington, Southport, Queen's Park Rangers, Cardiff City and the present Cup-holders, Blackpool. In doing so, Port Vale allowed its opponents only two goals in the six games played, one of them a replay.

Any team that walks into Ninian Park in Cardiff for a cup tie encounter has its hands full; but this did not discourage the men from Burslem, and they marched off the field with a 2-0 victory. Then, in the fifth round, they entertained the mighty men from Blackpool at Port Vale. Again they prevailed by a 2-0 score. Any team that can keep their goal intact against such forwards as Stanley Matthews, Stan Mortensen and Allan Brown must have a wonderful defense.

In the long history of the Football Association Cup competition, commonly called the English Cup before this season's battles commenced, only one Division III team has ever reached the quarter-finals. But this season, for the first time in the history of the Cup, a Division III team will be in the semi-finals, Port Vale and Leyton Orient having been drawn against each other in the sixth round. On its great record, Port Vale will be established as favorites in this encounter, but in cup-ties, anything can happen. The sixth round will be played on March 13.

* * *

Some time ago this column dealt with the accomplishments of Port Vale at that point of the season. But since that article was written, the men from Port Vale have smashed several existing records.

As is well known, Port Vale is away ahead in its league, and, barring the unforeseen, will be in Division II next season. And this by a team that has nine of its regular players hailing from the Potteries; practically a home-grown team with the "man of iron"—no pun intended—Freddie Steele as manager and coach.

It is Port Vale's wonderful defence that is playing such an important part in the team's success. It surely baffles their opponents, who have only been able to score 15 goals in 32 league games to date and two others in cup-ties.

In 1888—the "Preston Invincibles" set a record which has remained intact until this season. At that time, Preston conceded only 15 goals in 22 games. The Vale has smashed this record.

Next came Burnley's feat in 1920-21, that of giving away 17 goals in 30 games. Port Vale can now lay claim to smashing that record. And now, Steele's men are after the last record possible for them. The surpassing of Birmingham's achievement in the 1947-48 season, when the side from "Brum" allowed only 24 goals in 42 matches. It would appear that Port Vale will also break this mark although it should be close.

* * *

To conclude this article—which has dealt primarily with teams in lower leagues—let us analyze other teams in the lower groups. It never happened before in all the Football League's history that a club new to the competition had to apply for re-election at the end of its first three years of membership. But unless there is an unforeseen change, that is what is going to happen now.

Workington was one of the Northern Section's luckless pair in the last two sessions and is likely to be there again this time. The league's most north-westerly outpost is in danger of losing its seat.

Who will take its place? My bet is Wigan Athletic. For years, the Wiganites have been knocking at the door and it was only a last-minute vote that kept them out of the "circle" last year.

At the moment, Wigan is playing in the Lancashire Combination, a really good league, and is at the head of the division, having played more than thirty games and losing only twice. That, and their fine showing against Newcastle United in this year's Cup competition, should swing the scales in favor of Wigan.

Port Vale Hard To Find But It's on Football Map

BY ARCH MACKENZIE

BURSLEM, Staffordshire, England (CP)—Port Vale, the soccer team that literally comes from nowhere, has reacted calmly to Canadian surprise that its name can't be found on any map of England.

Matter of factly, a club official said there hasn't been a Port Vale as a geographical entity in the club's 78-year history. As far as he knew, there never was.

"Just one of those freak names, I guess," he added. "There's no connection with a port and there's no river nearby. We're probably the only club in the country with the same situation."

As an afterthought, he added: "Of course there's Arsenal (famous London club named for Woolwich Arsenal) but they're better known than we are."

Not that Port Vale need worry about fame. The third division club from the bleak pottery country—it has been playing out of Burslem for the last few years—is one of eight surviving teams in the Football Association Cup tournament, the biggest thing in British soccer.

BEAT TOUGH OPPONENTS

In their march to the quarter-finals, Port Valers have knocked off such tough opponents as Cardiff and Blackpool, the latter defending champions. They are favored to reach the semi-finals by beating Leyton Orient, another third division team gone wild.

The question of Port Vale coming from nowhere at all popped up in Canada when Ted Reeve, Toronto Telegram sports columnist, poured over atlases trying to pinpoint the club geographically. Needless to say he couldn't.

One of Reeve's readers suggested this explanation might lie in the Grand Trunk canal, which passes through the district. The informant mentioned that the barge stops on the canal used to be called ports.

The Port Vale spokesman allowed that might be true but he didn't know. "I'll send our club booklet if you want to know anything else," he said.

New Champion To Retire DeMarco, Sr.

NEW YORK (UP) — Paddy Demarco's first duty as new light-weight champion was to retire his father again.

"My dad, Ralph, is a silversmith and he's 60," explained the saddle-nosed champ. "I retired him two months ago, but he broke out while I was in training and went back to work. "I'll have a nice talk with him tonight." (Saturday).

Pasquale Joseph Demarco, who wrested the 135-pound crown from Jimmy Carter in a terrific upset Friday night, has hammered out so much money with his fists during nine years as a professional, his father need not work any more.

The 26-year-old champ, who owns a $70,000 home in Brooklyn and has profitable investments, received approximately $14,000 for last night's victory. Carter, 30, got about $28,000

Leads Passers

OTTO GRAHAM

Official statistics of National Football League, released yesterday, confirmed that Otto Graham of Cleveland Barons led pro league in passing last season. Graham had average of 10.55 yards per pass, completed 64.7 per cent of attempts in making good on 167 of 258 passes, and threw for 11 touchdowns. He was intercepted only nine times. Norm Van Brocklin was next.

Senior Baseball Loop Suspends Operations; Plans One City Team

By DOUG PEDEN

Victoria's senior amateur baseball league, which flourished during the late war years but has had trouble attracting fans since the advent of professional baseball here, will suspend operations this year.

However, the city will still have senior baseball, according to plans drawn up at the annual general meeting of the Victoria and District Amateur Baseball Association at the Eagles Home Thursday night.

EXHIBITION GAMES

In a move aimed at easing itself of the financial burden of sponsoring a senior league and in an effort to present an improved brand of play, the association will recognize only one senior team, which will be its representative in a planned series of exhibition games.

Present plans call for the club to be under the sponsorship of Farmer Construction Ltd., but it will operate under the jurisdiction of the VDABA, which intends to schedule several games against strong opposition at Royal Athletic Park.

Although it is reported that Ed Ash, who managed Farmer Construction in the senior league last season, is rounding up a nucleus of experienced performers for the club, it was stressed that positions are open to any player in the city.

FOUR LEAGUES

Emphasis this season will be placed on the "operation of minor divisions for the benefit of younger players, the meeting decided. Four leagues are scheduled for action this summer—for players in under-21, under-18, under-16, and under-14 years-of-age groups.

In order that senior players not making the representative club will be able to remain active, the association decided that teams in the under-21 bracket could carry five men over the age limit. This league will play its games at Athletic Park.

THOMPSON RETURNED

During the meeting, members returned Wally Thompson to his third term as president and elected Lorne Buchanan to the post of vice-president and Elmer Enis as second vice-president.

W. G. Robson was named as secretary and Bill Bridgewood was re-elected to the treasurer's position, while Al Ritchie was named as registrar and Jack Bryce equipment manager. Three directors will be appointed for each of the four leagues at a later date.

EQUIPMENT VALUE UP

In a review of the past season's operations, members heard that the association provided recreation and training for approximately 400 players in all age groups. Financially, the association showed a deficit of $68 for the year but learned the value of equipment owned was now close to $5,000, an increase of more than $2,000 over the previous year.

Next general meeting will be held at the Eagles Home on April 1. Any coach, manager or persons interested in baseball are invited to attend.

Bantam Basketball Teams Invade Victoria Friday

Twenty-six games will be played during the two-day tourney with a total of 20 teams competing. There will be three boys' teams from the Mainland and nine Vancouver Island squads, and two teams from the Mainland and six Island quintets have entered the girls' division.

Each team will play at least two games with the winning team going into the playoffs for the championship and the losing team entering the consolation playoffs. The Youth Guidance Committee will provide crests for each player and pennants for the championship teams and the runners-up. Trophies will be on display in a downtown window the week of March 7.

Victoria Eagles and Vancouver Majorettes, the two defending champions, both will be returning this year to try for their second straight championship.

Officials of the tourney are in need of accommodation for the out-of-town youngsters Friday night. Persons willing to billet a player are asked to phone E 2306 or E 9906.

All-Star Team Dominated By Penticton

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—Three Penticton players are represented on the Okanagan Senior Amateur Hockey League all-star team, picked last week by sportscasters and sportswriters in the four Okanagan cities.

Two other positions almost went to Penticton players but in each case, they were edged by a slim margin. These were the goalkeeping spot and the position of all-star coach. Kelowna has one player on the dream team, Vernon has one and the Kamloops Elks drew a blank.

Pat Lesser Leads

ORMOND BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Sticking strictly to par golf, Pat Lesser took a commanding 4-up lead over Joyce Ziske in 10 holes Saturday before a cold wind-driven rain halted their championship match in the women's South Atlantic amateur tournament.

The girls, soaked and shivering, were happy to postpone the final 26 holes until Sunday.

Proper Rose Pruning Concentrates Energy

BY GEORGE REPWORTH

The purpose of pruning roses is to put the energy of the plant into those branches and buds which can best use it. New growth usually starts at the top end of the cane gradually working down to the base of the plant. If the high shoots are damaged by frost, no harm has been done as this portion will be cut away at final pruning. When pruning is done too early the lower buds are forced into growth and are liable to be damaged by frosts. This results in retarding the for the coming summer. Also the important top outside buds are usually destroyed, leaving the inside buds to grow, making a confused centre which results in a poorly shaped plant.

Pruning should start the first or second week in March if your garden is located near salt water, the third week is better if you are further in land. In lower areas which get late frost wait until the last week. This week will be the deadline to produce blooms for the June rose show as it takes 65 to 85 days, depending on the size and amount of petals the flower has.

All pruning cuts should be made on a slant and just above the eye, the eye being at the high side of the slant. The top eye of all pruned shoots should point in the direction the new shoot is to grow, which is usually away from the centre of the plant. It is desirable that the centre of the plant be kept open to the sun.

DOWN TO CANES

For Hybrid Teas open the centre of your plant by cutting away all ingrowing wood and small twiggy growth. If your plant is at the proper depth the crown should be one to two inches below the surface. Find a trowel is useful to clear away soil from the union to enable you to cut away old stubs. A small keyhole saw is handy for this job also canes that are very close together. If the pith in the stem is brown, cut out entirely or cut lower until good wood is reached. This condition is caused by frost immature wood or sawfly. For exhibition purposes cut out old wood and leave three or four healthy canes one-third of their original height. For general garden display leave a cane or two more and cut to one-half. Do not cut to precise height but follow outside buds or eyes and cut accordingly. One cane might be 11 inches and one 10 inches and so on. My reason for mentioning this is that I visited a rose garden last year where the owner had cut his plants to exactly 12 inches irrespective of whether the buds pointed in or out.

Treat standards as Hybrid Teas and cut to one-third. This applies to young plants. Older plants need a little different treatment as, unlike other types of roses with bud unions buried, the standard union is exposed to the extremely severe frosts we calais and hatch it. This encourages new growth. Without new growth you will have to prune laterals on old wood to two or three eyes. Of course the centre should be kept open and small twiggy wood cut out. Treat Polyanthus as standards the same as Polyanthus bush.

The polyanthus group usually makes a lot of growth from the base. Thin out and cut to half.

Floribundas, a large flower ing hybrid Polyantha type is a cross between Polyantha and Hybrid Tea, some varieties grow like the Polyanthas and should be thinned out, while others favor the HT blood and should be treated as such. In both cases cut to half.

OCCASIONAL THINNING

Shrubs and Species would possess need only an occasional thinning of canes, and shortening of long shoots which are out of proportion with the rest of the plant.

Climbing Roses should be pruned sparingly, particularly once flowering varieties are established. To keep plant within bounds and those varieties which cannot be trained horizontally, cut laterals and sub laterals from the main canes to two or three eyes. Of course every six old canes have to be removed by new ones. When removing old canes cut right through the middle of the plant. Cut in small pieces and take out carefully. Generally speaking this treatment applies to all climbers with the exception of the Rambler group such as Dorothy Perkins and Excelsa. These varieties make a lot of new growth from the base each year. Unlike the Hybrid Tea this group produces the best blooms on the previous year whips so if thinning out is necessary cut out the old wood.

I will be pleased to answer all questions at the Victoria Royal Garden Club pruning demonstration at the home of Duncan McTavish 3775 Pleasant right at 2 p.m. March 13 and at Windsor Park at 2 p.m. March 20.

List of Recommended Vegetables Ready

A list of varieties of vegetables recommended for Vancouver Island in 1954 is now available. This list is compiled by officials of both provincial and federal departments of agriculture. It includes 42 crops 83 different types and 105 varieties. There is no attempt made to list new varieties until they have been adequately tested and found suitable to existing soil and climatic conditions and possess desirable characteristics and useful features not found in the older ones.

Two varieties appearing for the first time in 1954 are Salad Bowl lettuce and Quebec 5 tomato. Salad Bowl is a leaf lettuce but a most distinctive addition to this class of vegetable. It produces a huge rosette of finely curled rich green leaves. A big advantage is that it will stands heat well, and does not produce seed stalks quickly like most leaf lettuce. If spread the plant will be comparative to a large salad bowl and its name was probably suggested by the fact that a single plant makes a perfect foundation for a salad. Its quality is excellent.

Quebec 5 tomato has now been tested for four years at Saanichton. A staking variety ... and ... mostly produced at earlier crop than any other staked variety. Fruits are somewhat similar to Best of All but ... trials have been short ... earlier and evenly ... size than the other varieties.

A brief description of each variety is provided and information is given which is particularly suitable for freezing. A copy of this list of recommended varieties may be obtained on request to the Horticultural Branch, B.C. Department of Agriculture, Victoria, or to the Dominion Experimental Station, Saanichton.

Advanced Electric Ideas Feature of Trend Houses

This month, when the first of 10 Trend Homes across Canada is opened to the public in Victoria, it will be equipped with some of the most advanced ideas in electrical conveniences. At weekly intervals thereafter speedy video-equipped homes will be opened in Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, London, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax.

Canadian General Electric is contributing to appliance heating, lighting and wiring.

The Trend House plan began more than a year ago to ground-breathe functional use of British Columbia woods in house construction. Soon after it was announced it became clear that a much broader participation would be required than the support offered by suppliers of building materials alone. Manufacturers of carpeting, fabrics, hardware, furniture, glass, insulation, paints and plumbing fixtures all asked to take part.

Each of the Trend Houses, according to General Electric, will be fitted with electrical wiring that permits the home owner to turn nine lights or appliances on and off from each of a number of switches.

The Trend Houses will be furnished with push-button ranges, food waste disposers, refrigerators, dishwashers, automatic clothes washers and dryers, ironers, water heaters, freezers, radio and TV sets, floor polishers, vacuum cleaners, kettles, steam irons, portable mixers, automatic toasters, electric blankets and clocks.

They will provide a balmy indoor climate all year round, yet visitors will see little evidence of a heating and air-conditioning system. Invisible ceiling outlets, small decorative wall registers to heat and cool homes automatically. In heating, air supplies forced warm air and radiant heat at the same time.

Light conditioning receives special importance in the Trend Homes. Lighting engineers have suggested a wide variety of lighting plans outstanding among which is variable control by which concealed fluorescent lamps spread light from ceilings upward and downward, often along an entire wall.

Market Firmness General for Week

By Canadian Press

Toronto, Montreal and New York stock markets were generally firm during the past week, although trading was irregular and trends vague.

Montreal and Toronto had been drifting away from the clear-cut pattern mostly lifting of early January and the last quarter of 1953. The New York changeover was a little fuzzy.

Of Toronto's five sessions three were slightly higher and two steady. Industrials set the pace in all five, although oils and mines were active, particularly at midweek.

Liquors were slightly lower and textiles in the midst of depression-like dips as foreign and domestic market, produced a few bright spots.

Base metals were stronger as seniors attracted strength. Juniors moved narrowly, and Manitouwadge area issues were irregular. Geco was near the $12 mark. Goldc were slightly higher.

Uraniums were active at the beginning of the week but interest lagged toward the close. Profit-taking followed gains on the previous week's closing advance. Bathurst-area issues were pennies ahead at Friday's close.

Western oils were quiet and trendless most of the week although Friday's session saw some strength from Pembina area issues. Thursday Jasper dropped from $3.10 to $1.40 and then recovered slightly.

The Friday to Friday indexes showed industrials up 1.78 at 325.27, golds up 17 at 72.22, base metals up 1.62 at 139.21 and Western oils up 1.32 at 93.67.

The Montreal averages showed banks off 16 at 17.30, utilities up .4 at 97.4, industrials up 1.7 at 183.8, combined up 1.3 at 155, papers up 1.1 at 82.12 and golds off .31 at 51.65.

New York trading, though strong, did not make the averages of recent weeks. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $1.80 at $116.20.

Oil Output Takes Drop In Alberta

CALGARY (CP) — In the week ended March 1 Alberta crude oil wells produced 218,701 barrels daily, the petroleum and natural gas conservation board reported Saturday.

Compared to the previous week, that was a decrease of 30,635 barrels a day. However, the 218,701 figure was an increase of 28,751 barrels a day over the same period last year.

Leduc-Woodbend, by producing 63,220 barrels a day, took over field leadership during the week, while Redwater, turning out 57,218 barrels, slipped into second spot. The new area of Penn-North Big Valley, previously listed separately, replaced Bonnie Glen with a daily production of 14,372 in fourth position, by producing an estimated 13,000 barrels, was Bonnie Glen.

Other fields and areas with their daily average production for the week: Acheson 7,361 barrels, Big Valley 3,079, Excelsior 2,175, Golden Spike 8,350, Jenner, which includes Joseph Lake, Almeda Glenrose 12,373, Lloydminster 1,011, Maimo 1,741, Stettler 1,715, Turner Valley 6,511.

Copper Price Boosted

NEW YORK (AP) — Custom smelters boosted their price for refined copper last week. In Chile meanwhile the government declined to let American producers trim their output of the red metal.

The smelter quotation for refined copper was boosted .5 cent to 29¾ cents a pound. The action followed an increase of .4 cent a pound in the price these firms have to pay for scrap copper, an important source of their raw material for refined copper production.

Competition from users in Germany and England brought the upturn in scrap prices.

SLIGHT PICKUP

There was a slight pick-up in sales of zinc, but the picture was far from cheerful. American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Co. announced a further cut in its output of refined slab zinc. It will reduce by 150 tons a month the tonnage produced by other smelters for its account.

Demand for lead was reported to be fairly good at 12½ cents New York.

Major metals prices

Copper, electrolytic, refinery	29.5
Copper, electrolytic, export	26.5
Lead, New York	12.5
Lead, St. Louis	12.25
Zinc, East St. Louis	11.5
Aluminum, primary pig, 99%	19.5

Nickel, electrolytic	35.0
Magnesium, ingot	24.5

Great Plains Development Co. which has no holdings in the Pembina area reports that at the end of 1953 it had recoverable oil reserves of 1,130,000 barrels and natural gas reserves of 11,600,000,000 cubic feet.

Latin-American Countries Improve Credit Position

OTTAWA (CP) — Latin America, a $2,000,000,000 market for Canadian goods is gradually improving its credit position. But there are still some uncertainties for 1954.

The trade department, in a 20-country survey, estimates the business and credit outlook ranges from fair to satisfactory in most of Latin America, with the exception of Peru, Paraguay and Chile.

Out of the land of historic political strife has come a growth of economic stability. The gold and foreign exchange holdings of the Latin-American countries rose to a seven-year high of $3,375,000,000 in September 1953, from $2,935,000,000 at the end of 1952.

Though not all countries shared equally in financial strength, high export earnings, largely from good coffee crops sold at rising prices, permitted Colombia, Costa Rica, Nicaragua and El Salvador to purchase an increasing volume of imports and still accumulate a foreign exchange surplus, the department said.

CONTROLS FELT

Brazil's trade experience "improved dramatically" in 1953 but "drastic import controls played an important part." A net improvement in foreign exchange holdings was complicated by foreign borrowings and repayments on the large accumulated commercial debt.

In Argentina and Uruguay exchange holdings "recovered impressively after two years of difficulty, but here again the rise in exports was supported by cautiously restrictive purchasing of imports."

Venezuela, the oil exporter, Cuba and Dominican Republic did an increasing amount of business last year and their "persistently strong" foreign exchange position showed little material change.

Guatemala with its left wing government, had labor trouble at home, but coffee exports helped keep the economy fairly prosperous. A mild recession still troubled Mexico but inflationary pressures subsided. In Argentina and an optimistic mood asserted itself in Cuba.

Chile's foreign exchange holdings strengthened in the first half of 1953 but weakened in the second half.

Here is the department's 1954 forecast of business and credit conditions in the various countries:

The outlook is fair in Argentina, Brazil, Guatemala, Haiti, Mexico, good in Colombia, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, Nicaragua, Salvador and Venezuela; satisfactory in Cuba, Ecuador, Honduras, Panama and Uruguay; uncertain in Bolivia; less promising in Chile and Paraguay; and more difficult in Peru.

Firm's Profit-Sharing Policy Marked Success in First Year

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

A Victoria catering firm which instituted a profit-sharing scheme a year ago has increased its profits by more than 50 per cent in the first year of operation.

Arsens, president of Paul's Restaurants, is an outstanding success, as the extra profits were earned on an unchanged gross business and despite increased costs.

In 1952, the firm made a net profit of $10,000. Under the first year of profit sharing the profit rose to $15,000.

Two dividends were paid under the profit-sharing scheme in 1953 and these absorbed $1,500 of the profit but still left $1,000 more than the previous year's net profit.

Mr. Arsens thinks that the profit-sharing scheme will do better yet. After the first six months the dividend came to six cents on the wage dollar. In the second six months it was increased to 12 cents on the dollar.

INTEREST SPURRED

"The initial payment spurred interest in the scheme and encouraged every member of the scheme to higher enthusiasm," said Mr. Arsens.

To participate each member of the staff has to invest in a $50 share in the company on which there is a guaranteed interest rate of 5 per cent. Despite the low 10 shareholders of 1,000 for the present are the seven members of the old restaurant employees.

"A number of employees have indicated their share holdings in the company from the minimum of $50," he said.

So far Paul's Restaurants Ltd. is the only Victoria firm in membership of the Council of Profit Sharing Industries but Woodwards Stores, Empire Motors and Royal City Foods on the Mainland are members and Canada has about 90 out of a total of over 700 members.

$116,128 SHARED

One firm in Toronto, Supreme Aluminum Industries Ltd., which has been profit-sharing since 1948, last week distributed $116,128 worth of its profits to 189 employees in profit sharing and retirement plan.

In six years bonuses and credits worth more than $650,000 have been distributed.

Mr. Arsens is convinced that profit sharing is the answer to his particular type of business and he has been invited to give a talk on his experiences to the Canadian Restaurant Association when he attends the annual meeting in Toronto later this month.

SITTING ON GAS

The belief of our lads Mr. A. [illegible] oil reserves is one [illegible] shared by more than one geological expert.

Indeed one company has gone so far as to take out a lease on some 22,000 acres in the Victoria area, and except for some technical hitch might have been drilling before now.

But although Mrs. Lydia Arsens holds out for oil most of the experts consider that Victoria subsoil is more likely to produce natural gas.

This gas it is pointed out, is not necessarily to be located on the south side of James Bay, or even in the Cormorant Pandora Douglas area.

One of the reasons for optimism about the Victoria area is the frequent seepages of oil which appear at widely scattered points. Oil has been found in the sands near Cordova Bay and I am informed there is a persistent showing near Mill Creek where the Forest's land boundary meets the sea.

All these things may mean something or nothing.

The flow of heavy oil down one of the lucky promontories in the city was at one time a matter of considerable public interest.

It is whispered that a well-encouraged real estate boom actions.

Later it was discovered that the owner of the promontory with his garage on the oil had been in the habit of emptying the old lubricating oil from his car down a convenient crevasse of the rocks. Nature and the law of gravity did the rest.

With borrowing terms at their most favorable level in over two years, investors are being offered a wide assortment of new government, municipal and industrial issues.

Many of them look extremely attractive and several are now marketing at more than the issuing price.

Among the forthcoming issues is one by Bridge and Tank Company, Ltd., which was formed recently to amalgamate the operations of Hamilton Bridge, Hamilton and Vulcan Iron and Engineering, Winnipeg.

Lou Williams of Hagar Investments tells me that $2,500,000 5½ per cent 20-year first mortgage sinking fund bonds are being offered at par and $1,000,000 $2.90 sinking fund preference shares of $50 par value are being offered at $48.

The preference shares will have an attractive yield of 6.04 per cent and warrants are attached to each preference share entitling the holder to purchase three common shares for each two preferred shares held at a price of $10 per share. Warrants are valid from September 1, 1954 to March 1, 1960.

The amalgamation makes Bridge and Tank the third largest fabricator of steel products in Canada.

Crusader's Electricians Busiest Men in Far East

ON BOARD HMCS CRUSADER, since her arrival in the Far East three months ago, HMCS Crusader has been one of the busiest destroyers in the entire United Nations fleet.

In addition to having completed several patrols off Korea's west coast, the Crusader has participated in anti-submarine and carrier screening exercises and torpedo and gunnery shoots in areas ranging from the Sea of Japan to the Yellow Sea and from Okinawa to Honshu Island.

During such exercises with the ship's offensive and defensive weapons in action and her engines operating at high speeds, the Crusader's power plant generates enough electricity to supply the entire needs of any fair-sized Canadian town.

Responsible for keeping this equipment in smooth running order is the electrical department, one of the busiest and most important" teams in the ship.

The Crusader's two main generators with a total power output of 1,000 kilowatts provide the juice that operates more than 100 motors throughout the ship, ranging anywhere from electric fans to steering motors, as well as fresh water pumps, fire control systems, water coolers, ovens, refrigerators, surgical equipment, radio and electronic sets and many hundreds of light bulbs. Miles of electric wiring inevitably carry this power the length and breadth of the ship.

MORE POWER —

One generator is enough to supply power for normal cruising or while in harbor, but at action stations when all fighting equipment is in use both boilers are needed.

In emergencies three auxiliary diesels each with a power output of 75 kilowatts are available for immediate use.

The Crusader carries 21 experts to service her electrical equipment. They include one officer, seven senior technicians for fire control and detection equipment, three radio technicians also senior men who maintain radio and radar sets and 10 electricians mates.

The job of servicing electrical equipment aboard a destroyer is quite different from servicing it ashore. Wherever the ship goes, even tiny, transient light bulbs pop and shatter, and vital cable runs are often loosened; the normal vibration of the ship pays havoc with delicate instruments and damp sea air causes excessive corrosion to upper deck equipment.

TOUGH JOBS

The sailor-electrician must be ready to repair, rewind or rewind an armature at sea while the ship is in action or in heavy weather, and often with limited repair facilities. But he is carefully chosen and well trained for the job. A 16-week course at the electrical school at Halifax is followed by a period of sea-going duty, during which the young apprentice decides whether he will be a radio technician or a general technician, and whether he wants to work on aircraft or in ships. Additional courses are followed by practical experience until the electrician becomes expert in his field, qualifying for promotion to petty rate or commissioned rank.

The Crusader's electrical officer is a veteran of 25 years in the RCN. Lieut. (L) Robert M. Riddell of Victoria joined the navy as an ordinary seaman, transferred to the communications branch as a telegraphist and has been in the electrical branch since it was organized in 1945. He was promoted to warrant officer in 1951, served on two occasions as officer in charge of Matsqui Radio Station in B.C. and was promoted to lieutenant in 1948. He has served in destroyers, cruisers and aircraft carriers, and his last appointment was officer-in-charge of electrical training centre at HMCS Nadet.

His staff includes three Victoria men, CPO Harley R. Reaves, PO Robert W. Bradstock and LS Walter L. Jary.

Recruiting for Air Force Continues at Record Rate

For the fifth month in a row RCAF recruiting set a new high in Victoria. During February 76 men and women from Victoria and Vancouver Island enlisted at the local recruiting depot.

Included among them were two well-known Victoria athletes, who were immediately earmarked for recreation work. W. A. M. McAllister was goal keeper for Victoria United soccer club, while C. D. Wilson was a track and field specialist for Victoria "Y".

An unusual twist at the recruit centre was when LAC R. E. Hood dropped in to tell them how much he liked service life. Son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Hood, 1553 Westall Avenue, Victoria, he and his wife drove from the east to spend a month's leave here.

LAC Hood is a mobile equipment technician stationed at St. Hubert, Quebec. It is his intention to spend 20 years in the RCAF.

U.S. Parties Vie To Cut Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House Democrats showed signs Saturday of competing for the first chance at trying to boost income tax exemptions.

In the House Democrats have agreed definitely to make their move when a bill completely overhauling the tax laws comes up on the floor March 17. They are interested in tacking onto it a provision upping from $600 to $700 the personal exemption and credit for dependents.

House rules bar any earlier effort except to a bill to cut some excise taxes and extend others. The excise bill is set for House action next Wednesday.

A PADRE IN PRINT

BY REV. WILLIAM HILLS

Gadzooks! How my poor heart bleeds for those of our local legislators who are misquoted, misconstrued, misrepresented, misinformed, misdeemed, misliked and misplaced.

One would think that, having embraced the glory and the tumult of the public arena, they still demand that privacy and solitude which

As one of them should very well know, Ari can't have your cake and eat it.

The words of Mrs. Jane Doe, housewife flung over the back yard fence as she shrugs off the wash-day blues and envelops the neighbor in a warm embrace, are not to be reported in the press.

But the sentiments of Mrs. John Doe, member of the legislative assembly as she speaks on the floor of the House of the people, platform, or even over a telephone to bring to the world a reporter's account of public life, is fair game.

Lucky is the man, or woman, who can speak without fear of being misquoted, misrepresented, misinterpreted, misunderstood, misjudged, misconstrued, misreported, misinformed, misdeemed, misliked and misplaced.

Now I will be a sport. I make free use of those words so that you will keep it up.

Worst thing that can happen to a politician is to be misunderstood. Next worst thing is to be misquoted.

Let's look at the first two. Misunderstood. Well, that's up to the hearer, isn't it? If he doesn't understand, he should ask questions.

Misquoted. Well, that's up to the reporter, isn't it? If he doesn't understand, he should ask questions.

Let's look at the second two. Misinterpreted, misjudged. Well, that's up to the hearer, isn't it? If he doesn't understand, he should ask questions.

Misconstrued, misdeemed, misliked, misplaced. Well, that's up to the hearer, isn't it? If he doesn't understand, he should ask questions.

Misinformed. Well, that's up to the reporter, isn't it? If he doesn't understand, he should ask questions.

Misreported. Well, that's up to the reporter, isn't it? If he doesn't understand, he should ask questions.

Misrepresented. Well, that's up to the hearer, isn't it? If he doesn't understand, he should ask questions.

U.S. Leads Fight To Keep West Free Of Red Seizures

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The United States called on the Inter-American Conference Saturday to view Communist seizure of power in any American republic the same as it would invasion by a foreign aggressor.

The resolution setting forth the U.S. plan to curb Red infiltration of the Western Hemisphere was submitted Saturday. It will be considered Monday by the political-juridical committee of the 20-nation conference.

DULLES HEADS FIGHT

Secretary of State Dulles will head the fight for adoption of the resolution. Violent opposition was expected from Guatemala which has called placing the Red topic on the agenda a pretext by the United States to meddle in Guatemalan affairs.

Guatemala was not named in the resolution but the Central American country—described by U.S. officials as a Soviet beachhead in this hemisphere—was the obvious target. Guatemala has been accused of giving the Communists free rein while throttling any manifestation of anti-Communist sentiment.

Graham Ends First Week

LONDON (AP)—American evangelist Billy Graham ended the first week of his London revival drive Saturday—a l g h t, declaring "there is a great hunger for God in this vast city."

"The response has been magnificent," Graham told a reporter.

Graham's London crusade is stated to run 12 weeks.

Stevens To Stay in Job, Key Assistant Resigns

WASHINGTON (AP) Rob the secretary's superiors had cut E Stevens formerly at mum ted Saturday he intends to be main secretary of the army and not resign because of Senate stormy weather with Senator McCarthy.

Stevens said nothing could be farther from the truth than reports he'd decided to fol low the lead of one of his key assistants and turn in his res g nation as an outgrowth of his recent run-in with McCarthy.

The assistant was John F Ikone and army employee for seven years. He quit his $10,000 a year job Friday. Kane said he hoped Stevens would stay on although he contended some of the secretary's actions in the dispute with McCarthy were "unwise."

Florida Gets Snowy Spring

(By The Associated Press)

March—the month spring comes—hit northwest Florida and other parts of the Gulf Coast with the area's heaviest snowstorm in years Saturday.

The snow ranged from a trace on the ground in Florida up to four inches in parts of Mobile, Ala.

In Mobile, where azaleas and camellias are blooming in profusion, oldtimers called the four-inch snow the heaviest in a half century.

Snow caked on blooming plants and piled up on the white sands of Gulf Coast beaches. The storm came at the height of Mobile's azalea season.

Arms Seizure Bares Cuban Revolt Plot

NEW YORK (UP)—A highly organized plot to touch off a revolution in Cuba was disclosed Saturday at the arraignment of two Cuban gunrunners who were arrested here when police seized an arsenal of anti-tank guns, rifles and hand grenades.

Assistant district attorney Ernest Mittler said revolutionaries have been sending guns and bullets into Cuba for at least three months in the plot to overthrow the government of President Fulgencio Batista.

ARMS SMUGGLED

Three shipments of arms have been smuggled into the island republic since November Mittler said, and the weapons seized here Friday apparently represented all or part of an intended fourth shipment.

Mittler disclosed the plot as Roberto Oscar Acevedo, 32, and Mario Cruz, 31, were arraigned on charges of illegal possession of weapons. At the same time, detectives were rounding up members of a New York organization called the "Civic Action for Cuba Committee" for questioning about the attempt to supply weapons to anti-Batista forces.

Acevedo and Cruz, who were held in $50,000 bail each were arrested late Friday when New York police uncovered the arsenal of weapons in a boarded-up store on West 90th Street. Mittler said federal and state authorities had joined the investigation of the gun-smuggling plot Saturday.

Jet Makes Long Flight

MANBY (Reginald Reuters) An RAF Canberra bomber re turning from Britain's first Arc tic test flight flew 3,000 miles nonstop early Saturday from Montreal to his base here in about six hours.

The Canberra, first jet plane to make a nonstop flight from Montreal to Manby, carried only sufficient fuel to give a margin of 10 minutes flying time.

Dragger Lands Big Catch

ASTORIA (AP) The largest catch of bottom fish delivered at the New England Fish Co. since the Second World War was being refrigerated Saturday following the landing here of 69,000 pounds by the dragger Oregonian.

Jack Ray, skipper of the 93-foot boat reported that it was so heavily loaded that it was nearly swamped when it entered the Columbia Friday.

About 5,000 pounds of bottom fish were lost when waves swamped the stern of the boat Ray said. Two other crewmen rode in the front of the vessel to take the strain off the stern.

Captain Ray also reported having to give away to other fishermen 25,000 pounds of bottom fish while fishing north west of the Columbia River. A total of 95,000 pounds was taken in about five days of fishing during excellent weather, Ray said.

The catch included Dover sole, ocean perch and a few perch.

Value of the catch was tonight estimated at about $30,000.

Pensioners Ask Increase

VANCOUVER (CP) An increase to $20 in their cost-of-living bonus was requested here Friday in a mass meeting of several hundred Vancouver and New Westminster old age pensioners.

The provincial government now pays $10 a month bonus with a means test in addition to the $40 issued by the federal government.

Pensioners asked that the means test be raised to $1,000 income a year for single persons and $1,800 for married persons.

While protesting the govern ment's reported plan to boost the bonus by $2.50 the meeting also condemned any proposal to finance B.C. Hospital Insurance Service through sales taxes. The resolutions will be sent to the provincial government.

Philippines Fete Canadian Leader

MANILA (CP) Prime Min ister St. Laurent with less than two weeks left of his six-week around-the-world goodwill tour, visited the Philippines Saturday and was received by the nation's new president, Ramon Mag saysay.

Although the Canadian leader's visit was unofficial he occupied the presidential suite at the swank Manila Hotel as Magsaysay's guest. He attended a dinner in his honor and went to a small, informal dinner given by Manila's Canadian community at the residence of the Canadian consul-general Fred erick Palmer.

The prime minister and his party were scheduled to leave aboard their RCAF C-5 plane for Seoul, Korea, at 9 a.m. Sunday, Manila time.

The Canadian leader will be greeted at Seoul city airport on his arrival with a 19-gun salute fired by a South Korean artillery battalion.

Monday, he will hold a press conference and meet President Syngman Rhee. He will spend most of the next two days with the Canadian 25th Brigade and will visit hospitals, watch parades and unveil a plaque to Canadian soldiers who died in Korea.

The prime minister will return to Seoul Thursday for a formal dinner with the South Korean president. He will leave Korea for Japan Wednesday morning.

The Korea-Japan leg is nearly the last of the 23,000-mile global tour. The prime minister, who left Ottawa February 1, is scheduled to return March 17 after a flight from Asia with stops at Midway, Honolulu and San Francisco.

Blond Mother of Two Confesses Bank Holdup

LOS ANGELES (UP) A pretty 31-year-old mother from Northern California captured after allegedly trying to rob a downtown bank Saturday confessed an $1,800 bank holdup here last month and blamed "booze and men" for her troubles, police reported.

Blond Mrs. Marjorie Darlean Hall arrested Friday told detectives she needed money for her two young sons in a Steamboat Springs, Colo., military school but spent most of the loot from the February 10 robbery on "whisky, cloth ing and gambling," officers said.

Mrs. Hall who said she was making payments on a home in Stockton, Calif., implicated John D. Wensing, 37, of Berk eley, Calif., saying he drove the getaway car both times, according to police.

However, Wensing "wouldn't talk," officers said.

Mrs. Hall told detectives she sent her sons, Norman S. and Nelson, 6, $360 from the rob bery of a Bank of America branch last month.

She was booked on one charge of robbery and another of attempted robbery. Officers said she was unarmed and simulated a gun on both occa sions.

Indo-China Accord Predicted by Reds; Korea Pact Doubted

WASHINGTON (CP) Soviet Russian officials predicted a "good possibility" of a settlement of the Indo-China conflict at the April 26 Geneva conference on the Far East.

These officials told the United Press they see no hope of any agreement on Korea. They said neither the Americans nor the Communists want to give much ground.

"Indo-China, however," one official said, "is a matter on which we will be negotiating primarily with the French. Possibly the United States will not have too much voice in this matter."

American officials viewed the statement as an indication the Kremlin plans to try to drive a wedge between the Americans and the French at Geneva.

French public opinion rapidly is losing patience with the government's efforts to beat down Communist rebels in Indo-China. France would like to see the war ended by almost any means.

On the war front, meanwhile, tank-led French Union infantry men knocked the Communists off a fortified hill overlooking Dien Bien Phu and hurled back a savage Red counter-attack in bitter hand-to-hand combat, the French command reported.

Some 650 miles to the south east armor-tipped French-Viet Nam columns rolled into Song Cau on the China sea coast after French beachhead at Tuy Hoa. The port, a main Communist supply base for years, was "softened up" by two weeks of fierce fighting and only slight resistance was put up by the Reds, the command said.

The drive on Song Cau was part of the French campaign to clear the rebels from an 800 square mile area in Central Annam and end eight years of Red domination over 3,000,000 inhabitants.

The command said the Communists suffered "heavy losses" in the bold French foray against the Red ring encircling the French bastion of Dien Bien Phu. Dien Bien Phu lies in the heart of Communist-controlled territory in the Thai country 180 miles west of Hanoi. It has been cut off except by air for 108 days.

Woman Robbed Of Rings

Scheduled to leave by boat to day for England, Mrs. M Tunnet, 1126 Pandora Avenue, was unexpectedly relieved of some valuable belongings yesterday afternoon.

The woman told police that she believed she had been robbed of a diamond ring and an antique amethyst ring valued at $150.

She reported that she had buried a blanket, consisting to move a trunk and other articles to 910 Vincent Avenue. When at the latter address she moved requested the help of a man from the street to help him with a trunk.

Shortly after the stranger had obliged Mrs. Tunnet discovered the loss of her rings.

OUTDOORS

MANY sportsmen tie their boot laces with short bows. This is dangerous practice. The loops of the bow may catch on other obstructions and trip you, causing a fall that may prove fatal when out alone in the woods. If with a party you are carry a loaded fire arm in a rapidly discharges. The method of tying boot laces pictured here is used by all rescue life savers on surf beaches and is invariably adopted as the safest method of tying boot laces.

The Stamp Packet

By R. M. ANGUS

THE importance of the stamp collector can best be realized from the figures recently issued by the Post Office Department at Washington. It appears that United States collectors and others are buying less than 1/10th of the stamps from the agency with a face value of $11,000,000 in 1950. Prior to this, from seventy-five to eighty per cent of these stamps were purchased, in the same manner, by collectors and dealers who were interested in obtaining covers of the first issues. The New York centenary stamp was the best seller so far as first day covers were concerned as there were sold 2,750,000 copies with a face value of $27,500. Of those sold by mail at Washington few will ever do any postal duty whatever and may therefore be described as velvet and will never repay the cost of production—another proof of the economic contribution to the national economy.

Further proof of this can be adduced by a report by Jacob Scibbe, who at the time of the issue of the Sioux Wool drive stamps was acting as

Even Barracks Travel by Air Transport

A new fast-moving method for air transporting army barracks is demonstrated in the unloading of this cargo-carrier bottle, recently. A U.S. Marine helicopter lowered the plastic bottle, containing 30 feet in diameter and 16 feet high, to the ground in a matter of minutes. It is a quick way to protect 8 men from the weather. They called the creation "Inverted Sheltet."

Marble Head Believed Cleopatra's Likeness

A MARBLE head in North Carolina was probably Antony's gift to his queen, Cleopatra, Adolph Loewi, Jr., Metropolitan Museum of Art curator, said recently.

BAD PERSONALITY

Mr. Loewi said the head was probably carved during the reign of Augustus Caesar, who succeeded Julius Caesar as emperor of Rome. Augustus had a bad personality and was known to have destroyed many portraits of Cleopatra and Antony.

Mr. Loewi said the head was probably carved during the reign of Augustus Caesar, who succeeded Julius Caesar as emperor of Rome. Augustus had a bad personality and was known to have destroyed many portraits of Cleopatra and Antony.

The lovers' expression of romantic love has helped to give the head its present appeal, Mr. Loewi said.

Another marble head of Cleopatra is in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. It is believed the Cleopatra but could may have been carved for Augustus.

Art experts in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City are interested in the head because it is believed to be a likeness of Cleopatra, famous queen of Egypt.

Swedish Mystery Magnate Visited Here

By FRANK KELLEY

WHEN the United States was drawn into Second World War following the raid on Pearl Harbor in November, 1941 two years after the conflict really started, the State Department, according to newspaper stories, already had a long blacklist of firms and individuals suspected of being in cahoots with Nazi leaders. To that list the Pearl Harbor affair added the name of Swedish industrialist Axel Wenner-Gren, who, identified with world-wide interests, was placed at the very top of the list.

Axel Wenner-Gren had already been blacklisted by Britain, according to the record, although his influential friends in all parts of the world let it be known according to press dispatches, that the blacklisting was a terrible mistake. Because of the blacklisting and while there were no established proofs of his pro-Axis connections, every move this man made was christened with aspersions not at all consistent with neutral thought and really made him the top mystery man of the world-shaking conflict.

When Second World War and its aftermath really pass into history a lot of things since 1939 may appear in reasonable perspective and the comings and goings of men like Axel Wenner-Gren be reviewed without bias. "Hail fellow, well met" undoubtedly with the world's historical personages during some pre-war years and while the conflict developed, the Swedish financier was probably the nearest approach to an Aladdin's lamp creation in real life that one might imagine.

A LONG ROAD

Apparently born with a wooden spoon in his mouth, according to his story, there was more homespun than silken raiment during his younger years as he learned the value of kroner in his native land. He began to acquire pounds, shillings and pence of the more versatile Yankee dollar in the sweatshops of Stockholm in the information of what some consider substantial financial and industrial fields by the Duchess of Windsor and some writers stated that the Baroness were heralded the "Queen of Europe's roving ultra-rich" to the extent of $2,000,000. He was industrialization.

Long before that time the scientific explorations work in German-educated Scandinavian Central and South America had spent some time in the United States. About 1907 he had been employed at fifteen cents an hour in a New Jersey factory where he was to learn, as he said "if the United States was to live up to its reputation as a land of opportunity it took a lot of knocking on the door for one to get nowhere." Back in Sweden he perfected electric light bulbs with such a splendid performance by 1917 he controlled most of the company's stocks.

FORMED COMPANY

In 1921, it is stated Axel Wenner-Gren formed the Electrolux Company and financed the [illegible] business in many foreign markets. The [illegible] a short [illegible] of [illegible] dollars and [illegible] of several electric [illegible] plants and [illegible] of [illegible] held [illegible] deals in many countries. The U.S. revenue alone [illegible] him an average of $1,000,000 annually.

With that kind of a knack for promoting real money making industries it was [illegible] wonder he came to acquire many powerful new [illegible] shipping and aviation interests by 1936, he among other shrewd purchases had acquired Bofors Ammunition Combine from the Krupps, and in the following year, 1937, had sold to Great Britain the entire Bofors ack ack output.

AIDED RESEARCH

In spite of Wenner-Gren's acquisitiveness in the fields of international finance and industry, and whether his left hand kept track of what his right hand was doing he became known in most quarters of the globe as a free and easy donator of cash to sundry philanthropies in Sweden and elsewhere. For instance, the University of Kentucky boasted a Wenner-Gren laboratory for the testing of airplane motors and propellers which had been financed by the Swedish industrialist at a cost of $15,000.

Toronto University received a grant from the same source Yankee dollar in the sum of $10,000 for research work in [illegible] fields in the information of what some consider substantial financial and industrial fields by the Duchess of Windsor and some writers stated that the Baroness were heralded the "Queen of Europe's roving ultra-rich" to the extent of $2,000,000. He was industrialization.

[illegible] archaeological finds were [illegible] of ancient cultures in the Andes Mountains of Peru. Another [illegible] investment in [illegible] do with the development of [illegible] Paradise Town adjacent to [illegible] Nassau estate.

Curiously, his relations [illegible] study firm as the Fatherland [illegible] the German dictator [illegible] and his anniversary of an [illegible] mutual character of commerce by which world trade industry should be handled a la carte looked as though he were [illegible] of the favorite [illegible] pet projects of totalitarian [illegible] variously suggested by Krueger to Hessen. It was no [illegible] Wenner-Gren had been much in the company of totalitarians [illegible] Hammel and Goering although he had been quoted as saying: "Totalitarianism is sheer [illegible] in its most brutal form."

All of which whether believed or not is pertinent to the arrival of the man who just a week ago today in Victoria during the month of July 1940, at a time when his every movement was under some sort of surveillance and he was being [illegible] as the prime mystery man of the great conflict. What was he doing in British Columbia waters, the world wanted to know. He had arrived aboard his own steam yacht Southern Cross once owned by Howard Hughes and reported

Tunesmiths Putting All on Spinners

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN

WHAT has happened to Hollywood's own Tin Pan Alley? Where are the great tunes of yesterday? What about all those singable, hummable, long-to-be-remembered numbers that spring first from musical films?

These questions had a right to be asked when Hollywood looked over the Motion Picture Academy Oscar nominations released this week. The best picture, best actress, actor, etc nominees in the foremost brackets brought no surprises. They were more or less cut and dried, right up to the town's predictions.

But what is the song category that Hollywood and good records have passed and ponder just how ominously fat it has been getting on its financial oats during the last five years or so. Only on the third last page of the announcements of sparkle or exception, topping the list of nominees, "The Moon Is Blue" written to publicize a movie of the same name that went out to the public minus the customary trim of other morals seal. Rest of the four were "My Flame Is Heart from "Small Town Girl"; "Suite Thompson's Song" from "Man Suite Thompson"; "Secret Love" from "Calamity Jane" and "That's Amore" from "The Caddy". True, these were all up and down, on the hit parade, but it is doubtful if any will be remembered over the years.

FOR THE RECORD

The sorry fact is that Hollywood has forfeited its spot as the world's rhythm leader. Top song writers are no longer under exclusive studio contract for the Movies written for Big Shots of the business say they can't afford them. Hence the songsmiths are now plotting their brilliant efforts straight toward phonograph-record sales and succeeding.

Compare the five very ordinary numbers nominated from 1953 movies with some of those that won Oscars in the past. Then you'll get the general idea of what's been going on in the sagging Tin Pan Alley that Hollywood once captured from New York.

In the 1950 Oscar sweepstakes for example, a lovely number, "Mona Lisa," written by Jay Livingston and Ray Evans was the victor but only after a close balloting snaffle involving four almost equally fitting candidates. Livingston and Evans significantly are now free-lancing, no longer writing directly for movies.

In 1949 it was the sensational Baby Its Cold Outside written by Frank Loesser and sung by Esther Williams and Ricardo Montalban in "Neptune's Daughter." Nothing of the past few years has caught the ear of the public like this winner.

Livingston and Evans' written from Livingston and Evans

PAST WINNERS

Here are a few more from those glorious, prosperous morning days: "Zip A-Dee-Doo-Dah" from "Song of the South"; "On the Atchison Topeka and Santa Fe" unforgettably rendered by Judy Garland in "The Harvey Girls"; "It Might As Well Be Spring" by Rodgers and Hammerstein for "State Fair"; "Swinging on a Star" by Jimmy Van Heusen and Johnny Burke for Bing Crosby in "Going My Way"; the memorable "Pinocchio" theme number "When You Wish Upon a Star," for Walt Disney's cartoon feature; Bob Hopes still lingering theme song "Thanks for the Memory" written for the Maestro's "Big Broadcast of 1938" and don't overlook the clever set of them all in the duo duties department Irving Berlins mown revived White Christmas for "Holiday Inn" in 1942.

The Green-Winged Teal Smallest of Waterfowl

By C. J. GUIGUET
Provincial Museum Biologist

THE green-winged teal is the smallest of our waterfowl and one of the most beautiful. The drake in full plumage has a red head with a green face patch that encircles the eye and extends to the back of the head. His cream-colored breast is heavily spotted in black, while parts the white often caused to rusty. Shoulder bars and sides are finely vermiculated in grey and white giving prominent horizontal part of the body. A vertical black bar [illegible] marks the under tail coverts that are a soft cream lent from their diet of aquatic color on the sides and black be plants, but they feed occasion immediately ahead of the ally on insects and small wing. There is a vertical, white bar that serves to distinguish this species from its European counterpart. In the European green-winged teal the vertical bar is absent and a horizontal white bar is present over the forewing. Another distinguishing mark of the drake is the [illegible] which is more than can be said for many of our present-day composers whose [illegible] compositions have the look of [illegible]

These birds nest from the 49th parallel north to the Arctic islands of the Mackenzie delta west across Alaska. THE REAL STORY OF SISTER KENNY

By VICTOR COHN

CHAPTER 5

ELIZABETH Kenny, it seems never became what we would call a trained or registered nurse.

Nevertheless she made of herself a nurse it is certain that she donned the uniform and, nevertheless, she eventually did all right.

Here is the story.

Elizabeth Kenny grew into her twenties. She taught Sunday school.

She taught music to at least one neighbor farmer's family. She tried domestic work. "She was a sort of governess for the Presbyterian minister's family," say her sisters. "She worked for different people for awhile." She was a lady clip on house keeper. She didn't like it.

She reached 27 without having had a career.

SHE LEAVES HOME

The Kenness home was in the state of Queensland, close to the border between Queensland and New South Wales where the sea begins.

For the next few years [illegible] Kenness [illegible] where the Kenness [illegible] lived.

There is little to say about Elizabeth's years [illegible] except that she remained single. Sometimes [illegible] partnership with her cousin's husband.

"She would help cook and produce," say those Queensland cousins. The folks who now live in Sydney.

SHE MADE MONEY

"She used to handle hundreds of tons potatoes corn wheat oats. She made quite a lot of money, she had the drive and the push and the business capacity and I give her credit."

She also helped Mrs. Bell with her children, but soon Eliza beth [illegible] Mrs. Bell [illegible] took her potato money and went off to study nursing.

Why nursing?

For one thing, it was one of the only ways for a young woman to attend an independent career.

For another she felt strangely apart and alone. [illegible] later whether and was to [illegible] fighting. The [illegible] made her decide to be a nurse many. Her friend Dr. Agnes McDonald recommended nursing [illegible] and [illegible].

She spent the latter part of [illegible] with relatives [illegible] from Toowoomba [illegible] but [illegible] Maud [illegible] have been a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sister [illegible] [illegible].

NO FORMAL TRAINING

Dr. John Paul, who worked with her for many years in Minneapolis and became one of the great friends of her life, believes she had no formal train ing. She herself was often learned vague about it or, if asked, would say: "What do my early years matter? It was the work that counts."

She did say sometimes [illegible] ever. I was trained in the old private hospital [illegible] It has long ceased to exist. It has been closed [illegible] years ago. And she said she graduated in 1911."

The New South Wales health department, where, however, [illegible] pitals has no record of a Sister Kenny ever having been on the staff of the old private hospital. Such a [illegible] place might have been a nursing or convalescent home, however. In that case a record would not have been necessary and records would not exist.

The Australian Trained Nurses' Association says that [illegible] who was we [illegible] private hospital but not [illegible] the state's training [illegible] It also [illegible] careful [illegible] have been made to find [illegible] recorded. Miss Kenness [illegible] as a nurse but [illegible].

The Target of Russia's Trade Offensive

By TOM WHITNEY

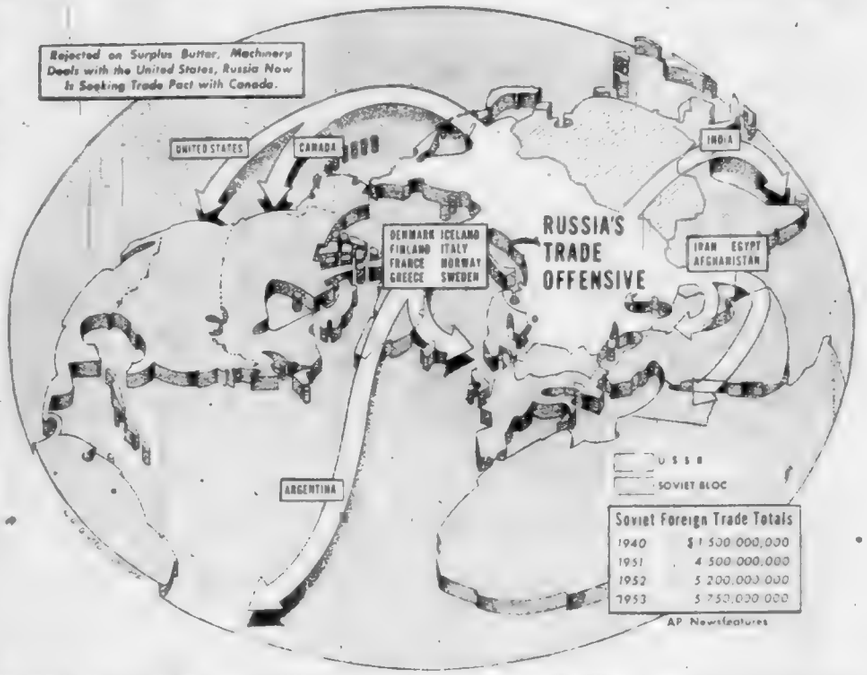
(The writer recently returned to the U.S. was chief of the Economic section, U.S. embassy in Moscow 1944-47, and a correspondent of The Associated Press in Moscow 1947-53.)

THE Russians are rapidly building up—by deeds as well as words—their big drive to dislodge the United States from its position of unrivalled economic supremacy in the non-Communist world.

The current Soviet foreign trade offensive cannot be viewed as a bluff.

Behind it stands a powerful Soviet industrial machine turning out in increasing quantities the sinews of peace and war—fuels, raw materials, machines, armaments, and everything else that goes to make nations mighty.

Proof enough that Soviet leadership is moving excessively [illegible] propaganda use of each new step it takes in the foreign trade and economic field. When a Soviet trade official [illegible] deals to buy and sell from non-Communist countries [illegible] Moscow and its agents abroad immediately [illegible] with Soviet trade [illegible] statements of the deals and offers or hints of offers designed to impress the world with Soviet willingness to do big business.



THE "BIG" MAN

[illegible] little doubt that behind the large scale scope of [illegible] stands a dynamic personality.

The man is small, scrappy [illegible] Anastase Mikoyan. Moscow refers to Armenian. He [illegible] talented stock. He [illegible] predecessor of the [illegible] Molotov.

A veteran Mikoyan has run Soviet foreign and domestic trade for years. He has the title of deputy premier of the U.S.S.R. and minister of trade. Until he was dislodged as minister of foreign and domestic trade when this ministry was divided and Mikoyan was left with the domestic half it [illegible] as though he would have [illegible] to do with the foreign [illegible]

There's been a lot of confusion in the western world and in the United States over what the Soviet foreign trade drive really means. Some responsible citizens have claimed it reflects primarily Soviet domestic economic difficulties, thus intimating that the Russians are having serious troubles at home.

MOTIVE POLITICAL

[illegible]

[illegible]

Look at the unprecedented action of the Soviet government a few days ago in granting Finland a loan. Russia had never before in the entire post-war period given one substantial credit to a non-Communist nation. Why are they doing it now? The Russians know that the Finns already are dependent on trade with Russia for continued financial solvency. This step increases the Finns dependency.

They Call Him The Mayor Of Deep Cove

By CECIL CLARK

ON Saturday, March 27, Nanaimo will see a reunion of the survivors of the 50th Western Scots. I don't know whether he'll be there or not—but the greatest Scot of them all (and he happens to be a Dane), is the Mayor of Deep Cove: Theodore Fischer.

More of a sailor than a soldier, "Ted" as he pronounces it, has probably seen more adventures cross the bar than any living Victorian.

But at heart he's just a great big happy kid of 78.

A rebel boy on a square rigger at 13 won't be left to receive Dominion Day Greetings from a man who sailed all the oceans of the world before the mast. Probably because it's been pitched so often to overtake the roar of barren conversation, the scream of wind in the rigging, the tramp of cowhorse hooves in step and not to speak of gunfire in France, as even these aged especially when you're getting a little deaf, to get it down to living room standards.

IN A COTTAGE

He lives alone in a little speck and spick cottage near the Union Bay cross road but two well-mannered bunch of bare limbs who regard with grave wonderment how a grizzled old man can find so much to do. Trees to fell, grub out, logs to saw, split, carry, pile and keep his friends who don't like to see him lonely. You'd have to see Ted to believe him.

I called on him last summer when he was busy putting round his garden. It's a great thankfulness by the way I said, about the generous rainfall we've been having. You never have to water the lawn. Ted looked at me as if I were a fool. "Water the lawn? Why, I've been cutting it for a week!"

Ted's not a man to waste words. He's a man of few words, but he's a man of many deeds. He's a man of few words, but he's a man of many deeds. He's a man of few words, but he's a man of many deeds.

Theodore Fischer, the Mayor of Deep Cove. Just a great big kid at 78

WHISKY CHEAP

There was a time when Ted was a man of few words, but he's a man of many deeds. He's a man of few words, but he's a man of many deeds. He's a man of few words, but he's a man of many deeds.

Ideal Queen Objective Of Victorian

BY BOB O'BOYLE

It wouldn't be too surprising if an easygoing Victoria man gained considerable renown and became the founder of an unusual Canadian industry one of these days—all because of a queen.

[illegible] after experiment, weeding process after weeding process.

Most of his efforts, he says, have been directed toward breeding the ideal queen bee for it is around her that the success of a hive revolves.

"When I get the best queen bee in the world," he says, "and I have just about the best now, I'll go into the business of raising them commercially."

He explains that most of the bees in Canada are imported from the United States in packages ranging in price from $7 to $9. Each contains a queen bee and a complement of drones and workers. He estimates that Saskatchewan alone imported 120,000 packages last year.

"The type we import are not pedigreed and there's only about one in 10 that is any good. They are not hearty enough, for our climate."

NEW TYPE HIVE

The apiarist has also worked [illegible] success in developing a new type of hive. The scope of this undertaking is apparent when he explains that there have been only three new hives perfected in the last 1,000 years.

"In all ordinary hives there is always only one queen bee," he explains, "even though it contains a half a million bees."

"I have tried and been fairly successful in combining two and three queens in the one hive," he says. "I have found that if you can keep enough bees together heat is conserved, and they can start raising a brood no matter how cold it is, or how early in the season."

The earlier in the season the bees swarm, he explains, the better are the chances of a good honey crop. Bee enthusiasts say a swarm in May is worth a load of hay," he says, "but last year I had two swarms in April. That proves the calibre of queen bees I have."

"They are the most incredibly clever and interesting things you ever saw," he enthuses. And he has dozens of examples to back up his claim.

But the most amazing accomplishment of the bees for their keeper is a wonder food they make called royal jelly.

"Scientists have been trying in vain to find what goes into the food for hundreds of years," Mr. Punnett said.

GREAT STRENGTH

Declaring that the jelly would probably be the greatest of wonder drugs and possibly make a super-race of humans if the potions from which it comes could be discovered, the apiarist gives an example of its strength. [illegible] and 21 days respectively to [illegible] after being fed royal jelly. [illegible] and half times as large as the worker bee."

Victoria 'Just Floating in Gulf'

Parity Freight Rates Fight Will Continue

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Last week the Board of Transport Commissioners in releasing its freight rate decisions placed Victoria an imaginary 40 miles beyond Vancouver.

The capital city of this province has thus for the purpose of computing rail freight charges become an Alice in Wonderland sort of place floating somewhere out on the Gulf of Georgia.

This has not been done to discredit Victoria. It is merely a continuation of a Canadian device which legislators have used for years to tide them over freight rate problems that became too tricky for a "straight" approach.

In the case of Victoria the board was apparently in no mood to rule which found itself being pushed out of business because it was no longer able to trade with Eastern Canada on equal freight terms with Vancouver.

RIGHT OF PARITY

This right of parity was one which had been enjoyed for about 40 years until 1949. In that year British Columbia freight users combined to end the mountain differential which had allowed the railways to make an extra charge for B.C. freight because of the hard pull over the Rocky Mountains.

Unfortunately for Victoria, the ending of the differential also gave the railways the opportunity to end the Vancouver-Victoria parity.

For Victoria, the cure was worse than the disease for it gave Vancouver industry a considerable trading advantage and it probably did a lot to discourage new industry from setting up in Victoria.

What made it even worse was that the railways used different methods of computing the extra charge Victoria should bear for its traffic to and from points east of Hope.

ROUNDABOUT ROUTE

The Canadian Pacific Railway chose a roundabout route. It measured the Vancouver-Victoria journey via Ladysmith, the proposed terminal for a barge service and finished the haul by using its E. & N. subsidiary rail line from there to Victoria. This was a distance of 100 miles.

The CNR took another course. It has a car ferry which runs direct from the CNR terminal at Port Mann on the Fraser River to Nanaimo. The distance across was 70 miles.

EXTRA FREIGHT

To further compensate the issue during the past four years Victoria shippers have paid extra freight on a mileage basis of 106 miles to all stations served by the CPR or to all areas jointly served by both railways.

The CNR was allowed to make its smaller extra charge on 70 miles only to points where it had no CPR competition.

The situation was not only unfair to Victoria but prejudiced industrial expansion.

These are the grounds for the battle that has been fought so strenuously by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and other public-minded citizens since 1949.

One of the great leaders in the fight has been Fred Hawes and his representations as chairman of the freight rates committee of the Chamber have undoubtedly played a big part in convincing the Board of Transport Commissioners that Victoria had a case.

The new fictitious mileage of 70 miles is the result.

On the basis that half a loaf is better than no bread some Victoria people are thankful, but that is not the view of the leading shippers.

Victoria businessmen wanted parity straight and uncondi[illegible]. They didn't get it but what makes them mad is that [illegible] the east Montreal was given parity with Toronto.

Rat Danger Seen In Landfill Plan

—AROUND TOWN—

The proposed garbage disposal in Baker brickyard by sanitary landfill would not be a deterrent for rats, according to Howard H. Hall of 3927 Cedar Hill Cross Road.

He claims such a method would create a nesting place for rats, it was reported, the brown rat which is common here capable of digging 20 feet into the garbage.

Mr. Hall had made a study of rats at Vancouver's False Creek area, it was reported. There was little danger of black rats, carriers of bubonic plague, becoming common here, he said.

He suggested that the city should give some thought to release garbage from boats located offshore so outgoing tides would carry the effects far to sea.

Wanted Man Held

Wilfred Coull, 35, wanted by RCMP to face a charge of manslaughter arising from an accident last October, has been arrested at Powell River, police report.

Coull is also wanted for questioning in connection with the disappearance February 9 from Victoria of a fishing boat valued at $1,500 by its owner, Harvey Gray, of 511 Broadway.

The boat, located by Vancouver police, had been repainted.

A warrant for the arrest of Coull on a manslaughter charge was issued by RCMP at Ladysmith in connection with death October 30 of Arthur Jay Brewer, 30, of Alert Bay.

He was a passenger in Coull's car that skidded on wet pavement and struck a power pole. Coull, of Campbell River, was injured.

The missing fish trailer, Linton was located at Vancouver. RCMP said Coull made a statement about the boat on his arrest.

The owner had been attempting to sell the craft. His wife said she thought the man held no power of attorney to sell the boat with whom her husband had been dealing.

Late yesterday city police had been unable to reach Mr. Gray who has been a constant search for his boat and who yesterday was aboard the trailer Bandit owned by Bill Gunderson, continuing his search through the Gulf Islands.

New Tug Could Fight Fire

A new 42-foot harbor service tug will be in service in about two months, it was announced in Victoria yesterday.

The hull of the tug Island Comet has been built at Allied Builders Yards in Vancouver and arrangements were being completed this week end to bring the hull to its Island berth by barge.

The tug will be available for emergency fire service, capable of pumping 1,500 gallons a minute from deck-level monitor or a nozzle mounted on the housing. Special flanges will be installed so that shore fire lines can be coupled to the tug.

Your Income Tax

Deepest Secrecy Shrouds Returns

BY GORDON HOLMS
Member Institute of Chartered Accountants

Income tax bureaus across the country, and the Ottawa headquarters are bound by secrecy to a degree shared only by the priest's confessional and the secrets passed on to lawyers by criminals facing capital charges.

So don't worry if you've been deluding your wife about the amount of money you make. The income tax people won't tell.

Not that wives—and many other classifications — haven't tried their best to pry out the information.

We dealt before with some income not taxable, so here is a section on the income that is taxable.

Common ones of course are salaries and wages, with subsistence allowances, pensions, and bonuses. Value of free board and living accommodation is also included.

Income received from part time work after regular hours or as reserve armed forces pay must be included. Persons employed as taxi-cab drivers, waiters, porters, barbers, bellhops and others who receive tips must include these in their incomes.

Old age security pensions are also part of taxable income—but, of course, do not reach taxable proportions if they are the sole income.

Investment income will be dealt with separately.

TV Talk

BY ROY PARRETT

Each time television aerials of local make are mentioned in this column, a howl goes up from persons in the business, who have axes to grind.

Any time a local man makes a better mousetrap, baby buggy, or TV aerial, it is a legitimate news story. I see no special brief for any particular make of antenna.

With the exception of the local designed and built ghost-cancelling antenna which has not yet gone on the market, there is little to choose between a number of the various models of various makes.

I make no secret of my views on the cost gadget aerials, however. People who buy these are throwing money down the drain.

Viewers are better advised to consult a reliable TV dealer before buying aerials reputed to be just as good.

Staking Rush Believed Record

Copper Find Booms Ontario Town

GERALDTON, Ont. (BUP) — This tiny lumber and mining centre aches with the growing pains of a boom-town as sourdoughs hustle through in droves to chalk up the biggest staking record in mineral-rich Ontario's history.

Roughly clad prospectors with lean grubstakes competed with men from nationally prominent corporations in a drive to get in first with the most claims on land believed to hide huge deposits of copper and other minerals.

Hotel rooms were almost impossible to get. Men with several days' growth of whiskers trekked here from a dozen points around Geraldton looking for beds and settled for space in the cramped lobby of the Thunder Bay hotel. Rooming House operators put prospectors up two to a bed.

Business was brisker than it had ever been in stores where most of the trade until a week or so ago came from trappers and lumbermen. Grocers reported a heavy run on canned foods and staples such as tea, coffee and sugar. Clothiers whose stores were normally stocked to handle the needs of a handful of bushmen ordered extra supplies as crowds eager to capitalize on the mineral boom rushed into town.

It was reported that one company had sent men to stake 800 claims in an area near here the size of Toronto.

Individual prospectors must do the staking because a claim cannot be registered in the name of a firm.

At Port Arthur Ont., the nearest major city to Geraldton, officials of the mining recorder's office said more claims were being submitted for registering than they could handle. They said they were 600 parcels of claims behind.

The drive was sparked by a large Canadian-American mining corporation as a result of an aerial survey. The survey showed that a huge, potentially mineral-rich fold extended several square miles around the district.

A British-owned metals company followed, and sent several graduates of the Royal School of Mines into the field.

Other firms took their cue from the bigger ones. Then private stakers who heard about the possibilities of finding copper and other minerals and making large profits moved in.

Most of the independent prospectors knocked their stakes into the ground in the area northeast of the town after finding out it was overlooked in early staking. Earlier, many had gone as far afield as 35 miles on either side of the first find without knowing that land much closer had not been staked.

Three Men, Girl Killed in Smash

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Three men and a Vancouver girl died and another man was severely injured Saturday when their crowded coupe was hit by a Canadian National Railways flier as they set out on a trans-continental motor trip in the West coast.

Police said they believed no accident would have occurred had the car's driver not missed a turn on Highway No. 2 about a mile west of here. The car was on the Hardy side road close to the highway when it was hit and jammed onto the cowcatcher of the Toronto to Chicago flier soon after 2 a.m. It was carried 150 yards down the track.

Dead are Miss Olga Chamiak, 19, of Vancouver, Walter Wusyk, 26, William G. Jackson, 22, and Rudy Tokash, 22, the latter three are all from Toronto. Though papers on Jackson and Tokash showed they had lived in Edmonton.

Severely hurt was Andrew Lucyk, identified as from Edmonton and Toronto. His condition is fair.

No Loan Aid On Old Homes

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Friday night defeated by 79 to 8 a CCF proposal to allow the government to ensure loans for the purchase of "existing" homes.

The vote came during the clause-by-clause study of government housing legislation which permits government insured loans for the building of new homes or addition of more dwellings to a house.

The proposal, moved by Ross Thatcher (CCF, Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) and supported by Hayden Stanton (CC, Leeds), would allow more people to buy "sound, solid "homes" for as little as $5,000, far below the present cost of new homes.

Works Minister Winters, sponsor of the housing bill, said the government feels that for the present the legislation should concentrate on provisions to encourage new construction, not the purchase of older houses.

Jim Nesbitt on Politics

Mr. Nesbitt well-known writer and broadcaster on political and historical events, is a frequent contributor to The Daily Colonist.

Social Crediters and CCFers want to wipe out the Liberals. They're quite bold in saying so. The Liberals struggle valiantly to keep their identity.

Social Crediters and CCFers are of the opinion that if only the Liberals would disappear the battle lines would be drawn. It would be a straight fight between Social Credit and CCF. To these two groups the Conservatives no longer have even the slightest significance.

But as long as the five Liberals sit there in the House making speeches, interrupting, keeping in the public eye, they're a threat to both Social Credit and CCF.

Goodness knows but that one day the Liberals might become the opposition. The CCF doesn't want to take any chances on that. And should the Liberals become the Opposition, Social Crediters know that sooner or later they'd become the Government.

Social Crediters and CCFers don't like the political uncertainty the Liberals cause. Social Crediters want to be the lone voice of what is called free enterprise; the CCF wants to stand alone for Socialism. As it is now, it's difficult to tell what the Liberals are: free enterprisers, or part-time Socialists.

A letter arrived in the Legislative Buildings the other day addressed to Mr. Deane Finlayson, MLA. Now, where has the writer of that letter been? Hasn't he heard that Mr. Finlayson was twice beaten for the legislature in Oak Bay, once beaten for the House of Commons in Nanaimo?

However, such a letter should encourage Mr. Finlayson. It should give him renewed hope.

* * *

Mrs. Lydia Arsens shows signs of becoming an able legislative debater. She's developing a nice sense of humor and ability to laugh at herself; she's becoming adept with a quick retort.

For some reason it has become popular to snicker at Mrs. Arsens. Her suggestions are no more ridiculous than a lot of suggestions that have come out of the B.C. legislature through the years. Mrs. Arsens is to be congratulated on her suggestions.

She's an ornament to the legislature, too; she's a pretty woman, and when she laughs she's merry and bright.

It's no wonder CCF Mr. Harding of Kaslo-Slocan says that of all the members of the assembly, Mrs. Arsens is the only one he wants to take a second look at.

One of these days Mrs. Arsens will wake up to find she has become plain Lydia to the man and woman in the street as Mrs. Hodges became Nancy as Mrs. Rolston became Tilly as Mrs. Stevens became Dolly, as Mrs. Smith became Mary Ellen.

When that day comes Lydia will be a figure in our political history.

Mrs. Arsens is astute too. Her explanation of the petition to boost members' indemnities was as skillful as Gordon Wismer himself would have made it.

Mr. Wismer was a great one to explain. Sometimes his explanations didn't make much sense, but he always got away with them, he was that plausible.

So it was with Mrs. Arsens' explanation about that petition. Not a real petition, Mr. Speaker, just an idea, a feeler, to see if the government had some spare cash for members who must live in hotels when they're in Victoria for the session.

Mrs. Arsens explanation was altogether delightful — vague, and round about in the best Wismer mumbo-jumbo fashion. Mrs. Arsens is a good politician. A good politician always skirts an awkward situation.

* * *

CCF Mr. Carpenter or Spencer may have something when he says the premier keeps two vacancies in his cabinet in order to make his Social Credit backbenchers good boys. As Mr. Gargrave says, Mr. Bennett does that just as the Liberal government in Ottawa keeps vacancies in the Senate.

There's not one backbencher in Social Credit ranks who wouldn't like to be a cabinet minister. In order to be a cabinet minister he must keep in the premier's good books. This year Social Credit backbenchers are being very good boys indeed, the premier is delighted with them, they're all so good.

As CCF Mr. Strachan of Cowichan-Newcastle said backbenchers are doing a lot of apple polishing this session; they're buttering up the premier and his government saying what a wonderful, wonderful government it is.

It wouldn't be surprising if Mrs. Arsens was taken into the cabinet. The premier wants a cabinet minister from Vancouver Island. A woman in the cabinet too makes a hit with the women and women have votes these days. The premier is good enough politician to know this.

Mrs. Arsens is a former schoolteacher; she was very definite ideas about education, even though her ideas make a lot of people scream.

However, education ministers have always made people scream. They're either too progressive or too old-fashioned.

The CCF wants Mr. Willis-ton of Fort George as minister of education. But the premier, deep down inside him, is toying with the idea of making Mrs. Arsens the minister of education. He appears to be growing more pleased with her legislative performances each day. He pays no attention to those who snicker at Lydia. He has great hopes she'll be a Social Credit power, as was Tilly Rolston.

MLAs are going to miss Marjorie Holmes when she retires in a few days as assistant provincial librarian.

For more than 30 years Miss Holmes has been researcher extraordinary for members of B.C. legislature. If they want to delve into the past to see what some honorable member said long ago, Miss Holmes has done the digging for them. In a jiffy she can find out when and so was the minister of such-and-such.

She has no politics, but she knows more about politics than most people in the province.

Miss Holmes has done a splendid job through the years and her work will remain to guide future members of the legislature.

London Letter

Canada House Reception Delightful

BY L. BULLOCK-WEBSTER

On February 18 the High Commissioner for Canada and Mrs. Norman Robertson held a delightful reception at Canada House, in Trafalgar Square. Miss Ellie MacLaughlin, the social secretary, whose memory for names and faces is quite remarkable, was an invaluable aid in introducing people and seeing that everyone was looked after. There were not many British Columbians present on this occasion but we met Colonel W. Rae from Vancouver, an officer in the original Seaforth Highlanders of Canada. We also met Sir Launcelot Graham, an old friend of Sir Robert Holland, in India.

From there we went to the Savoy to see the new play "Angels in Love" and perhaps before talking about the play it may be worthwhile to consider the past history of this interesting locality. Down a narrow turning out of the busy Strand you come to a quiet spot where once stood the famous Savoy Palace which was built by the uncle of Eleanor, wife of Henry III. In those days it was a meeting place for princes, ecclesiastics and great artists. He bequeathed it to the monks of Montjoy from whom it was bought by Queen Eleanor for her second son the Earl of Lancaster.

KING'S RESIDENCE

About 1356, after the battle of Poitiers, it became the residence of King John of France who was then a captive in England. John was given his freedom in 1360 but he died in the Savoy Palace in 1364. You will read in Froissart that the nobles of England were saddened by his death for he had been very popular with the court and the aristocracy. Later the Savoy was the London residence of John of Gaunt, and the poet Chaucer was married there.

Stow says, "there was no house in the realm that could compare in beauty and stateliness with the Palace of Savoy" but Wat Tyler and his followers burnt and destroyed it.

NEVER RESTORED

It was never restored as a palace but Henry VII had it rebuilt as a hospital which after many vicissitudes was dissolved in the reign of the first Queen Elizabeth. The final remains of the old Savoy Palace were all swept away when Waterloo Bridge was built. And then in our times the present Savoy Hotel and Savoy Theatre were erected; the latter housing the Gilbert and Sullivan operas for a generation.

ABOUT PLAY

Well this new play deals with Little Lord Fauntleroy and it might tend to destroy one's retrospective enjoyment of the original story for the charming and affectionate child has grown into a chocolate-eating, thoughtless introvert already married for a year to a girl as hopelessly ignorant of the facts of life as his aggravating self. But this cleverly contrived production of the lives of Dearest, the old Earl of Dorincourt, and Cedric, with their new associates, is so funny that one cannot help being pleased with it.

Dearest has been waiting anxiously for the hoped for news of a new arrival in the family. As no such event seems likely she asks a few searching questions and being shattered by the young people's replies, and their general attitude inwards marriage, she rearranges their rooms in their absence substituting a large four-poster for the twin beds that her son preferred.

TOO SHY

Dearest is too shy to explain her hopes and requirements to Cedric but she has a pretty friend, Violet, Comtesse de Chantemesse, and entrusts to her the responsibility of enlightening Cedric while his wife is away on a visit. His reaction to her instruction is somewhat embarrassing, especially as the old Earl comes upon them making violent love on a hay stack. The only way to pacify Dorincourt is to pretend that Violet is Lady Fauntleroy whom he has not yet met. But as you might expect this manoeuvre precipitates some complicated situations.

In the end everyone is happy. Lustace Pomeroy Jones, a friend of the family, unwittingly disposes of the old Earl with a cup of poisoned tea he intended for someone else. He is then accepted by Violet with whom he is violently in love. His elder brother, Sir Pomeroy Pomeroy Jones, marries Dearest, and Lord and Lady Fauntleroy, now the Earl and Countess of Dorincourt, are launched into a normal married life. Hugh Mills the author of the play, has written a most amusing dialogue. It is a play that a Little Theatre group would enjoy.

TWO ACTS

There are two acts with two scenes in each but the setting is the same interior throughout. There are four men and four women and a small part butler. All the parts are good and practically foolproof. Two Canadians deserve very great credit for the play's appeal. Bernard Braden directed it most successfully and his pretty wife Barbara Kelly plays Dearest, the Hon. Mrs. Errol, with great charm and distinction. All the others are good. Maxine Audley, as the Comtesse de Chaumont, is most attractive. Peter Hammond makes Cedric just the sort of "drip" the author intended. Kynaston Reeves is a peremptory aristocratic grand father.

He can be overbearing, haughty, and what a South African would call "parmantig" without losing our sympathy. Henry Kendall, as Sir Pomeroy, simply oozes with unctuous pomposity, and Peter Reynolds, as his eccentric brother is the most fascinating little patricide and promiscuous murderer. Did he push his father over a cliff in Switzerland. Certainly not. He wouldn't do a vulgar thing like that, especially with all the hotel telescopes watching their climb. A little sulphuric acid that he spilled had a deleterious effect on the rope they were using, and its partition caused a most unfortunate accident.

Another success for the Eradens.

Wrecked Liner Hauled Upright

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — Salvage experts took 36 minutes to right the fire-wrecked Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada Saturday, climax to 11 months of meticulous preparation.

Maritime engineers described the operation as the greatest salvage feat in Britain's maritime history, comparable with the righting of the Normandie in New York harbor and the raising of the battleship Oklahoma in Pearl Harbor.

The 20,235-ton Empress of Canada was gutted in a fire January 24 and 25, 1953 and keeled over at the dock here. Origin of the fire has never been definitely established. Arson was not ruled out.

Sixteen concrete-embedded winches with huge steel hawsers yesterday pulled the Empress from her side to an almost upright angle. The liner's flat bottom is now settled in the mud. It will take six weeks to pump the Empress out, then she will go to drydock to be made seaworthy for the last sad voyage to the shipbreakers.

HEAVY LOSS

Total cost of salvaging the hulk will be more than $400,000. As scrap it will bring about $112,000. However the operation had to be done even at a financial loss because the local docks and harbor board must accept responsibility for removing a wreck.

The $5,500,000 liner lay at a 90-degree list when the 16 winches slowly began hauling it up. Great fountains of dirty water shot into the air, blown by the force of the compressed air pumped into the hull before the salvaging began.

Some 250 men took part in the operation. In half an hour the winches had yanked the hulk from its side to a 45-degree angle. The wreck was held in that position while engineers changed their tackle before continuing the operation. Twenty minutes later it had been pulled to a 36-degree angle.

It continued to rise steadily as the rattle and clatter of the winches increased and the great nine-inch hawsers took the strain.

Five Congressmen Get 'Sick Leave'

WASHINGTON (NANA) — It's all right for the five wounded members of the House of Representatives to take time off to get well.

In fact, the five can stay away indefinitely now that the House has voted them official permission.

Amid all the post mortem discussions following the shooting, members did not forget their official duties down to the slightest detail.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Actually, the House membership did not vote permission for the five to take time off. It agreed to their absence by "unanimous consent" which means Republican and Democratic leaders got together and decided it would be OK. Nobody objected so it is the same as a unanimous vote.

Even so the absence of the five members had to be requested by other members to make it official. And in so doing not a one mentioned the fact that all five had been shot.

They were granted an indefinite leave of absence "on account of illness" as the unanimous consent resolution reads.

NOTED IN RECORD

In the Congressional Record due notice was also taken of the fact that the five were not playing hookey from Congress. The record contains this paragraph:

"By unanimous consent leave of absence was granted to Messrs. Bentley (at the request of Mr. Arends), Jensen (at the request of Mr. Arends), Roberts (at the request of Mr. Rains), Davis of Tennessee (at the request of Mr. Priest), Fallon (at the request of Mr. Garmatz) indefinitely, on account of illness."

Parisians Deserting Old Subway

PARIS (NANA) — In revolt against what they describe as their "primitive underground trains," Parisians are deserting the Paris Metro (subway) by the millions and either walking to their offices or buying bicycles.

A survey just completed by the worried Metro company showed that the trains are now carrying 700,000 fewer passengers a month than a year ago. Even in November, one of the worst weather months in Paris, the travelers preferred the rain, snow and icy winds in the streets above to the primitive lighting, dirty trains, dreary stations and antiquated ticket system down below.

The municipal bus company meanwhile is taking 1,000,000 more fares a month than a year ago. Ironically, it was just 100 years ago when Parisian society turned out in force, and with much cheering sampled "the novelty of traveling underground."

Supreme Chief Ranger To Visit Foresters Here

Louis C. Probst, the Supreme (the Ancient Order (or Guild) Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters, will visit Victoria March 13 in the course of a nationwide tour.

The tour is part of the 80th jubilee of the order.

Mr. Probst will be guest speaker at a banquet in the lower Crystal ballroom March 13, sponsored jointly by courts in Victoria, Duncan and Port Alberni.

The Cadet Corps, accompanied by the Eagles Band, will escort Mr. Porbst and his attendant officers from the CPR Dock on his arrival.

History of the Foresters goes back to the time noted for the escapades of Robin Hood and his Merrie Men of Sherwood Forest. A group of men of that time who were employed in trusted positions in the King's forests banded themselves into a fraternity, the purpose being to render mutual aid to their fraternal brothers in times of need.

Hundreds of years after this founding the fraternity was opened to all men of good standing and became known as the Ancient Order of Foresters.

In 1874, the first court was established in the U.S.A. at Newark, New Jersey, and became The Independent Order of Foresters.

Coincident with this establishment delegates of the order elected as Supreme Chief Ranger, Oronhyatekha, a Mohawk Indian of Canadian birth, who rose from a humble heritage to become a doctor of medicine and an associate of kings and princes.

The order's Supreme Court executive officers are located in the order's head office at Toronto in a building raised under supervision of Oronhyatekha. The building was at one time the tallest in the British Empire.

The Victoria court includes such work as aiding charity, providing a blood donor group, loaning wheel chairs to paralyzed members and such social activities as dances, dinners and parties, sports, a cadet corps for 36 boys between the ages of 14 and 18 years and a junior corps for boys.

Canadians Spend as Much On Drugs as on Doctors

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Canadians spend almost as much on drugs to cure their ills as they pay to hospitals and dentists. And about one-quarter of the average family's health budget goes to buy protection under public and private medical and hospital care plans.

Health Minister Martin said yesterday these figures are some of preliminary findings of a country-wide sickness survey made in 1951.

Canada's total health bill in 1951 was $675,000,000, and only one in five Canadians went through the year without an illness.

Canada's general death rate has been cut by a third in 50 years, putting her fourth among the countries of the world, while her death rate among older persons is lowest of any of the leading countries.

Mr. Martin said improvements in medical care during the last half-century have been paced by a corresponding increase in the cost of keeping well.

In the survey year, Canadian families reported health expenditures of about $374,000,000.

A breakdown of their health dollar showed the largest share, 24 cents, spent to buy protection under public and private medical and hospital care schemes. Direct payments to doctors took 23.5 cents, to hospitals 12.4 cents and to dentists 8.8 cents. The 19.5 cents of each dollar spent on drugs almost equalled the total going to hospitals and dentists. Eye services, nursing care and other costs took the other 12.2 cents of the dollar.

The country's health bill of $675,000,000 was made up of $585,000,000 spent on personal health care and treatment, $50,000,000 on public health and services provided by all levels of government and $40,000,000 on construction of hospitals and other treatment centres.

GOVERNMENT PAYMENTS

Of the $585,000,000 of personal health spendings, families spent $374,000,000 and the balance was met out of government revenues. Provincial and municipal governments carried more than 70 per cent of total government health expenditures.

Mr Martin said the 1951 survey also found that of every 100 people, 48 spent some time in bed through illness during the year, another 10 were kept away from work but not confined to bed and 32 [illegible] which may have been minor.

"On the basis of these figures, Canada's productivity loss because of illness can be estimated at between 40,000,000 and 50,000,000 man-days a year," he said.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1◇	Pass	2◇	Dbl.
Pass	2♠	3◇	3♠
Pass	Pass	4◇	All pass

After cashing two rounds of spades the defenders shifted to clubs. South had to surrender one heart and one club in addition to the two tricks already lost, so he was down one. This was no loss in fact, it was a slight gain—as against allowing the opponents to play three spades, which could have been made against anything but an opening lead of a low heart—an almost impossible choice for North.

Although the swing on this hand was slight, it might have gone in favor of North-South if they had used the jump bid in a minor suit as non-forcing or pre-emptive. North could then bid three diamonds immediately, and now East is going to think twice about his take-out double. If West's suit happens to be clubs—quite likely from the shape of East's hand—he will have to come in at the four level and the set may be considerable. Probably East will choose the conservative course and pass the three-diamond bid. South too will pass, since the bid is not forcing and he has two unstopped majors.

The non-forcing double raise of the minor has much to recommend it. Since the minor suit opening may be made on a three-card suit, the jump raise must include at least five trumps headed by at least two face-cards. When these two high cards are ace-king, ace-queen or king-queen, a large part of the responder's honor strength is concentrated in the trump suit. If he had considerable strength outside of the trump suit he would be able to respond with two no-trump, or with a bid in another suit which would be forcing for one round. Hence, it is logical that the double raise in the minor suit should be pre-emptive in character, although never weaker than the North hand of today's deal. If the opener has two of the three side suits stopped he can go on to three no-trump; with two suits wide open, however, he should eschew no-trump in favor of some other call or a pass.

Employment Increasing Victoria Report Shows

Victoria's general employment picture is showing improvement, the total number of jobless continuing to drop and wider employment for women becoming available.

The National Employment Service reports there was no outstanding demand in any particular line of work in the men's section, a steady increase in work in most industries.

There has been improvement for women workers; laundry and dry cleaning plants employing a few more women. Daily household workers are in demand as are waitresses.

Jobs for university students are being notified to all NES offices in university cities in good numbers. It is expected that longer periods of employment for students will result from the drive to locate both summer and permanent jobs.

The fees of inexperience run high

One costly error often made in the name of "economy" is the appointment of a friend or relative as Executor. Unfamiliar with the various ways in which Succession Duties and other taxes can be held to the minimum, the amateur executor may miss many opportunities to effect substantial savings. Or, if he consults experts in taxation, property and business management, administration costs run up.

But with National Trust as Executor, one fee covers the entire cost. And repeatedly, this fee has proven actually less than the savings National Trust has effected for the beneficiaries. Puerto Rico Background

Lunatic Boss Of Assassins Back in Jail

New York's Puerto Rican colony spawned last week's Washington gunfire in Congress and the 1950 attack on President Truman. Is it something in this slum area which breeds such hostility? Loyal Puerto Ricans say no, that it's the fanatic hold a wild-eyed old man has over a small but devoted band of followers. Here is the story behind the big Washington story.

BY SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—Back in the late 20s, a bushy-haired Puerto Rican with eyes of fire and the look of a messiah was acting out a fantastic charade.

It was real only in his tormented mind. In his mind, Puerto Rico had become an independent republic and he, its president. The seat of his "government" was Aguas Buenas, south of San Juan, and every morning it was the "president's" custom to call in his secretray and say:

"Please ask the foreign minister to come in with the morning mail."

In those days, Pedro Albizu Campos was a national joke in Puerto Rico. But nobody has laughed lately.

In 1950, two of his followers in the Nationalist party tried to assassinate the president of the United States. Last week four Nationalists tried to shoot up the Congress of the United States and wounded five Representatives.

The full story of Campos and his Nationalist party reads like a psychiatrist's case history of a paranoid, someone who suffers from delusions of persecution.

Searching for an insight into the Nationalists, you work the trail back. You start in New York. Both assassination attempts—against President Truman in 1950 and Congress last week — were launched from here.

Better Than Home

New York has about 450,000 Puerto Ricans, roughly twice the population of the capital city of San Juan. They have been coming here for years, but the heaviest migration (more than 260,000) has occurred since the end of the Second World War.

Most of those who remain live in dirty, crowded slums.

You hear complaints: Puerto Ricans in New York can't get a decent place to live; they are discriminated against; they get the worst jobs; they are supposed to be "cheap labor."

But bad as Puerto Rican living conditions may be here, they are far better than in Puerto Rico. They say they don't want to go back.

In trying to trace the fuse of the bitterness which exploded at Blair House and Congress, one must look back in time and space to the tormented mind of a young man.

Pedro Albizu Campos, dark-skinned son of a wealthy merchant, was a graduate of Harvard by the time the First World War came along. He was drafted and assigned to an all-Negro outfit.

Here the madness emerged. Burning with fury over what he called a terrible humilation, Campos vowed vengeance.

Back in Puerto Rico, Campos began organizing the Nationalist party, screeching for independence and always preaching race hatred and violence.

"He gathered around him a tiny group of young radical hotheads," said a Puerto Rican. "They were literally lunatics."

At his peak, according to estimates here, Campos gathered around him about 2,000 young men and women.

Bloody Outbreaks

In 1936, Campos incurred the wrath of the University of Puerto Rico students by calling them "effeminates" and "little women" because they refused to follow him. The students staged a mass meeting to denounce him. A car full of nationalist muscle men tried to break it up.

Police ordered the car to head for the police station. The Nationalists opened fire. Two police and three Nationalists were killed.

In the next two weeks police stations were shot up and post offices bombed. In all, the outbreaks took 13 lives.

Campos and Julio Pinto Gandia (now reputed to be the leader of the Nationalist wing in New York) were arrested with other party leaders and sentenced to six years for insurrection.

In 1948, Campos returned to Puerto Rico, still singing his hymn of hate, and in October, 1950, led his fanatics in another bloody revolt.

About 30 people were killed as Campo's wild-eyed followers tried to fulfill his oft-repeated boast, "If I told them to shoot every man on the police force, they'd do it next day."

Two days after the island outbreaks, two Puerto Ricans tried to shoot their way into Blair House and kill President Truman. One guard and one terrorist were killed.

Back in Puerto Rico, Campos was arrested again and sentenced to terms totaling 56 years. In 1951, he was suffering from so many hallucinations he was removed to a prison hospital. Last September, Campos was pardoned by Governor Luis Munoz Marin in a "humanitarian" gesture in behalf of an obviously unbalanced man.

Until Saturday, the 62-year-old Nationalist leader was a free man, sitting in his house in Puerto Rico swathing his legs in wet towels and muttering that "the American government is bombarding my legs with atomic rays."

But Saturday morning Puerto Rican police blasted their way into his home with tear gas and hauled him off to the hospital as he gasped, "I am asphyxiated." Thirty-five of his closest associates were also arrested in an island-wide roundup and only two remain at large.

"When you try to argue this one point with the Nationalists," says a man who has tried, "they say: 'It must be true. If Don Pedro says the American government is attacking him with atomic rays, then that's exactly what's happening.'"

Little Bit of Olde Texas?

Two groups of the Chamber of Commerce are at each other's throats as a result of Empress Pete No. 1 blowing in on the Causeway, as suggested by Mrs. Lydia Arsens, Victoria MLA. While the industrial group of the chamber sits back and beams, the tourist trade group weeps salt tears for the city's little bit of Olde England atmosphere. A second well has drilled down to Viking sands just north of the ivied Union Club, and high hopes are held for a wildcat rig in the croquet pitch of Government House.—(Colonist Skulduggery.)

FBI Takes Drug King, Huge Haul

Dope Worth $2,000,000

NEW YORK (UP)—Federal agents Saturday disclosed the arrest of a man described as the nation's biggest narcotics pedlar and the seizure of more than $2,000,000 worth of heroin and opium in two dingy apartments.

Saul Gelb, a 57-year-old Austrian immigrant with a criminal record dating back 40 years, was capiured Friday night carrying more than three pounds of pure heroin. A few minutes later agents picked up Mrs. Joan Kaufmann, an unemployed cosmetician who police said had been working with Gleb.

MORE HEROIN FOUND

Gelb was arrested outside a squalid, cold-water flat which agents said he had been using to process pure heroin and opium into salable quantities for addicts. Inside the flat, agents found 4½ more pounds of pure heroin, 40 pounds of processed opium ready for smoking and 15 pounds of crude opium.

James C. Ryan, district supervisor of the federal narcotics bureau, said Gleb was the most important narcotics violator in the country. Ryan said police and federal agents had been tailing Gelb continuously since March, 1952.

He was called "the apparent successor" to the late Waxey Gordon, whose real name was Irving F. Wexler, and who died in Alcatraz prison on June 24, 1952, at the age of 63.

WOMAN ARRESTED

Mrs. Kaufmann, a slender, grey-haired woman, was arrested in another apartment, also apparently used as a "factory," police said. Agents found a quantity of opium being processed on her kitchen stove. Further search disclosed opium smoking equipment, 1,100 ounces of opium ready for smoking concealed in a compartment under a bedroom floorboard and 3½ pounds of pure heroin.

Theft Suspect Jailed

Arrested while waiting for a taxi, Raymond Steven Fogg, 25, of Government Street, was charged with the theft of $160 from a Saanich home yesterday afternoon.

All of the money was recovered.

William Cowan, of 4875 West Saanich Road, from whom the money was stolen, was attending a funeral at the time of the theft.

Constable Robin Stewart, of the Saanich Police Department, who made the arrest, said Fogg was behind bars less than 20 minutes after the call from Mr. Cowan had been received.

He reported the money had been stolen from a cigarette tin which was in the drawer of a bedroom bureau.

CASH FOUND

The constable said that $160 was taken from Fogg, and another $240 was found on the veranda where the arrest was made.

A neighbor of Mr. Cowan's, who saw a man acting suspiciously before the robbery, aided police by volunteering a description.

Fogg will appear in Saanich Police court, Monday, at 9.30 a.m.

Body of Woman Found on Rock

VANCOUVER (CP) — The body of a woman was found stretched over a rock at the edge of a lake in a residential district here Saturday.

Police identified her as Mrs. Vera Doris Station of suburban South Burnaby. Her husband is believed to be employed by a city packing firm.

Police began an immediate investigation into the death but at a late hour Saturday said that cause still was not known. The body was found by two eight-year-old boys playing in Trout Lake Park.

The woman's feet dangled in a few inches of water, her hair reached close to the water on the other side of the rock.

Detectives said there were no marks of violence visible on the body, nor any identification in the clothing.

They said the woman had been dead about eight hours when found, placing death early Saturday morning.

The woman, thought to be in her early twenties, was wearing a maroon coat, grey slacks, blue gloves, a mauve blouse, rubber-soled oxfords and no stockings.

She was about five feet three inches tall.

"It was almost as if she had been standing with her back to the rock and fell over backwards," an officer added.

"We were riding through the park," David said, "when I saw the coat.

"I said 'Oh, look at the coat on the rock' and we went over and saw the woman. We didn't go near her. We went right home."

Used Cars: 95 Cents

DETROIT (UP)—Used car prices hit rock bottom at Ernie Grisson's lot Saturday when two middle-aged vehicles went for 95 cents each.

One car was a 1946 Chevrolet and the other a '47 Kaiser.

"They weren't treasures or anything," Grisson said, "but they both ran."

Grissom advertised the 95 cent price on television. He said the move paid off when an estimated 1,000 eager buyers crowded into his lot to take advantage of the bargain.

They wrote their names on slips of paper and dropped them into a box. One winner was selected in the morning and the other in the afternoon.

Salesmen said they had "big crowds" all day and reported sales on other cars were above normal.

Elderly Man Hit by Car At Crossing

Struck by a car while crossing Douglas Street at Topaz Avenue, Hookham Singh, 74, of 607 Manchester Road, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday night with a broken leg and possible rib fractures.

Police identified the driver of the car as Mrs. Dillget Gill, of Lake Cowichan.

Education Week

Schools Set For Review

As a feature of Education Week, The Colonist is presenting a series of articles prepared by key members of Greater Victoria's school board staff.

By JOHN GOUGH
Municipal Inspector of Schools

This is the beginning of Education Week, a time when Canadians from coast to coast are being urged to take a closer look at their schools. At the moment, many parents and employers appear to be satisfied with the product of the schools; others are more critical. Education Week seeks to give the public a better understanding of what the schools are trying to do and how they actually operate. It proclaims that "Education is everybody's business" and suggests that the general public should co-operate with educators in providing the best training for every child.

Many local schools will be open to the public during Education Week. Parents of certain schools will receive invitations through their children when they may visit classrooms. Those who take advantage of this will have an opportunity to observe a school in action. Will they find the children well behaved? Will they see emphasis placed on reading, writing and arithmetic? Yes, they will. And at the same time they may see that many teachers are working with over-large classes.

PROUD OF PROGRAM

British Columbia, in common with the other provinces, has cause to be proud of the fact that it now carries on a program of public education unequaled in the history of this vast Dominion. Today, a high school education is available for many who, in former years, would not have gone beyond the elementary school level. This has come about, to some extent, by public demand. It is also in keeping with our democratic way of life which requires that every child be offered the same educational opportunity. The opportunity to learn as much as his ability and effort will permit. The use of examinations that would exclude students of below-average ability, in order that the intellectual ones only may be taught, would lead to the class system in vogue generations ago.

British Columbia's school system is but a century old. Yet it is highly respected across Canada. Great advances have been made in providing for the needs of the youth from six to 18 years by classroom instruction and by correspondence courses.

Further progress will come as educators and the public find solutions for at least three major problems that beset the schools. First, there is the increasing pupil enrollment; this generally means large classes where a scarcity of classrooms prevails. Second, the country is faced with a shortage of adequately trained teachers, the number reaching 7,000 across Canada at this moment. Third, costs of school construction are high. Authorities say that these conditions will become much more serious before they start to improve.

Canada's Pacific province is beginning to feel the effect of the higher birth rate experienced across the Dominion during the last 25 years. From 1930 to 1940, babies arrived at the rate of 25 an hour. In 1952, the stork began to land 45 times an hour. By 1960, it is expected that one Canadian child will be born each minute. In addition to these Canadian-born citizens, immigrant children under 18 years are entering Canada at the rate of about 4,000 every month. No wonder Canada's school population is expanding by 100,000 annually.

To look after the growing numbers of children entering schools in Canada, 2,500 classrooms must be built each year. Many of these are needed in British Columbia, where the population increased twice as fast as the average for all Canada from 1941 to 1951. For some years to come, certainly until 1960, the schools of this province must be ready to accommodate an extra 12,500 pupils annually. This means an additional expenditure of about $5,000,000 a year.

DROP UNLIKELY

The cost of education has been like the cost of most articles and services. There appears to be little hope of it dropping in view of the factors mentioned already. Where criticism of schools exists, it can often be attributed to concern over who shall pay, more than a real dissatisfaction with what the schools are doing. Fortunately, both federal and provincial authorities are searching for more satisfactory ways of financing education. The cost of training Canada's youth to take their places in the complex world is high but it is not a hundredth part of the cost of sending them out ignorant.

'Old Lady' of 1870 Sold

Famed Alaska Gold Ship, Victoria Out of Service

SEATTLE (AP)—The Alaska Steamship Co's steamer Victoria, an old lady of 84 who saw more excitement around the world than any one man, has been sold.

The high cost of operating the "Vic" in the Alaska service was given as the reason for her sale to the Dulien Steel Products Co. The ship's small hatches also prevented her use in modern-day carrying of big new unitized containers.

The Victoria, oldest ship in the American merchant marine, has been inactive since 1952 when she was employed for the last time to help handle peak season traffic to Alaska.

BUILT IN 1870

Built in 1870 in Scotland as a combination sail-steam ship for the Cunard Line, the Victoria gained her greatest fame as the Alaska "gold ship."

For many years she was the first steamer to reach Nome after the ice breakup in the Bering Sea. She often was the last to leave for the "outside."

In the old days of the Nome trade it was a common-occurrence for the Victoria to handle as much as $2,000,000 a trip in gold from the Seward Peninsula gold fields. Bricks were shipped in canvas bags valued at $25,000 each. It was said that at times there was not enough room to stow the gold and it was carried in the purser's office on the floor.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

The Victoria's future is uncertain, but Louis Dulien, president of the Dulien Co., said "at present there are no plans for scrapping her."

"The Victoria may wind up in a historical movie," he said, "or she may become a floating museum."

Coffee Vanishes; Stevedores Held

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Four longshoremen are under arrest, charged with the 1954 version of an old crime—the bootlegging of coffee.

San Francisco police and the FBI said the arrests were "just the beginning" of a crackdown on a wide-spread coffee-bootlegging ring on the San Francisco and Oakland waterfronts.

Police Inspector John Curtain said the ring has been stealing thousands of dollars worth of high-grade green coffee beans from ships docking here.

The stolen beans were smuggled off the piers, roasted and presumably sold, he said.

Curtain said the longshoremen tore open 152-pound sacks of the green coffee, pretending the sacks were ripped in handling, and hid quantities of the beans in their shirts, pockets and lunch pails.

In some instances, he said, entire sacks were taken. Police are still trying to find out how these sacks got past pier guards.

Black Bears Injure 43

WASHINGTON (AP)—Forty-three persons were injured, none seriously, by bears at Yellowstone National Park last year, when the park had 1,326,838 visitors, the U.S. national park service reported Saturday.

Expert Claims It's Coming

Split-Second Accuracy Ahead for Weathermen

Blue skies will be the order today as Victoria and nearly all other parts of the province are given a foretaste of spring.

This is the local forecast and probably will be correct.

But imagine picking up your morning paper, reading and believing "Rain will start at 4.32 p.m. and end at 10.46 p.m."

This will be possible "certainly within 10 years, possibly within five," according to Capt. Howard T. Orville, chairman of the U.S. advisory committee on weather control, speaking on a radio program Saturday.

Orville said development of a national "electronic network" will take the guesswork out of weather forecasting.

Until then, however, one can't very well do without the services of the weathermen up at Gonzales Heights.

They said yesterday that sunny skies would follow an overnight frost today. The mercury would range from a low of 32 degrees to a high of 48 this afternoon. Monday's outlook, however, is cloudy.

Bonn Checks Bug Poison

FRANKFURT (AP)—Bonn government authorities moved Saturday to check a wave of West German bug poison suicides after 24 persons had taken their lives in the past few days with insecticide.

Queen Stops Car For Immigrants

GEELONG, Australia (CP)—Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh made a hit here yesterday with immigrants recently arrived from Europe.

The new arrivals, many of whom had been waiting all night to see the Royal couple, booed and jeered mounted police obstructing their view as the Queen's car arrived.

Surprised by the booing, Queen Elizabeth ordered her car stopped and instructed the police to move away. Then she and the Duke waved to the cheering crowd.

The royal party arrived here after visiting Warburton, where the Queen strolled through Dowling Forest, once the haunt of Captain Midnight, notorious bandit of the Australian gold rush days.

Back in the 1840s, when the Ballart gold diggings were booming, Captain Midnight made the forest his lair, swooping out by night to rob miners and meet his lady friends.

Legend has it that he was later befriended by a priest, changed his name and became a banker in New South Wales.
